NOTICE OF SAMUEL APPLETON, ESQ.

SAMUEL APPLETON was the oldest member of a family whose name, during the last half century, has been intimately associated with the prosperity of Boston, and with all of its most important interests. He himself might have been singled out as the model of what a merchant should be. Alike high-minded in gaining and public spirited in using his means—in his industry and liberal enterprise, his scrupulous uprightness and large beneficence, he was one of the most marked men of a profession, which includes within its ranks so much of the energy, enterprise and talent of New England.

Mr. Appleton was a native of New Ipswich, N. H., and was born June 22, 1766. He commenced life with no advantages, except the inestimable one of being trained in childhood in the home of judicious and excellent parents. His father, Dea. Isaac Appleton, was one of the most respected citizens of New Ipswich, but, like all his neighbors, was subject to the deprivations and hardships of what then was a newly settled country.

In a family of twelve brothers and sisters, Samuel was the third. Except such instruction as he received at home, all his opportunities of education were confined to a few interrupted weeks, each year, from the age of ten to sixteen, in the district school. He however made such good use of his opportunities that, at seventeen, he was himself selected to teach a school, and was so successful that during the succeeding winters, and so long as he was willing to engage in the office of teaching, his services were in great request in his own and in the neighboring towns. To the day of his death, he took the greatest delight in recalling the scenes, the friendships and the labors of these seasons of school-keeping, when the teacher often had scholars older than himself; when he was sometimes obliged to be a hard student at home that he might keep in advance of his pupils at school, and when his sovereignty over the young republicans about him required the exercise of prudence and self control as well as vigor.

At twenty-two years of age he joined a party of young men in settling a township in Maine ; the conditions being that they should have each alternate lot, provided they would build a house, and clear up a certain number of acres. In this occupation two summers were employed, and the various experiences of frontier life, the hardships encountered with the hopeful heart of youth, and the expedients by means of which difficulties were overcome, were the subject of much amusement in after years. But labor on a farm was not to his taste. It was evident that his special gift was not for handling the axe and guiding the plough. He had an early desire to become a merchant, and, the way opening for acting out this inclination, he entered into business in the country ; first, at Ashburnham, in company with Col. Jewett, and afterwards at New Ipswich, with Charles Barrett, Esq. These fields however were too narrow for his ambition. In 1794, at the age of 28, he established himself as a merchant in Boston, and from that time his career was one of uninterrupted and honorable prosperity and usefulness. In 1799, he visited England, and having formed a partnership with his younger brother, Hon. Nathan Appleton, he was for many years engaged very extensively in the importation of English goods. At a later period he was largely interested in the Cotton manufacture, which, with a wise foresight of the future industrial wants of the country, had been introduced through the agency of his brother, acting in connection with two or three associates, first at Waltham, and afterwards at Lowell. As he grew older, he gradually withdrew from business, and at length retired from any active participation in it. But he retired from business only to give his thoughts more exclusively to objects of kindness, charity, and public utility.

One of the beautiful traits of his character was his strong attachment for everything connected with his early life. He never forgot his birthplace ; and its interests were his interests. In any matter relating to its general welfare, he would have been very sorry if the people of his native town had forgotten to ask him for his aid. Among other things, the Academy, which was largely indebted to his liberality for the funds which have placed it on a permanent foundation, will be for him a lasting memorial. His early friends never lost their hold on his interest, and there was no part of life which he took such pleasure in recalling as he did the scenes and labors and struggles of his youth. One of the surest tests of an unspoiled heart—he carried through life the affections, the simple tastes, and the cheerful, hopeful feelings of his earliest years.

A stranger on seeing him, we think, would have been first struck by his apparent simplicity and open-hearted honesty. It was in his manner, in his look, and in the tones of his voice. There was no mistaking it. He was an honest man. Without subterfuge or disguise, incapable of anything indirect or underhanded, he had no concealments of his own, and anything in the form of a secret was to him a trouble and a burden. He knew of but one way of speaking, and that was, to say straight on, the truth. It was a principle grown into a necessity of his moral life. He did not know what else to say. It might be difficult to utter it, but he really could not help it. And so out of the simplicity of his nature his yea was yea, and his nay, nay. This was allied with the kindest and tenderest feelings. No one felt more pain in giving pain to another. But though he might be kind, and gentle, and tender, he could not help being honest. He was himself so thoroughly upright that it was hard for him to doubt the honesty of other men, and, as is so often the case, men were really to him what he expected them to be. Said the writer of this notice to him,—and the answer threw light alike on his own character and on the character of merchants generally,—“You have been long engaged in business, under a great variety of circumstances, and in different countries;—what is your opinion in regard to the honesty of mankind?” “Very favorable;” he replied. “Very generally I think they mean to be honest. I have never in my life met with more than three or four cases in which I thought a man intended to be dishonest, in dealing with me.”

A striking evidence of his character, and of the way in which he himself was regarded, occurred on the only occasion during his life when he was sued. About the year 1820, a merchant tailor, named Endicot, died, leaving a residue of his estate to a Baptist Society. Among his papers was a note signed by Samuel Appleton, and endorsed by Dacoster & Marshall, for a few hundred dollars. The Committee of the Society called on Mr. Appleton for payment. The handwriting was so very like his, that it was impossible to distinguish one from the other; but he refused to pay it, declaring it to be, in spite of the resemblance, a forgery. A suit was brought on the note, which was in fact outlawed. He would not, however, allow any plea of this kind to be made, but steadily denied the signature. As the endorsement was evidently genuine, and no other person of the same name was known, the whole matter was enveloped in mystery. This was increased by the fact that he had had dealings with the house of Dacoster & Marshall, as appeared by his books, though nothing was found in them to confirm this note. On the trial, his brother was called as one of the witnesses. He testified that he could not distinguish the signature from Mr. Appleton's handwriting; but that, as he himself had kept the books at the time, and his brother's notes were always paid when due, and there was no trace of such a note, it could not be genuine. Notwithstanding this admitted resemblance of the handwriting, and notwithstanding the charge of the Judge was rather against the defendant, the Jury found a verdict in his favor. Mr. D. Ellis was foreman ; and he stated that the verdict was founded on the fact that the Jury was quite sure that Mr. Appleton would not dispute the payment of the note, except on the certainty that he did not owe it.

Mr. A., however, was not satisfied to leave the matter here, if it were possible to unravel the mystery. Some years after, he was in Italy, and went to Naples, where Mr. Degen at that time resided,—the gentleman who was assignee of Dacoster & Marshall, and had made the endorsement in their behalf. His first step on landing was, not to visit any of the wonders of nature or art, but to search out Mr. D., who, in answer to his enquiries, stated that he perfectly well recollected the circumstance of there being such a note, but that the signer of the note was a ship-master of the same name, who resided in Portland, and who had been dead for some years. Besides his memory of the event, he had at his country house the books of the firm, and on examining them, they were found to confirm entirely Mr. Appleton's convictions, and to show the reasonableness of the confidence placed by his neighbors and fellow-citizens in his accuracy and integrity.

Mr. A. was the artificer of his own fortune. He was,—what so many who are described as such, are not,—essentially a self-made man. From early youth, he had nothing on which to rely but his own resources of mind and character. The friends whom he never failed to find, and of whom no man had more, were attracted to him by his own merits. No one owed less in early life to what is termed good fortune. Every advancing step was the legitimate result of preceding self-denial, foresight, integrity, and cheerful labor. A full account of his early career would be a hardly less instructive one to young men, than that of Franklin. Nothing could furnish a better commentary on the selfish folly of those who think that they do well to be angry with the world, because it does not load them with prosperity before they have done anything to deserve it. He was an accomplished merchant, but his prosperity, instead of being accidental, was owing to years of persevering industry, to his uprightness, to a singularly quick perception of character, and to a native good sense and soundness of judgment, which would have made him successful in any vocation that he might have chosen.

He doubtless had the New England love of success in what he undertook. But there were things which he valued more than success. He valued a liberal heart in his own bosom, and an unrepublishing conscience, more than he did money. Mammon was never his god, but his servant. His gains had on them no dark spots. In recalling the early years of mercantile life, when habits were forming, and temptations to one struggling into business with limited means were many, it gratified him to remember that he never was sued, and during that time had never instituted a suit against any one ; that he made very few bad debts ; that he never lost a good customer, and that of the many orders given him to be filled very much at his own discretion, the case scarcely occurred in which any complaint ever reached his ear, of the manner in which it had been executed. He never sought large profits ; he would not make money out of other men's necessities, and throughout life, carrying out to the letter his notions of obedience to law, he would never receive more than the legal rate of interest for what he had loaned. He accumulated a fortune, because he was a sagacious and accomplished man of business, and not because of any grasping passion for accumulation. On the contrary, instead of the love of money growing with his years, during the latter part of life, he systematically limited its increase. Among his papers is one dated 1823, containing some resolutions which he hoped to carry out with more fidelity than he had done before. Among them, he says, " I promise, during the following year, to spend the whole of my income, either in frivolity, amusement, public utility, or benevolence." Although the last object is introduced so casually, those who were acquainted with him will understand how large a place it held in his thoughts. Another similar paper is found for 1828, in which, after saying in general terms that he has observed men, as they have grown old in years, growing anxious about property till they have seemed to think of little else, and wishing to avoid that state of mind, he promises that during the ensuing year he will spend the whole of his income ; making, however, with the careful forethought of one who meant to perform what he resolved, the single reservation of so large a part of the dividends on his manufacturing stocks, as should be required to pay any new assessments. How large and liberal were his ideas of one's duty to promote the welfare of others, is seen in the fact that the amount which he gave away during his life, was scarcely less than what he had retained for himself.

His relations with his kindred were always of the most interesting kind. Many of his brothers and sisters had large families ; and among their children, as a matter of course, was every variety of fortune. Having no children of his own, he adopted into the circle of his affections the children of his brothers and sisters ; and during the latter years of his life, no single thing engrossed so much of his thoughts, as their interest and happiness.

In 1819 he married Mrs. Mary Gore. This is no place in which to speak of domestic life, but it may be said that while happy in so many other things, he deemed himself to have been signally blessed in this relation. There never was a more sunshiny home ; and for the sunshine which filled it, it was his happiness to feel that he was indebted to the character and affection of the wife whom he loved.

It would be difficult to imagine a more beautiful old age. During its last years he was confined very much to his room and to his chair ; but those who were dearest to him were always near him. His room was the great centre of domestic attraction and enjoyment. His heart was so warm, and fresh, and sympathetic, that others felt that their pleasures were doubled by his participation in them ; and on the contrary, he could never enjoy anything alone. The words of Ben Jonson described his habitual feeling :

“ That is but half a joy, is all our own.”

On any afternoon that you might visit him, you were likely to find around him some of those who in former years had been engaged with him in business, or his kindred, or the young children of his old friends, for his affectionate nature drew the young to him not less than those who were more advanced ; and there too you met a constant succession of persons who sought his aid for public objects, or private charities. To consider and meet these calls was indeed the great work of his later years. He held his fortune as a means of usefulness, and there was scarcely a day in the year in which he did not contribute more or less to some benevolent object. He of course exercised his own judgment as to whether he would give or not give, and he carried into his works of benevolence the same good sense and clearness of mind which had characterized him as a merchant ; but he would have taken it unkindly if, in any enterprise for the public good, or any purpose of private charity, he had been overlooked by his friends. It is sometimes an ungracious task to ask men to contribute money ; but Mr. Appleton, whether he saw fit to give or to decline giving, made you understand that he considered that you had done him a favor in letting him have the opportunity. He not only gave with no grudging hand, but he was very likely to add, that if, after applying to others, there should still be a deficiency, he would like to be called on again.

During the latter part of his life, he made it a rule to spend his whole income every year ; and there was scarcely any public enterprise within that period, or any work of utility, or any charitable institution, or any effort to promote education in the city of Boston, to which he was not a large contributor. Nor were his benefactions confined to the city of his home ; but throughout New England his name will be permanently connected with the charitable, educational and religious institutions which received aid from his ready and large-hearted munificence.

But that which characterized his old age more than anything else, was a constantly growing interest in the welfare of the poor.

He regularly placed large sums in the hands of physicians and others who were in the way of seeing those in destitution, and on whose good sense and good feeling he relied, to be distributed as their judgment should dictate. He could not bear to think that any one, whom he could relieve, should suffer from want. It was Cecil, we think, who said that he always thought of the world as divided into two heaps, one of happiness and the other of misery, and that it was his purpose to take something from the latter and to add something every day to the former. No one ever acted more habitually on this idea than Mr. Appleton. With the habits and decision brought out of a struggling and energetic manhood, there were many things he could resist; but a poor child, or a poor man, he could not resist. He could not resist any tale of want, and though uttered in a whisper, he heard it above all the noise of the world.

Those were the only unsatisfactory days to him, in which he had not done something to promote some one's welfare, or to relieve some one's distress. And all this was done so modestly, so kindly, so much as if he were receiving a favor, that the manner doubled its value. He gave money to the poor in such a way that they gave him back their hearts. He bore all his faculties so meekly, his manners were characterized by such an inbred courtesy, and his good deeds were so simple and unalloyed, that they awakened in all around him kind and friendly feelings. It is said of Raphael that the influence of his genial and kindly character was such, that "the painters who worked around him lived in perfect harmony, as if all bad feelings were extinguished in his presence, and every base, unworthy thought had passed from their minds." So Mr. A.'s character seemed to create around him a sphere of just thoughts and kind affections.

His religious views and feelings partook of the simplicity of his general character. Though he had decided opinions, he never took any strong interest in questions of controversial theology. His experience of life had taught him that good men were confined to no theological party, and it was his conviction that the fundamental principles of religion, in spite of minor differences, were received by all sects. His nature was not speculative but practical, and religion with him took a practical form. He thought little of words and much of the substance. Better words to describe him, as he appeared in his habitual course, could hardly be chosen, than those in which the prophet gives the comprehensive test of a right life:—"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly before God." He had the trusting heart of the child; and the practical form which his faith in a spiritual life assumed, was touchingly illustrated in an incident that occurred during the year preceding his own death. A favorite nephew, to whom he had bequeathed in his will a large proportional amount of his estate, died before him, and by the terms of the will, a half-sister, between whom and Mr. A. there was no blood relationship, became entitled to these bequests. The executor called Mr. Appleton's attention to the fact, thinking that he might wish to make some change in the disposition of his property. After taking the subject into full consideration, his reply was, "If, in the other world, there is any knowledge of what is done in this, I should not like to have my nephew, whom I so loved and trusted, find that my first act, on learning his death, is the revocation or curtailment of a bequest made in his favor, and which, if he had survived me, would have eventually benefited her who was nearest and dearest to him. The will must stand as it is."

He died without issue, at his residence in Boston, July 12, 1853, having just entered on the eighty-eighth year of his age. His death was as tranquil as his life. He had always dreaded a lingering dissolution, and his desire that the last hour might come suddenly was granted. On the last morning of his life, he enjoyed his usual health. During the day he had suffered some pain and uneasiness, but the remedies applied had relieved him, and he said, "I will now try to sleep." He composed himself for this purpose, and sunk into slumber. In a few moments, however, Mrs. Appleton was alarmed by his louder breathing; she ran to his bed-side, and summoned an attendant. He was lying in the same attitude of repose. He was sleeping, but "the sleep that had fallen upon him so gently was the sleep of death!"

His mind retained its vigor and clearness to the very last, and up to the closing hours of life, he had been employed on thoughts and plans of beneficence. The sinking sun went down through a twilight over which collected all the beauty of the day.

"Sure the last end
Of the good man is peace. How calm his exit!
Night dews fall not more calmly on the ground,
Nor weary, worn-out winds expire so soft."

Mr. Appleton was one of those men who not only give a character to the community in which they live, but who create its character. His enterprise, his great soundness of judgment, his stainless integrity, and his liberality, made him one of those standards of character by which men around measure themselves and others. Such men raise the general average of character throughout the community. Illiberal customs, and underhanded methods of business, are shamed away from their presence. The young honor and imitate, and those who are older, take a heartier interest in whatever relates to the general good. We are accustomed to speak of the benevolent acts of such a man, but infinitely greater than the immediate good done to the recipients of the charity, is the general feeling of liberality which such acts awaken and keep alive in the community. Three men, near neighbors, intimate friends, associated much together in common pursuits, died nearly together: Mr. Amos Lawrence, Mr. Robert G. Shaw, and Mr. Appleton. Without detracting from the merits of others, it cannot be doubted that these men stood second to none in their liberality towards all objects that had a bearing on the general welfare, and that any reputation which Boston may have, was owing, in at least a full proportion, to their character. But whatever of good they may have done to individuals or institutions, the greatest good came from the modest, unpretending uprightness and liberality of their lives, which showed that men might accumulate money and yet value it for its true uses; which gave the visible proof that successful labors did not require the drying up of the heart, and which established a standard of wise and large beneficence. A few accomplished and successful men of business, if they are at the same time selfish and sordid, will lower the whole moral feeling of the business community in which they live. And, on the contrary, if right minded, generous, just, living for others as well as themselves, they elevate the whole moral character of business life.

There are many who are liberal after their death, who give wisely, perhaps, that which they can no longer retain. Mr. Appleton will be remembered as one who, all his days, made use of prosperity to promote the welfare of others, whose heart grew liberal, and whose hand was opened wider as his means increased; and whose unostentatious course was, from the beginning, like that of a stream through the valley, giving fertility to the whole region through which it flows, and like that too, hiding itself under the very verdure which it has nourished. He has passed from this world, followed by kind, affectionate and grateful memories; and at that day, whose inquisition all may fear, and when the best may shrink from answering for themselves, we may believe that he shall be one of that number—most blessed—who shall have many to bear witness for them—one of those of whom the poor shall say, “he relieved our necessities;” and the naked, “he clothed us;” and the sick and in prison, “he visited us;” and the orphan, the friendless and the forsaken, “when we thought ourselves forgotten by man, by him we were remembered.”

LONGEVITY OF QUAKERS.—The late census returns in England reveal the singular fact, that the average age attained by this peaceful sect is fifty-one years two months and twenty-one days, while half of the population of this country die before reaching the age of twenty-one, and the average duration of life, the world over, is but thirty-three years.—[Newspaper, 9 Sept., 1853.]

February's Observations.

You Lads & Lasses would repine,
Should we forget St. Valentine.
When young men do present their Loves
With Scarfs, with Ribons & with Gloves,
And to shew manners not forget all
Give them a lick under the Snot-gall;
Then one a Cursie dops anon,
And smiling says, I thank thee, John

On the 28th day of this month is like to be a very comfortable smell of Pancakes & Friters. The nights are still cold & long, which may cause great conjunction betwixt the male & Female Planets of our sublunary Orb, the effects whereof may be seen about nine months after, and portend great charges of Midwife, Nurse, & Naming the Bantling.

May.

This is Love's month, else Poets lie, what then?
Why then, young maids are apt to kiss young men:
But for Old Maids unmarried 'tis a sign,
They either do want beauty, or else Coy.

If any are bound for England, & would know whither to go for several sorts of belly-timber, I shall direct them to Devonshire for White-pots, To Essex for Veal, to Norfolk for Dumplings, to Tewxbury for Mustard, to Banbury for Cakes, to Kingsnorton for Cheese & to Darby for Ale.

July.

Now wanton Lads & Lasses do make Hay,
Which unto lewd temptation makes great way,
With tumbling on the cocks, which acted dully,
Doth cause much mischief in this month of July.

August.

Now doth the Dog-star rule, therefore you must
For your health's sake astrain from fleshly lust.
Better it is your business hard to ply,
For to get in your Barley, Wheat & Rye..

Now the Indian Sanupps with their Squaues shall dance the Canaries, having for their music the Roaring of Lions, the Howling of Wolves, Lowing of Oxen, Bleating of Calves, Croaking of Toads, Hissing of Serpents, Barking of Doggs, Screeching of Owls, Wawling of Cats, Buzzing of Musquittoes, & Screaming of Peacocks, which (together with their own ravishing and melodious Voices) will make a most harmonious sound.

LONGEVITY.—Of the crew of ship Union, Captain Grafton Gardner, which sailed on a whaling cruise from Nantucket on the 16th of August, in the year 1793, sixty years ago, the following persons are known to be living;—Stephen West, now of this city; John G. Fitch, of East Vassalboro', Me.; Barzillai Coffin and Hezekiah Pinkham, of Nantucket; and William Sherman of Baltimore. The four veterans last named recently met at Nantucket, and doubtless fought their battles over again, raising their canes to show how whales were won. Each of the gentlemen named were before the mast, and each of them subsequently rose to be a successful commander, passing a long life in virtue and industry, and attaining, with a green old age, the good wishes and respect of the community.

It may be noticed as exhibiting the "difference 'twixt now and then," that the Union was absent on her cruise for ten months, during which time she did not once anchor, nor see land until she sighted Cape Augustine upon her return with a full cargo of 1280 barrels of oil.—New Bedford Mercury, Sept. 1853.

THE CRADOCK FAMILY.

[Communicated by Hon. FRANCIS BRINLEY, of Boston.]

MR. DRAKE :

In the third and fourth numbers of your most interesting and valuable History of Boston, references are made to Sir Matthew Cradock, the first Governor of the Massachusetts Company. I have it in my power to give some account of the genealogy of the family, and which I place at the disposal of the Editor of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register. Allow me to preface it with some notices of Sir Matthew Cradock, extracted from various works of high authority.

"MATTHEW CRADOCK, the first Governor of the Massachusetts Company, was a wealthy London merchant, and, it will be recollected, was usually the highest in all subscriptions for the good of the Colony. He owned the Ambrose and the Jewel, two of the ships in Winthrop's fleet, and went to the Isle of Wight to take leave of the emigrants. On his leaving the Arbella, on the 29th of March, "the Captain gave him a farewell with four or five shot." He came aboard the same vessel again at Yarmouth, April 6, and on his taking leave, "the captain gave him three shot out of the steerage for a farewell." He never came over to New England; but he continued to take an interest in the Colony, and befriended it essentially at home. He had an agent and servants here, and capital engaged in fishing and trading. He had a house at Marblehead and another at Ipswich, and employed fishermen at both places. His name frequently occurs in the Records of the Colony. At a Court held at Watertown, March 8, 1631, "it was ordered that Thomas Fox, servant to Mr. Cradock, shall be whipped." Nov. 7, 1632, "Mr. Matthew Cradock is fined £4 for his men being absent from training divers times." At a Court held March 4, 1634, "the wear at Mistick is granted to John Winthrop, Esq., present Governor, and to Mr. Matthew Cradock, of London." March 4, 1635, "all the ground, as well upland as meadow, lying and being betwixt the lands of Mr. Nowell and Mr. Wilson on the east, and the partition betwixt Mistick bounds on the west, bounded with Mistick River on the south and the rocks on the north, is granted to Mr. Matthew Cradock, merchant, to enjoy to him and his heirs forever." This farm was within the present town of Malden, opposite Winthrop's farm at Ten Hills. William Wood, who was here in 1633, says in his New England's Prospect, chap. 10, "On the east side (of Mistick River) is Mr. Cradock's plantation, where he hath impaled a park, where he keeps his cattle till he can store it with deer. Here likewise he is at charges of building ships. The last year one was upon the stocks of 100 tons. That being finished, they are to build one twice her burden." He was a member of Parliament from the City of London in 1640. He left a claim upon the Colony, which in 1648 amounted to £679 6s. 4d. His widow, Rebecca, married the Rev. Benjamin Whichcot, D. D. His son or grandson was a dissenting minister at Wickam-brook in 1690. A descendant, George Cradock, was an inhabitant of Boston in the middle of the last century. See Col. Rec. I. 63, 95, 108, 143: Winthrop's Hist. I. 2, 4, 60, 124; II. 25: Hutchinson's Mass. I. 18, 22: Felt's Annals of Salem, I. 56.

The above is from Young's Chronicles of Massachusetts, 137, in note.

There is an original letter of instructions from Matthew Cradock to John Endicott, dated "From my house in Swithen's Lane, near London Stone, this 16th February, 1628, stilo Angliæ. Mr. Young, in his Chronicles, makes the following remarks in reference to this date: "That is, old style, by which the year began on the 25th of March. The Julian year, and the new or Gregorian style, were not adopted by law in England and her dependencies till 1752. This letter (he continues) must have been brought over by some fishing-vessel, for we know of no ship of the Company's sailing from England to Salem till the middle of April, when the George Bonaventure brought the first general letter of instructions to Endicott. The original letter lies loose in the first volume of the Colony Records, where it has probably laid for more than two hundred years. Like the volume itself, it is in a tattered condition, and it is a marvel that it exists at all. Several words, now torn off, I have restored from a copy made twenty-seven years ago, when the letter was less mutilated."—Young's Chronicles, p. 138, in note.

"The original Charter, with the broad seal appendant, which was brought over by Governor Winthrop, is carefully preserved in a glass-case in the office of the Secretary of State, at the State House in Boston. It is distinctly and beautifully engrossed on parchment, and has on it the head of the sovereign by whom it was granted, Charles I. That it is the original and not a copy, is proved by the fact that on it is the following certificate of Governor Cradock having taken his oath of office before Sir Charles Cæsar, Master in Chancery. "Prædictus Matthæus Cradocke juratus est de fide et obedientiâ Regi et successoribus suis, et de debitâ exequutione officii Gubernatoris juxta tenorem præsentium, 18º Martii, 1628, coram me, Carolo Cæsare, Milite, in Concellariâ Magistro. Char. Cæsar."—Young's Chronicles, p. 142, in note.

Hutchinson says, "Mr. Cradock was more forward in advancing out of his substance than any others, being generally the highest in all subscriptions. He was an eminent merchant in London, and continued divers years to carry on a trade in the Colony by his servants, but he never came over. His son or grandson, Samuel Cradock, was a dissenting minister at Wickambrook in 1690. George Cradock, Esq., now in public posts in the Colony, is descended from him."—1. Hutchinson's History of Mass. 23, in note.

"The first Governor, chosen by the Company, was Mr. Matthew Cradock, a prudent and wealthy citizen of London, ready to promote any design of publick utility, which if himself and all the rest engaged therein had not minded more than their own particular benefit, things of that nature would either never have been undertaken, or have been broken off in a manner as soon as they had been begun."—Hubbard's History of New England, 120.

To him is due the honor of the proposal, 28 July preceding the date of the commencement of this History (1630), for transferring the Government from the Company in London to the inhabitants here; a measure, of which the benefit was felt more and more every year till the Independence of the United States, with which its connexion is apparent. This fact is by Prince, I. 189, verified from the Records of that day. His death I refer to 1644, for in our County Registry, Deeds are found of that year from his agent, and in the next from the agent of his Executors. A descendant, George Cradock, Esq., is mentioned by Douglas and Hutchinson as an inhabitant of Boston."—Note 2 to page 2, vol. 1 of Winthrop's Journal, edited by Hon. James Savage.

"This pedigree is in the Herald's Office, as may be seen in the last Visitation, Staffordshire.

Sir Miles Cradock, Knt., one of the founders of the Church at Nantwich, County of Chester, dyed in France, and brought here, buried here; had only one daughter and heiress—Petranel, married into Chester, to Massey of Paddington, Esq.

First Generation. (Anno 1447, 25 Henry VI.) John Cradock, brother to Sir Miles C., fled into France, for killing a man in the Wyfsh; had his pardon sent to Stafford, and there married Jane, daughter to Richard Dorrington.

Second Generation. (1460, Edw. IV.) John Cradock, son to John Cradock of Stafford, had issue Richard, married to the daughter of Richard Middleton, Esq.

Third Generation. (1492, Henry VII.) Richard Cradock, Esq., had issue by Alice, daughter of John Dorrington, Richard, citizen of London; William, Doctor of Civil Law; Thomas, and three daughters.

Fourth Generation. (1509, Henry VIII.) Thomas Cradock married Amy, daughter to Nicolas Meveral, Esq., and had issue, Matthew, George, Edward, William, Mary, Alice, Jane, and Amy.

Fifth Generation. Matthew Cradock, first son of Thomas, married to Mary Peak, and had issue Francis and George.

George of Stafford, second son of Thomas, had issue one son, Matthew.

Sixth Generation. Matthew Cradock, son of Matthew by Mary Peak, had issue Matthew, citizen of London, who went over to America; [The writer of the manuscript was mistaken. This last named Matthew was Sir Matthew, the first Governor of the Massachusetts Company, who never came over to this country. F. B.] and Samuel, B. D., sometime Rector of North Cadbury, Somersetshire, and left issue three sons, Walter, Samuel, Charles, and three daughters, Ann, Elizabeth and Sarah.

Francis Cradock, second son of Matthew, had issue Walter of Wickhambrook, Esq., who gave his estate to Samuel, of North Cadbury, B. D., for his integrity in non-conforming, and losing his living, worth £400 per annum.

Seventh Generation. Sir Matthew Cradock, citizen of London, and first Governor of Plymouth Colony, [first Governor of the Massachusetts Company] left issue, John, Matthew and George.

Ninth Generation. [N. B.] Zachary Cradock of London, Esq., and George Cradock, of Boston, Esq.. New England, America, are the only surviving sons of John Cradock from Matthew Cradock.

So far this pedigree is attested and entered fairly, as appears from the original; all the remainder is collected from family manuscripts, down to this present year, one thousand seven hundred and thirty-five, and in the ninth year of the reign of King George the Second, whom God long preserve."

The preceding is copied from the manuscripts of the last named George Cradock, which bears date 1735. He came to this country from London, and for many years resided in Boston, where he married Mary, a daughter of Byfield Lyde, Esq.,* by whom he had five daughters.

*Son of Edward Lyde, Esq., by ———, daughter of the Hon. Nathaniel Byfield. Byfield Lyde, Esq., married a daughter of Gov. Belcher. Edward, the father, died

1. Mary, who married the Hon. Joseph Gerrish. "The Boston Gazette," No. 706, for Monday, October 10, 1768, contains the following: "Halifax, September 8, Saturday last was married Hon. Joseph Gerrish, Esq. to Miss Mary Cradock, of Boston; a lady possessed of every agreeable accomplishment necessary to make the married state happy." After the death of Mr. Gerrish she married the Rev. Dr. Breynton, of Halifax. She died in England, and without issue.

2. Deborah, who married Robert Auchmuty. "He was a lawyer of Boston, and held the office of Judge of Admiralty, a place which had been filled by his father. He possessed fine powers as an advocate, and was associated with John Adams in the defence of Captain Preston, on his trial for the Boston Massacre."—Sabine, 138. Judge Auchmuty went to England and died there.

3. Elizabeth, married, January 25th, 1749, to her cousin Thomas Brinley, Esq., of Boston, son of Colonel Francis Brinley, of Roxbury. He graduated at Harvard College in 1744. At about the commencement of the Revolution he went to England, and died there, without issue.

4. Catharine, married to her cousin Nathaniel Brinley, Esq., of Boston, son of Colonel Francis Brinley, of Roxbury. They removed, when somewhat advanced in years, to Tyngsborough, in this State, where they both died; Mrs. Brinley on the 3d of April 1807, at the age of 75, and Mr. Brinley on the 10th of February, 1814, at the age of 81; leaving one child, Robert Brinley, Esq., still living at Tyngsborough.

The Hon. George Cradock held various public offices in Boston. For several years he was one of the Wardens of Kings Chapel. In the "Boston Gazette and Country Journal," No. 337, for Monday, September 14, 1761, there is an advertisement signed by George Cradock, Collector; Robert Temple, Comptroller, and Charles Paxton, Surveyor of His Majesty's Customs for the Port of Boston.

"The Boston Post Boy and Advertiser," No. 122, for Monday, December 17, 1759, contains the following: "We hear that George Cradock, Esq., is appointed Collector of his Majesty's Customs for the Port of Boston, in the room of Benjamin Parsons, Esq.; and that the Custom House is removed to the house of John Wendell, Esq."

The same newspaper, No. 467, for Monday, July 28, 1766, has this announcement: "The Hon. Chambers Russell, Esq., Judge of the Court of Vice Admiralty, has appointed William Read, Esq., Deputy Judge of said Court, in the room of the Hon. George Cradock, Esq., who resigned by reason of his great age and indisposition of body."

His death is thus noticed in the "Boston Gazette and Country Journal," No. 847, for Monday, July 1, 1771: "Wednesday morning last, died here, the Honorable George Cradock, Esq., aged 87 years; a gentleman of unblemished character. His funeral is to be attended this afternoon."

It will be seen, by the above account, that he was a grandson of Governor Cradock. The name of Cradock is now extinct; at least in Massachusetts.

early in 1724. An Edward Lyde married Mary, daughter of Rev. John Wheelwright, 4th Dec. 1660. Edward Lyde, Esq., lived in Wing's Lane, once Hudson's Lane, now Elm Street. There was an Edward Lyde of New York, in the time of the American Revolution.—See Hist. of Boston, p. 293.—EDITOR.

RESEARCHES AMONG FUNERAL SERMONS, AND OTHER TRACTS, FOR THE RECOVERY OF BIOGRAPHICAL AND GENEALOGICAL MATERIALS.

APPLETON.—Sermon by Benjamin Tappan, of Augusta, at the interment of JESSE APPLETON, D. D., &c. Dr. Appleton was born at New Ipswich, Nov. 17, 1772; grad. Dart. 1792, and died Nov. 12, 1819. In this discourse are recorded some of the principal incidents of his life, and a good delineation of his character; and in a note, some account of his ancestors and family. More full accounts have since been published with his works, and in the "Appleton Genealogy." T. F.

ANDERSON.—Samuel Worcester preached a Sermon at Wenham, at the funeral of Rev. RUFUS ANDERSON, Feb. 15, 1814. Mr. A. was born at Londonderry, N. H., Mar. 5, 1765; grad. Dart. 1791; ordained at North Yarmouth, Oct. 22, 1794, and installed at Wenham, July 10, 1805, where he died. T. F.

BARRETT.—Rev. Charles Walker, of New Ipswich, delivered a Sermon on the death of JOSEPH APPLETON BARRETT. He was the only son of JOSEPH BARRETT, Esq., of that place, and died April 20, 1833, aged 20 years, while a member of Yale College. T. F.

CLARY.—Sermon at the interment of Mrs. ANNA F. CLARY, wife of Rev. JOSEPH W. CLARY, of Dover, by Federal Burt, of Durham. Mrs. C. was born in New Ipswich, Nov. 22, 1791; (for an account of her family, see Hist. of New Ipswich;) married to the minister of Dover, Sept. 1812, and died Feb. 15, 1825. Some "Biographical Notices" are appended to the Discourse. T. F.

CLARY.—Rev. Jonathan French delivered a Sermon in Dover, at the reinterment of Rev. JOSEPH WARD CLARY, Dec. 19, 1835. Mr. C. was the son of Dr. ISAAC CLARY, of Rowe, Mass., where he was born, Nov. 21, 1786. He was graduated at Middlebury College, in 1808, and at the Theological Seminary at Andover, 1811. May 6, 1812, he was ordained at Dover; in Sept. following married Miss Anna Farrar. (See above, Mr. Burt's Sermon.) He afterwards, in June, 1826, married Mrs. Lucy F. Hall, widow of Rev. Richard Hall, of New Ipswich, and sister of the first Mrs. CLARY. Aug. 6, 1828, he was dismissed from Dover, and installed at Cornish in Nov. following, where he died, April 13, 1835. In Dec. following, his remains were removed to Dover, by the church of which he had been Pastor, and there reinterred, with solemn funeral services, by the side of his first wife, and her mother and youngest child; and an appropriate monument erected to his memory. In the Sermon, Dr. French remarks, "The Lord reward this delicate, honorable, and Christian respect, to the memory of a Pastor so deservedly revered and loved."—See Hist. of New Ipswich. T. F.

CLARKE.—Sermon occasioned by the death of Mrs. BEWLAH ALLEN CLARKE, wife of WILLIAM CLARKE, Esq., of Utica, by A. D. Eddy, of Canandaigua. She was the daughter of the Rev. Solomon Allen, and died Feb. 10, 1827. Beyond a due commemoration of her Christian character, little information concerning herself or family, is given. T. F.

DIX.—A Sermon was preached at Townsend, Nov. 15, 1797, by Rev. Stephen Farrar, of New Ipswich, at the interment of Rev. SAMUEL DIX.

Like most funeral discourses of that period, it contains few dates or biographical incidents. It appears, however, from the discourse, that Mr. Dix was born in 1736, ordained at Townsend, March 4, 1761, brought up a large family of children, buried his wife Sept. 23, 1796, and died himself Nov. 12, 1797. Mr. Farrar says he had "the character of a sincere Christian, an upright and faithful man, and shone peculiarly in the virtues of meekness, patience, humility, and self-denial." The peculiar topics of his preaching were the most important truths; such as the pollution and sinfulness of the natural heart, the helpless condition of man, in himself, —the full and complete remedy provided for him, in Christ,—the necessity of regeneration, the importance of union to Christ by faith, and of holy obedience as the fruit of this faith." T. F.

EVARTS.—Sermon on the death of JEREMIAH EVARTS, Esq., by Leonard Woods, D. D., was delivered July 31, 1831. His intellectual, moral and religious character is delineated, but no dates in regard to his birth, life or death, are given. T. F.

FARRAR.—The Rev. Seth Payson, D. D., delivered a Sermon at New Ipswich, at the interment of the Rev. STEPHEN FARRAR, in which his character is given, though not so fully as in the History of that town, and by which it appears that he was born at Lincoln, Sept. 8, 1738; grad. Harv. 1755; ordained at New Ipswich, 1760, where he remained performing the duties of the pastoral office till his death, June 23, 1809.

Leonard Woods, D. D., delivered a Sermon at the funeral of Mrs. PHEBE FARRAR. She was the grand-daughter of President Edwards, daughter of Hon. Timothy Edwards, born at Elizabethtown, N. J., Nov. 4, 1768; married 1st, Rev. Asahel Hooker; 2d, SAMUEL FARRAR, Esq., of Andover, Oct. 30, 1814, and died in that place, Jan. 22, 1848. T. F.

GAY.—Rev. EBENEZER GAY, D. D., delivered a Discourse on his birthday, Aug. 26, 1781, at Hingham, from these words: "And now, lo, I am this day four score and five years old." Though not a funeral sermon, the occasion and character of it have so near an affinity to such discourses, that we venture to give some account of it here. He was the only person in the congregation who could adapt the words to the text. Sixty-three years of his life he had spent in the ministry in that place, which had then been settled 146 years, and had but two ministers before him, viz., Peter Hobart and John Norton, though the office had been vacant but two years during the term. His reflections and observations on so extraordinary an occasion, are exceedingly interesting and appropriate. T. F.

HUBBARD.—Sermon on the death of Hon. SAMUEL HUBBARD, LL.D., by Silas Aiken, of Park Street Church. Judge H. was born in Boston, June 2, 1785, grad. Yale 1802, appointed Asst. Justice of the Supreme Court, 1842, and died Dec. 24, 1847. The discourse dwells on his religious character, and with the accompanying documents develops also his intellectual and professional character. T. F.

PUTNAM.—Discourse at the funeral of Mrs. HARRIET PUTNAM, consort of the Rev. ISRAEL W. PUTNAM, of Portsmouth, by Jonathan French; also a Sermon delivered the Sunday following, by Daniel Dana, D. D. Mrs. P. was the daughter of Peter Osgood, Esq., of Andover, born Mar. 28, 1791, married to Rev. I. W. P., Dec. 1815, and died June 10, 1832. An interesting memorial of her character, life and death, are preserved in these discourses. T. F.

PIERREPONT.—Eulogy delivered at the interment of JAMES HENRY

PIERREPONT, M. D., by Rev. Charles Burroughs, D. D., of Portsmouth. Dr. PIERREPONT was the son of WILLIAM PIERREPONT, and born at Roxbury, June 1, 1768, grad. Harv. 1789, and studied medicine under the direction of Dr. Marshall Spring, of Watertown. He first settled in Elliot, Me., but removed to Portsmouth in 1801, where he continued in the practice of a laborious profession, with a high reputation, till his death, in Jan. 1839.

T. F.

PEABODY.—Sermon preached at the funeral of Rev. DAVID PEABODY, Professor in Dartmouth College, Oct. 20, 1839, by the President, (Nathan Lord, D. D.) It appears that Mr. P. was born at Topsfield, Mass., fitted for College at Dummer Academy, where he was, in 1821, educated at some College, a Theological Student at Andover and at the Prince Edward Institution in Virginia, an occasional preacher in Louisiana, a Pastor in Lynn and Worcester, and died in the Professorship of Oratory and Belles Lettres at Dartmouth College. The two dates above are the only ones that appear, in reference to these or any other events of his life.

T. F.

RICHARDSON.—Discourse delivered at the funeral of Hon. WILLIAM M. RICHARDSON, March 26, 1838, by Rev. Jonathan Clement, of Chester, N. H. Judge R. was born at Pelham, N. H., Jan. 4, 1774, grad. Harv. 1797, Member of Congress 1811—14 from Middlesex Dist., removed to Portsmouth, N. H., 1814, and appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, 1816, which office he held till his death.

T. F.

SWEAT.—A Discourse was delivered at Boscawen, N. H., at the interment of Dr. BENJAMIN SWEAT, by Ebenezer Price, Pastor of the 2d church, Oct. 13, 1810. His religious character is appropriately delineated, but neither his birth, age, parentage nor ancestry, is alluded to.

T. F.

THAYER.—Discourse delivered at the interment of Rev. NATHANIEL THAYER, D. D., of Lancaster, by Alonzo Hill. Dr. Thayer was the son of Rev. EBENEZER THAYER, of Hampton, N. H., his mother being a daughter of Rev. John Cotton, of Newton, who was great-grandson of the “celebrated John Cotton, minister of Boston.” He was born at Hampton, July 11, 1769, grad. Harv. 1789, studied divinity with Dr. Osgood, of Medford, was ordained at Lancaster Oct. 9, 1793, and died June 23, 1840.

John Cotton, minister of Boston.

John, of Plymouth, ordained June 30, 1669, dismissed Oct. 5, 1697, resettled in Charleston, S. C.

Rowland, of Sandwich, ordained Nov. 8, 1694, and died March 18, 1722.

John, of Newton, born 1694, ordained Nov. 3, 1714, at 20 years of age, and died May 17, 1757; his daughter married EBENEZER THAYER.

T. F.

WOODWARD.—Mrs. MARY was a daughter of the elder Dr. Wheelock, Founder and first President of Dartmouth College, and born at Lebanon, Conn., Sept. 8, 1748, married the Hon. BEZALEEL WOODWARD, late Professor of Mathematics, &c., in that institution, in 1772, and died at Hanover, N. H., March, 1807. A discourse was delivered at her funeral, March 29, by Roswell Shurtleff, Professor of Divinity, in which her character is highly commended, but no historical facts recorded.—See McClure and Parish’s Life of Wheelock.

T. F.

BUCKMINSTER.—“Two Discourses Delivered in the North Meetinghouse, in Portsmouth, 16 June, 1805; it being the Sabbath succeeding the Interment of MRS. MARY BUCKMINSTER, Consort of the Reverend JOSEPH BUCKMINSTER, D. D. By Jesse Appleton, Congregational Minister in Hampton. Portsmouth, [N. H. : 1805.] 8vo. pp. 34.

"MRS. BUCKMINSTER was the daughter of the Rev. Isaac Lyman, of York. Her age at the time of her death was thirty-nine years. She was Mr. B's second wife, as may be inferred from this passage of the Sermon: "The Children, both those who have now lost their natural mother, and others who are, by the same stroke, deprived of one, from whom they received a natural mother's tenderness, &c. are," &c.

BURR.—"A Funeral Eulogium on the Rev. MR. AARON BURR, late President of the College of New Jersey. By William Livingston, Esq. New York, printed : Boston, reprinted : 1758." 4to. pp. 23.

"Can you imagine to yourself a person modest in prosperity, prudent in difficulty, in business indefatigable, magnanimous in danger, easy in his manners, of exquisite judgment, of profound learning, catholic in sentiment, of the purest morals, and great even in the minutest things—Can you imagine so accomplished a person, without recollecting the idea of the late PRESIDENT BURR ?

"Though a person of a slender and delicate make to encounter fatigue, he had a heart of steel ; in the Sacred Scriptures he was a perfect Apollos ; his piety eclipsed all his other accomplishments." For his pedigree, see vol. V. 472.

BROWN.—"A Discourse in commemoration of the Life and Character of the HON. NICHOLAS BROWN, delivered in the Chapel of Brown University, November 3, 1841. By Francis Wayland, D. D., President of Brown University. Boston : 1841." 8vo. pp. 30.

"Surrounded by those who venerated and loved him, Mr. Brown fell asleep early in the morning of September 27th, 1841, in the 73d year of his age." He was a descendant of CHAD BROWN, who with Roger Williams laid the foundation of the Colony of Rhode Island. He bore the same christian name of his father, and was born in Providence, 4 April, 1769, entered College 1782, and graduated with honor in due course. NICHOLAS BROWN his father and his three brothers were the principal benefactors of the institution, which very appropriately bears their family name. NICHOLAS the son, the occasion of the present discourse, also became a great benefactor of the same institution, and his only son, the present JOHN CARTER BROWN, Esq., has, in a most liberal manner, continued the benevolence of his ancestors towards his alma mater.

BODDILY.—"A Discourse delivered at the interment of the REV. JOHN BODDILY, Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Newburyport, who deceased Nov. 4, 1802, in his 48th year. By Daniel Dana. Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Newburyport : 1802." 8vo. pp. 24.

MR. BODDILY was born in Bristol, England, 12 April, 1755, was son of MR. THOMAS BODDILY, a minister. He began to preach in London, Sept. 1778 ; afterwards preached in Westbury, Eng., from 1780 to 1789 ; thence he went to Walsal, thence to Wallingford. In 1795 he left Wallingford for America, and arrived in Newburyport, July, of the same year, and was installed over the Second Church, June 1797. He preached his last Sermon 19 Sept. 1802. He was succeeded by the Rev. John Giles.

BARTLETT.—"A Sermon in commemoration of WILLIAM BARTLETT, Esq., an associate Founder of the Theological Seminary in Andover, delivered before the Trustees and Visitors, the Faculty and Students of the Institution, April 19, 1841. By Daniel Dana, D. D.; a member of the Board of Trustees. Andover: 1841." 8vo. pp. 36.

MR. BARTLETT was born in Newbury, 31 January 1748, and there lived, and died 8 February 1841, aged 93. Nothing is said in this Sermon about the history of his family, nor is the name of his father stated.

BRADFORD.—"Obituary Notice of REV. JOHN BRADFORD, with a brief Historical Sketch of the Congregational Churches in Roxbury. Boston:" [1825?]

Though this Tract is entitled an "Obituary Notice," &c., the time of Mr. Bradford's death is not stated in it; but from the Extract concerning the Churches it is found recorded that he died January 27th, 1825, in the 69th year of his age and 40th of his ministry. On the second page of this Tract it is stated that it is an "Extract from a Sermon delivered on the Sabbath succeeding the interment of the Rev. John Bradford."

MR. BRADFORD was a native of Boston, and was born here in August, 1756, and was the oldest of three sons, graduated at Harvard College 1774, ordained at Roxbury, May, 1785. Whose son he was, or whether he had, or left any family, cannot be learned from the Tract.

CUTLER.—The firm Belief of a future Reward a powerful Motive to Obedience and a good Life.—A Sermon Preached at Christ's Church in Boston, August 20, 1765. At the Funeral of the REV. TIMOTHY CUTLER, D. D., late Rector of said Church. By Henry Caner, A. M., Minister of King's Chapel. Published at the Request of the Wardens and Vestry of Christ's Church. Boston: 1765. 4to. pp. 24.

"For above thirty years, I suppose, he was scarce detained a day by sickness or such like accident from officiating in the public duties of the Church; but for the last nine years he lay under an incapacity for public service." "He was born and educated in this neighborhood," was called to the ministry "in a neighboring government, and was called to preside over a seminary of learning," and had then a large and increasing family."

CROSS.—"Grace and Glory," &c.—"A Sermon preached at the Presbyterian Church in Newburyport, Jan. 26, 1788, occasioned by the death of MR. RALPH CROSS, on the 4th of that month, æ. 82. By John Murray, A. M., Pastor of said Church. Newburyport:" [1788.] 8vo. pp. 66.

MR. CROSS was born in Ipswich, "of honest and industrious parents," 14 August, 1706; was early apprenticed to a shipwright, which business he learned and followed. He married Miss Sarah Johnson, daughter of him with whom he learned his trade in Newburyport. She proved an excellent wife, and a pattern of female excellence. She died on the 13th June, 1787, in the 79th year of her age, having lived with her husband nearly fifty-nine years. Mr. Cross stood firm on the side of the Patriots of the Revolution. He was also a great friend of religion, and promoted it by his example and munificence. He gave the Rev. Mr. Jonathan Parsons a house and lot, on his coming to settle at Newburyport. He left four loving and dutiful children, with their rising families. MRS. MARTHA NOWELL, the youngest of the four, died the next day after her father, and was buried with him in the same grave; æ. 39. Within twenty-one months were carried to the grave, from "that one house, four adult persons. Miss SARAH CROSS, an elder sister of hers, was the first in this list; a woman the most remarkable for sagacity and virtue that ever I saw, in her peculiar circumstances."

COOPER.—“A Sermon delivered at the Church in Brattle street, Jan. 2, 1774, at the Interment of the REV. SAMUEL COOPER, D. D., who expired Dec. 29, 1783. By John Clarke, A. M., Junior Pastor of the First Church in Boston. Boston: 1784.” 8vo. pp. 35.

DR. COOPER was the second son of the Rev. William Cooper, who died in Dec. 1743, and was born 28 March, 1725; ordained 25 May, 1746, as colleague with Dr. Colman, in which office his father was installed just thirty years before. Made D. D. by the University of Edinburgh; among the foremost in instituting the American Academy in 1780. Like Dr. Mayhew he took an early and decided stand with the Patriots of the Revolution, and had a hand in forming the Constitution of Massachusetts. When that Constitution was ratified, he was appointed to introduce it by a discourse; which, with others of his writings, have been printed in several languages.

CARY.—“A Sermon delivered Nov. 26, 1808, at the Interment of the REV. THOMAS CARY, A. M., Senior Pastor of the First Religious Society in Newburyport. By John Andrews, A. M., surviving Pastor. Newburyport: 1808.” 8vo. pp. 46.

Dedicated “to the Widow and Sons of the REV. THOMAS CARY.” He lived in High street, and was buried 26 Nov. 1808, from his house. The order of the Procession was as follows:—Members of the Merrimack Humane Society. Preceptor and Trustees of Dummer Academy. Parishioners of the deceased Clergy. Pall supporters—Rev. Mr. Morss, Rev. Mr. Dana, Rev. Mr. Giles, Rev. Mr. Popkin, Rev. Mr. Milton, Rev. Dr. Spring. Mourners—Inhabitants of the Town and Strangers.

MR. CARY was son of SAMUEL CARY, Esq., of Charlestown, where he was born, 18 Oct. 1845; H. C. 1761; ord. 11 May, 1768; died on the morning of November 24th, in the 64th year of his age.

GREEN.—“A Sermon delivered at Mansfield, July 31, 1808, being the fourth Lord’s Day after the Interment of the REV. ROLAND GREEN, Pastor of the Church in that town; who died July 4th, 1808, in the 71st year of his age, and 47th of his ministry. By Stephen Palmer, A. M. Pastor of the First Church in Needham. Dedham: 1808.” 8vo. pp. 34.

“An endearing friendship long subsisted between MR. GREEN and my father, the Rev. Joseph Palmer. MR. GREEN was born in Malden, grad. H. C. 1758; before he was 24, namely, in 1761, he was ord. over the Church in Mansfield. He died suddenly of apoplexy. My father was ord. 3 Jan. 1753; d. 4 April, 1791, in the 62d year of his age, and 39th of his ministry. Mr. Palmer’s widow survived him a little over fifteen years; she d. 20 May, 1806, æ. 72. Mr. Green attended her funeral.

GRISWOLD.—“A Sermon, preached April 8th, 1788, at the Interment of Madam URSULA GRISWOLD, Consort of his Excellency MATTHEW GRISWOLD, Esq. By John Devotion, A. M., Minister of the Third Church in Saybrook. [Ct.] Newhaven: 1788.” 8vo. pp. 27.

Addressing the bereaved husband, Mr. Devotion says: “You, Sir, through God’s mercy have had the happiness of connection with a family, and long enjoyment of a consort, the daughter of the Hon. Roger Wolcott, Esq., Governor of the then Colony of Connecticut, whose great powers of mind, joined to assiduous application and improved integrity, opened to him the way to the highest seat of honor in this then Colony.” In a note is the following Family Record of Roger Wolcott: “1. Roger, b. 14 Sept. 1704, deceased; 2. Elizabeth, b. 10 April, 1706, deceased; 3. Alexander, b. 20 Jan. 1708, deceased; 4. Samuel, b. 9 Jan. 1710, deceased; 5. Alexander, b. 7 Jan. 1712; 6. —, still b. 10 Dec. 1713; 7. Sarah, b. 21 Jan. 1715, deceased ; 8. Hepzibah, b. 23 June, 1717, deceased ; 9. Josiah, b. 19 Feb. 1719 ; 10. Epaphras ; 11. Erastus, (twins) b. 8 Feb. 1721, deceased ; 12. Erastus, b. 21 Sept. 1722 ; 13. URSULA, [the subject of this Discourse] b. 13 Oct. 1724, deceased ; 14. Oliver, b. 20 Nov. 1726 [Signer of the Declaration of Independence] ; 15. Mary Anne, b. 1 Jan. 1730." The mother of Mrs. Griswold was Sarah, dau. of Mr. Job Drake, of Windsor, Ct., who was son of Job, son of John who came from England, probably with Mr. Hooker. Her mother was Elizabeth Cook, dau. of Daniel Clark ; her grandmother was Mary, dau. of Henry Walcott, the ancestor of her husband.—MS appended to the Sermon.

GOKE.—“ A Sermon concerning the laying the Deaths of others to heart. Occasioned by the lamented Death of that ingenious and religious Gentleman JOHN GORE, M. A. of Harvard College in Cambridge, N. E., who died of the Small Pox, Nov. 7, 1720. In the 38th year of his age. By William Cooper, A. M., Pastor to a Church in Boston. With an Appendix containing something of Mr. Gore's character, by the Reverend Mr. Colman, Pastor of the same Church.—[Text] Eccl. ix. 5. Boston : 1720.” pp. 40. 12mo.

“ The following Sermon was prepared for the Pulpit, not the Press. The Death of Mr. John Gore which occasioned it, was as generally lamented a Death, as has of late been among us. There were several of his near Relations and Mournful Friends in the Assembly to which it was preached.”—Preface.

“ Mr. Gore was truly an Ornament to his Country, to the College, to the Town and to our Church. He was very much the Honor of his Order among us, a Glory to his Profession, the beauty of the Sea. Sobriety, Modesty, Literature ; and (in a judgement of Charity) sincere unaffected Piety make up his just Character. He was fit to teach either in the School or in the Pulpit. He was the same abroad as at home. In his ship as well as in his house. To conclude, the last act of his life showed his generous regard to the safety of his country : for knowing well the terror that the Town is in of the Small Pox, and having had seven of his company ill of that contagious distemper on his voyage from London, he being the only person remaining on board who had not had the distemper when he cast anchor, and having reason hourly to expect he might be taken down with it, as the next day he indeed was ; yet he would not come ashore to his own house and bed, but chose to keep on board his ship, in so cold a season of the year, and at such a distance from needed help, rather than to endanger the Town by bringing the Sickness into it.”—Dr. Colman's Appendix. The Doctor adds also an observation by Mr. Prince from the News Letter. He says Mr. Gore “ seemed to be set as a rare example for all Ship-Commanders and seafaring men to observe ; that he excelled in Mathematics and Philosophy.” ibid. “ A young gentleman, who came over a passenger with Mr. Gore, wrote to his brother from Spectacle Island, 15 Nov. 1720, spoke in the highest terms of his “ dearly beloved Captain.”

GREENE.—“ A Sermon Preached in Trinity Church, at the Funeral of THOMAS GREENE, Esq., August 5, 1763. By William Hooper, A. M., Minister of said Church. Boston : 1763.” 4to. pp. 34.

It is stated in a note on page 33, that Mr. Greene “ died at a friend's house in the country, many miles from Boston, where he had gone for the recovery of his health.” We learn also that his wife was a widow with several children when he married her, and his “ own children ” are spoken of. A most excellent character is given him ; that his “ trade and business were large and extensive;" that the "welfare of the Town and the prosperity of Trade were not the only objects of his concern." He gave £500 towards the support of an Episcopal minister, whose duty it should be to supply churches, and especially Trinity Church, when the regular Minister was prevented by sickness or otherwise from performing his duties. This gift, though not mentioned in his will, the family cheerfully allowed, knowing he had signified such intention. The heirs were six in number, and "their much respected Mother undertakes for two of them, that are under age."

HANCOCK.—"The untimely Death of a Man of God lamented.—In a Sermon preached at the Funeral of the Rev. Mr. JOHN HANCOCK, Pastor of the First Church of Christ in Braintree; who died May 7th, 1744. Ætatis suæ 42. By Ebenezer Gay, A. M., Pastor of a Church in Hingham. Boston: 1744." 8vo. pp. 25.

"Your former Pastor, the Rev. Mr. Joseph Marsh, whose memory is precious to you, died when about the same age. The breach made in the afflicted family is still wider. O! the bitterness of their sorrow, who are mourning for their first-born! The aged, venerable father, and virtuous mother of the deceased, had scarce dried their eyes for the premature Death of one of their lovely sons, before another is taken away from them; this was MR. EBENEZER HANCOCK, a very ingenious and serious young man, and well qualified Minister, who served as a son with his father in the gospel, six years, and died January 28th, 1739–40, æ. 29." MRS. HANCOCK was widow of Mr. Samuel Thaxter of Hingham. [Her name was MARY, dau. of James Hawke. She was Mr. Thaxter's second wife. See Lincoln's Hist. Hingham, 47.]

HILLHOUSE.—"A Sermon concerning the Life, Death and Future State of Saints, on the Mournful Occasion of the much lamented Death of that late Ingenious, Pious and Virtuous Gentlewoman, RACHEL HILLHOUSE, of Free Hall, and County Londonderry, Ireland; who died January 7th, 1716. By James Hillhouse, A. M. Minister of the Gospel. Boston: 1721." 18mo. pp. 134.

The Preface to this little volume is signed by Increase and Cotton Mather. It is dated, 31 Dec. 1720. They say in it that the Author was "a worthy, hopeful young minister," educated at the University of Glasgow in Scotland,—read divinity there under Mr. Simson; that about two or three years ago he was ordained by the Revd Presbytery of Londonderry in Ireland; and that he was lately arrived in America; and having lost a gracious mother, takes an opportunity here to publish what he wrote there on that occasion. All that can be learned from the Sermon about Mrs. Hillhouse, the Author's mother, is, that she was "wife to the late Mr. John Hillhouse of Tree Hall."

HOPKINS.—"Dying Recollections of a Faithful Minister."—A Sermon, preached in the New South Meetinghouse, Salem, Dec. 25th, 1814, on the Sabbath after the Interment of the Rev. Daniel Hopkins, D. D. Senior Pastor of the Third Church in Salem. By the Rev. Brown Emerson, A. M., Pastor of said Church. Salem: 1815." 8vo. pp. 28.

DR. HOPKINS was born in Waterbury, Ct. 16 Oct. 1734. The famous DR. SAM'L HOPKINS of Newport, R. I., was his elder brother. He entered Yale C. 1754, grad. 1758, settled in Salem, Ms. 1766; was one of the framers of the Mass. Missionary Society. He died on Wednesday morning, at six o'clock, 14 Dec. 1814, in the 81st year of his age. His last sermon was preached on the first Sabbath in October preceding.

‡ It is with pleasure that we now bear testimony to the accuracy of the statement made by the Editor of the Gen. Reg. in a Note. Vol. VII. p. 270—Mary, the wife of the Hon. John Bulkley, was the veritable daughter of Rev. Eliphalet Adams of New London. But it does not follow that the author of the memoir referred to was mistaken as to the name of Mrs. Bulkley. For it is nevertheless true that he married Mary Gardner, she having first, 13 Nov. 1733, become the wife of Doctor Jonathan, and 7 Oct. 1734, the mother of his first born and only son, John. Dr. Jonathan Gardner, having been lost at sea, 1735, his wid., Mary Gardner, as before stated, became the wife of the Hon. John Bulkley.

1715; Mercy, 24 Oct. 1716, who married the Rev. Nathaniel Eells, of Stonington, Conn. 1733.

The venerable Judge John Cushing deceased on the 19th day of Jan. 1738. Under this date the Rev. Josiah Cotton of Plymouth thus enlarges on the character of this truly eminent man, as recorded on page 259 of his very excellent Annals, an unpublished manuscript of ancestral memoirs and notices of cotemporaries. "I have lost some valuable friends in my day, and this year he to whom I very much owe my advancement has gone off the stage,—Col. Cushing, who had been chief justice of our inferior court, and a councillor of the province for many years, and a judge of the supreme court, died 19 Jan., and was buried 25 Jan., to whom, among others, I was a bearer. He was a gentleman well versed in law, the life and soul of our court while he continued in it, a man in the main of justice and integrity. He was above seventy years old when he died, and retained his faculties tolerably well to his last sickness. When the aged and the honorable are taken away we ought to be sensibly affected, and earnestly pray that others may be raised up in their stead, that may do well and worthily in their day. At the ensuing election his eldest son, and our father-in-law, was chosen a councillor in his father's room, and God grant that he may, according to expectations, fill up the vacancy by a long and faithful continuance in the service of his country. His introduction into the office was attended with a more unanimous vote than any ever before had, having all the votes save one. At the same election Judge Dudley, a man of superior parts and abilities was chosen, having all the votes save two, but it was negatived by the governor, (Belcher,) and the country thereby deprived of his services; the council weakened," etc.

CUSHING, THOMAS, the second son of Hon. John Cushing, was born at Scituate, 26 Dec. 1663; married Deborah, a daughter of Capt. John Thaxter, 17 Oct. 1687; became a member of the First Church in Boston 1688, on the records of which his name is called "Cushion;" member of the Ancient and Hon. Artillery Company in 1691, an ensign in 1709. In March, 1705, removed with his wife to the Brattle street Church; selectman of Boston in 1723; representative from 1724 to '35 of the King's State Council. In 1725 was one of the opponents of the explanatory charter of King George 1st. His children were John, 6 Sept. 1688, baptized in the First Church. The following were baptized by Cotton Mather in the Second Church: Thomas, 30 Jan. 1693; Jonathan, 13 March, 1701; Hannah, 12 Jan. 1702, married Thomas Hill, Esq. 13 July, 1727; Margaret, 5 July, 1696, married William Fletcher, 27 May, 1717; Elizabeth, 4 Nov. 1691, married Rev. Jonathan Cushing of Dover, N. H. 24 Oct. 1717; Deborah, 17 June, 1699; Samuel, 7 Jan. 1794, died 4 June, 1706; Deborah, wife of Hon. Mr. Cushing, died 16 Feb. 1712. He married, second time, the widow Mercy Bridgham, whose name was Wensley, 8 Dec. 1712, and deceased 3 Oct. 1740. In Suffolk Probate Records, of that period, the Family Coat of Arms is appraised at twenty shillings. His widow died April 1746, and bequeathed her estate to the children of HER FIRST HUSBAND, Joseph Bridgham.

CUSHING, Rev. CALEB, was the sixth child of Hon. John Cushing, who was one of the governor's assistants in 1688, and married Sarah, a daughter of Mathew Hawke, a town clerk of Hingham. Caleb Cushing, the subject of this outline, was born at Scituate 6 Jan. 1672; graduated at Harvard College in 1692; entered the ministry and was ordained pastor of the church in Salisbury 1697; married Elizabeth, a daughter of Rev. John Cotton, widow of Rev. James Alling of Salisbury, 14 March, 1698. The Hon. Caleb Cushing, member of President Pierce's Cabinet, is a lineal descendant of this family. The children of Rev. Caleb Cushing were: Caleb, born 10 Oct. 1703; James, 25 Nov. 1705; John, 10 April, 1709; Joanna, who married Elias Pike of Salisbury; Mary, who married John Appleton of Ipswich; and Elizabeth, who married Rev. Joshua Moody of the Isle of Shoals.

We find in Cotton's Annals the following pertinent remarks of Rev. Caleb Cushing to Rev. John Cotton, transcribed from his letter addressed to him, under date Salisbury, 4 Oct. 1742: "The times are now much like those in the last century, when so many New Lights and new doctrines, and corrupt errors, threatened to overrun the country. Indeed, the many trances, visions, and dreams, and wild ecstasies and enthusiastic freaks and frenzies which have abounded in some places, have cast a great damp on the work, much cooled the fiery zealots, and we hope God in mercy will prevent the growth of those errors which seem to be creeping in apace, such as enthusiasm, antinomianism, familism, deism, quakerism, etc., and spare his people, and not give his heritage to reproach. But whatever design the adversary may have against these churches by these unaccountable extravagancies and wild commotions, yet I hope God, who can bring good out of evil, and light out of darkness, will overrule all these things for the revival of religion, awakening both ministers and people, and the further growth and establishment in the truth; and not suffer blind zealots nor men of corrupt minds to proceed any further, when their folly shall be manifest to all men." He also alludes to "some wandering stars, which by their fiery aspect startle and affright men, rather than enlighten and instruct them." We find his signature among the numerous signers of documents in 1745 unfavorable to the itineracy of Whitfield, and endorsing the proceedings of Harvard College, in 1744, in relation to his career. Mr. Cushing was one of the thirty-nine clergymen who addressed a letter to Governor Dudley, 11 Nov. 1707, recommending the election of John Leverett, a layman, to the presidency of Harvard College "to his favorable acceptance." We have seen a crown twelve mo. pocket Bible, London edition, published by Charles Bill in 1700, containing the autographs of Rev. Caleb Cushing, dated 1710, and of his son, the Rev. James Cushing, dated 1752, with texts marked throughout, from which probably both father and son have preached, and by which we find indications of the character of their minds. This copy is now in the hands of a grand-daughter of the son, who was long pastor of a church in Haverhill, Mass. It was rebound by D. Gooking, at Boston, June, 1744, and was transmitted to the son on the decease of the Rev. Caleb Cushing, which occurred 25 Jan. 1752, at the age of eighty years. He was the pastor of the church in Salisbury during the period of fifty-six years. We know not the man in the county of Essex who has moulded a broader and deeper influence on the minds of the people than our venerable divine, yet we have examined in vain the public catalogues for his productions. Mr. Cushing left one son in the magistracy, and two sons in the ministry. It was said of him in the Boston Evening Post, that "he was of excellent natural parts; judgment and memory, which so rarely meet, yet met in him in so eminent degrees that it was not easy to say in which he excelled, and at the same time he had the easiest and happiest temper, and the most benign soul." He was a learned, solid divine, and of exemplary conversation. He was condescending, prudent, benevolent, and a wise counsellor, remarkable for hospitality.

CUSHING, JOHN, JR., the eldest son of Hon. Judge John Cushing, was born at Scituate 17 July, 1695. He resided at Belle House in Scituate; was the town clerk from 1719 to '44; was judge of probate, Plymouth Co., 1739; was judge of Massachusetts superior court from 1747 to '71. He married Elizabeth Holmes, a daughter of his father's second wife, 1 April, 1717, and had Deborah, 16 Nov. 1718, who married David Stockbridge; Sarah, 26 March, 1720, married Ebenezer Pierpont 16 Aug. 1750; John, 16 Aug. 1722; William, 23 Sept. 1720, died early.

His wife died 13 March, 1726. He married the second time, Mary, a daughter of Josiah Cotton of Plymouth, 1729, by whom his children were: Mary, 6 Sept. 1736, who married Rev. Ebenezer Gay of Hingham, 10 Nov. 1763; William, 1 March, 1732. As this son became the most eminent of all the Cushing family, we will dwell somewhat on his character and services. He graduated at Harvard College in 1751; studied law with Jeremiah Gridley; was attorney general of this State; judge of probate, Pownalboro', Lincoln Co., Maine, 1768; was judge of the Mass. superior court, 1772; was judge of the supreme judicial court in 1782—was the only judge that adhered to our great revolution in 1777, and was the first chief justice of the State under the constitution in 1788. In 1789 he was nominated by Washington for chief justice of the U. S. supreme court, which honor he declined. In 1788 he was an elector of President and Vice President of the U. S. In the same year he was vice president of the Massachusetts Convention; was a founder and a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1780. In 1794, when he was the rival candidate for governor of Massachusetts in opposition to Samuel Adams, it was said of him by John Adams: "I shall be happier if Cushing succeeds, and the State will be more prudently conducted." In person he was small of stature, and wore a three-cornered hat and small clothes, with buckles on his shoes. He was an eloquent speaker and invincible at town meetings. His residence in Scituate was at the southeast of Walnut Tree Hill. He married Hannah Phillips of Middletown, Conn., but had no descendant, and died 7 Sept. 1810.

The Hon. John Cushing, jr. had a large family. His next child was Charles, 13 Aug. 1734; Edward, 1736, who died the same year; Hannah, 2 Sept. 1738, married Rev. Samuel Baldwin of Hanover, 4 Jan. 1756; Bethiah, 29 March, 1740, married Abraham Burbank of West Springfield; Roland, 26 Feb. 1750; Lucy, married Thomas Aylwin, Esq., 11 Sept. 1771; Abigail.

Judge Cushing was one of the presiding judges at the trial of the British soldiers for the massacre in Boston, 5 March, 1770, and his original manuscript of argument on this memorable occasion is in the possession of a descendant, with other ancestral documents. He died at Scituate 19 March, 1778.

CUSHING, NATHANIEL, the sixth child of Hon. John Cushing, was born at Scituate 9 July, 1709; graduated at Harvard College 1728; married Mary Pemberton 23 Oct. 1729, and died 22 Nov. 1729. We find no further information regarding him. His name is designated on Prince's catalogue of subscribers, among twenty-eight who deceased during the long period in which he was engaged in obtaining patrons for his work.

CUSHING, THOMAS, the second son of Hon. Thomas Cushing, was born at Boston 30 Jan. 1693; graduated at Harvard College in 1711; was a member of the Brattle Street Church in 1713, dismissed to the Old South Church, on the erection of the new edifice, in 1730; was a Boston representative in 1735, and engaged in mercantile pursuits. We have seen an original day-book used by Mr. Cushing, from which we extract these passages: "Expence Dr to Samuel Pitcher for Shaving myself and (two) sons, a' Jan. 24, 1738 to July 24, 1740, £12." "Expence Dr etc. for a Wigg for my son Neddy, £6." Mr. Cushing was speaker of the house of representatives from 1742 to '46. He was frequently moderator of town meetings, and especially on the occasion when Boston voted thanks, 3 Sept. 1742, to Peter Faneuil, Esq., for the gift of the Market House and Town Hall. He married Mary, a daughter of Edward Bromfield, 4 June, 1724. Their children were: Thomas, 24 March, 1725, who became an active leader of the revolution; Edward, 29 Nov. 1727; Mary, 6 Oct. 1728; Elizabeth, baptized 14 Oct. 1733. Mr. Cushing died 11 April, 1746. It is eulogy enough of this eminent merchant to quote the language of his pastor, the immortal Thomas Prince, who remarked of him, in the funeral sermon occasioned by his decease: "I found that in a small, relaxed and feeble body there dwelt a great, a lively, a strong and well composed soul." His widow died 30 Oct. 1746, aged fifty years. The Boston News Letter of that period states that "she fell down dead in her chamber alone." It is a strong indication that Thomas Cushing knew how to appreciate the inestimable public advantage of Prince's Chronology, as he was a subscriber for twelve copies of the work, and only one person gave his name for a larger number. This was Mr. Jonathan Whitney of Wrentham, who engaged twenty-four copies. Will some one who bears the name contribute his biography?

CUSHING, JOB, a son of Mathew Cushing of Hingham, who married Jael, a daughter of Capt. John Jacob, 31 Dec. 1684, was born 19 July, 1694, and graduated at Harvard College in 1714. He entered the ministry, and was ordained as the first pastor of the first church in Shrewsbury, 4 Dec. 1723, and married Mary, a daughter of Rev. John Prentice of Lancaster, 16 March, 1727, and, according to Ward, resided on house lot No. 22, "granted to the first minister, which, with other grants made to him, contained some of the best lands in the town." He died very suddenly, 6 Aug. 1760. His widow died 27 May, 1798, at the age of ninety. Their children were: Job, 1 Jan. 1728; Jacob, 17 Feb. 1730; Mary, 25 Jan. 1731, who died 1 April, 1740; Bridget, 4 Dec. 1734, who died 6 April, 1740; John, 10 Sept. 1737, who died 1740; Mary, 24 March, 1741, married Nathan Stone of Yarmouth, (now Dennis) 17 Oct. 1765—three of their grand-children were lost off Cape Cod in 1814; John, 22 Aug. 1744; Bridget, 12 Sept. 1746, who died early. We refer our readers to Ward's Shrewsbury Families for particulars of the descendants of Rev. Job Cushing. Two of his sons graduated at Harvard College and entered the ministry; the eldest of whom, Jacob, became pastor of the church at Waltham, and John was settled at Ashburnham, Mass. A blessing forever rests on the memory of the father and his sons.—[Communicated by MR. JAMES S. LORING.]

"ELIOT, ANDREW, JR.—Student at Harvard Col." was b. 25 Dec. 1718; grad. H. C. 1737. He was settled over New North Church in Boston, 14 April, 1742, and d. 13 Sept. 1778. He received degree of D. D. from Edinburgh, 1767.

HUNTINGTON, HEZEKIAH, of Norwich. **Simon*<sup>1</sup> is supposed to be the ancestor of the numerous families in New England of the name of Huntington. He was a native of Norwich, in England, and embarked for Saybrook, Conn., in 1639, in company with Mr. Fenwick. He was accompanied by his three sons, Simon<sup>2</sup>, Christopher<sup>2</sup>, and Samuel<sup>2</sup>. as appears, the only child of Wm. Lewis of Newtown (Cambridge) Hartford, Hadley and Farmington. He (Capt. Wm.) m. (1) Mary Hopkins, dau. of the wife of Richard Whitehead of Windsor, Ct.; (2) Mary Cheever, 22 Nov. 1671, dau. of the famous schoolmaster Ezekiel C., and died 18 Aug. 1690, at Farmington. His widow (the mother of Ezekiel) m. dea. Thomas Bull of Farmington, 3 Jan. 1692, and d. 10 Jan. 1728, aged 87 or 88.

Wm. Lewis, the father of Capt. Wm. and grandfather of Ezekiel, belonged to the Braintree Company which, in 1632, removed from Braintree to Cambridge; thence, about 1636, to Hartford; about 1659 to Hadley, which town he represented in the General Court, 1662; from thence to Farmington, where he died, Aug. 1683. His wife (Felix) died at Hadley, 17 April, 1671.

WENTWORTH CORRECTION.

The following corrections and comments upon an article in the October number of the Register, 1853, page 304, should be inserted to make history right: The April number, 1853, page 129, says Margaret Vaughan d. of George and Elizabeth (Elliot) Vaughan, was born 21st August 1705, and died 9th September, 1706. This corresponds with April number, 1851, page 245, where your correspondent gives her birth the same, and says she died young. Now, this same correspondent says:—"Abigail Vaughn. [sister] born 11 March, 1709, married ——— Wentworth." Now, the third wife of Hunking<sup>4</sup> Wentworth, of Portsmouth, was Margaret Vaughan, who died 25th Feb'y, 1788, in her 78th year. This Abigail was only a mistake for a second Margaret. So there was no Abigail Vaughan for Gov. Benning Wentworth to marry. The story of his marrying Anne Estwick is without authority except the poorest of tradition, which amounts to nothing against the Boston Records, which say that Benning Wentworth married Abigail daughter of John Ruck of Boston, 31st December, 1719. She was baptized 17th Sept. 1699. The Records of the Second Church of Boston give the following baptism of Gov. Benning's two oldest children: John, son of Abigail Wentworth, 29th January, 1720-1; Benning, son of do, 1st July, 1722. Gov. Benning had another son, Foster, who was probably baptized at Portsmouth. She died 8th Nov. 1755, and there is neither evidence nor even tradition that he had a wife afterwards, until he married Miss Hilton. Gov. Benning had no children who lived to be married.

Your correspondent, in same October for 1853, thinks, because Paul Wentworth of Rowley, Mass., was uncle to the children of Benjamin and Sarah Barnard of Watertown, Mass., that Mrs. Barnard was daughter of Elder William Wentworth. The only daughter of Elder William, yet discovered, is Elizabeth, wife of Richard Tozier or Tozer. If the truth is ever discovered in this matter, I think it will appear that Catharine, wife of Paul Wentworth, was a Barnard.

The origin of the following Wentworths in that article have yet to be traced out. James Wright and Mary Wentworth married 24th Sept. 1712; Caleb Philips and Elizabeth Wentworth, 31st Dec. 1730; Humphrey Scarlett and Mary Wentworth, 11th Sept. 1733.

GENEALOGICAL ITEMS RELATING TO THE EARLY SETTLERS OF DOVER, N. H.

[Communicated by Rev. ALONZO H. QUINT, M. N. E. Hist. Gen. Soc.]

ROBERTS, THOMAS,<sup>2</sup> son of Thomas,<sup>1</sup> as above, had a wife Mary ; he lived on the homestead and appears to have died there. Of his cruel treatment of the Quakers while he and his brother John were constables we have already spoken. He filled various other town offices as did his father and brother. We can find trace of but two children,

THOMAS,<sup>3</sup> who died unmarried, and NATHANIEL,<sup>3</sup> but there were probably others, and perhaps some of those whose connection with the family we cannot identify for want of evidence.

JOHN,<sup>2</sup> son of Thomas,<sup>1</sup> as above, married Abigail, daughter of Elder Hatevil Nutter ; she was living in 1674 and was mentioned in the will of her father ; John is often called "Sergeant John ;" he owned land near that upon which his father lived, and probably lived upon it ; he was certainly a resident of the "Neck," and owned land also west of Back River as well as marsh near the Great Bay. He was a delegate to the N. H. Convention, which met in 1689.

There are records of other "Roberts" families which we cannot connect with those already mentioned nor with each other, although it is almost certain that they were thus connected. These were, William, who was a resident of Oyster River apparently as early as 1645 when he witnessed a deed given by Darby Field, of premises in that region. He was there in 1648: he had grants of land at various times,—and was killed by the Indians in 1675 at the same time with his "son-in-law." Whether or no he had sons, we cannot ascertain.

There was a John, and Deborah, who had children, Joanna b. 20 Oct. 1705; Sarah b. 18 Feb. 1708—9; Mary b. 20 July 1711; Phebe b. 20 Sept. 1716; Ebenezer b. 5 Feb. 1721—2.

JOHN and Francis Emery were married 17 May 1720, and had children, Deborah and Alexander b. 15 January 1725—6.

STARBUCK, EDWARD, born in 1604, is said to have come to Dover, from Derbyshire, England. He is first mentioned as receiving, 30 6 mo, 1643, a grant of forty acres of land on each side of "Fresh River," "at Cutchechoe, next above the lot of John Baker at the little water brooke, and also 1 platt of Marsh above Cutchechoe great Marsh that the brook that runs out of the great river runs through, first discovered by" Richard Walderne, Edward Colcord, Edward Starbuck, and William Furber. He had other grants at different times; one of marsh in Great Bay in 1643, one of the mill privilege at Cutchechoe 2d falls (with Thomas Wiggins) and of timber to "accommodate" in 1650, and various others. Indeed, Edward owned considerable land, and was evidently a man of substance as to possessions, as tradition says he was in body. He was a Representative in 1643 and 46, was an Elder in the church, and enjoyed various other tokens of respect given him by his fellow citizens. In fact he might have lived very comfortably at Dover, and died in the midst of his family, respected and contented, but that he embraced Baptist sentiments: unable to agree with the people he left, though not until after after legal difficulties; so in 1659 the Elder went off on an exploring expedition. In the course of his travels he met Thomas Macy and his family, (then troubled with a somewhat similar inability to convince the people of Newbury,) James Coffin (a youth of about nineteen,) and Isaac Colman, a boy of twelve. These adventurers set sail in an open boat in the autumn of 1659, and in due time arrived at the Island of Nantucket, an eligible situation for men who liked plenty of water. They settled first at Matical, but afterwards moved to a more central place now called Cambridge.

The next spring Edward went back to Dover to get his family. His daughters Sarah and Abigail were married and remained in Dover; but his wife Katharine went with him, and Nathaniel, Dorcas, and Jethro, his remaining children. So they settled down peaceably at Nantucket, and Dover lost a good citizen. Edward became a leading man in his new place of abode, being at one time the Magistrate of the Island, and always enjoying the esteem of his fellow islanders. He died 4, 12 mo., 1690.

The children of the elder were Nathaniel,<sup>2</sup> born 1636; Dorcas;<sup>2</sup> Sarah;<sup>2</sup> Abigail<sup>2</sup> and Jethro.<sup>2</sup>

Of these Jethro was killed 27 May 1663 by a cart running over him; the others had families as follows:—

WILL OF GREGORY STONE OF CAMBRIDGE.*

MR. DRAKE,—The documents communicated by me to the last number of the Register I am glad to see so correctly printed ; one of them indeed is done a little too correctly, that is, the mistake in my copy of the Indian Deed—"pease" for peage"—which you was enjoined to see set right in type, comes out an unaltered blunder. I send you for the next number the Will of Gregory Stone, and that of his brother Simon's Wife, Mrs. Sarah Stone ; the latter is somewhat abridged, but the former I wish may be inserted at length, as it is one of the very few papers left by my Ancestor, which the worms and the teeth of time have not devoured, and lies at the foundation of the Genealogy of his race, by his humble descendant of the seventh generation,

WM. F. STONE.

"In the name of God,—Amen. I GREGORY STONE of Cambridge in New England, being through the Lord's favor of sound Judgement and memory, do make & ordeine my last will & testam<sup>t</sup> in manner following, viz<sup>t</sup>. my imortall soul I do freely resigne into the armes & merces of God my maker, Jesus christ my only redeemer, and to the holy spirit, to cary mee on & lead mee forever, my body to be decently interred at the discreion of my Xian friends. river opposite the mouth of Cochitua brook, further notice may be given when we come to publish his Will. 2. Daniel was "chirurgion," first in Cambridge, then in Boston, where I last find him in a curious suit against a patient in Charlestown, who had neglected or refused to pay the Doctor's bill for cutting off his leg—one item of the bill was "£.30 for going over the ferry 65 times to heal the wound!" No wonder that Ned Johnson demurred at this, thinking doubtless his butcher would have done the business quite as well for half the money. 3. David, settled on the west side of his father's Lexington "Farme," now in the edge of Lincoln, where his descendant Gregory Stone lives on a part of the ancestral estate. 4. Samuel, lived east of his brother David, in the centre of the Stone farm and village, where he and his family took an early and leading part in the settlement of Lexington, the N. Precinct of Cambridge. He was a patron and one of the first deacons of the infant church, with his nephew Dea. John Miriam. He died Sept. 1715, æ. 80½. The Old Sam Stone House, occupied by his posterity till the race run out, was pulled down but a few years since, and the name of Stone has become extinct in the town of Lexington.

* The husband of Sarah Stone, Dea Gregory's youngest daughter, was JOSEPH MIRIAM, of Concord, where he died in 1677, æ. 47; after which his widow seems to have lived with her brother's children in Lexington. "Widow Miriam died 8: 2: 1704." Lex. Chh. Records.

This Will seems to be in the handwriting of Danforth the "Recorder," who was a neighbor of the testator; Mr. D. lived on the E. side of the Common, near the College; Deac. Stone on the W. side, not far, it is believed, from the Botanic Garden. He probably came to America in 1635, the year in which it is certain his brother Simon arrived in the "Increase from London." If they did not come over in the same ship they appeared together the next spring, and took the freeman's oath, May 25th, 1636. This is the first time I find my ancestor's name in the records, though Barry and Ward both speak of him as being here as early as 1634. He was a deputy to the Gen. Court, a magistrate, a deacon of Shepard & Mitchell's church, and "the last survivor" of its original members. Deac. Stone died Nov. 30, 1672, æ. 82.

MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF NEWBURY.

MR. DRAKE :

Dear Sir,—In the year 1678, all the citizens of Massachusetts, from 16 years old and upward, were required to take the oath of allegiance. This was done in the several towns before their respective magistrates, who sent a list of their names to the clerks of the County Courts. Many of these lists are still in existence. One of them, and the only one in the County of Essex which has the ages attached to the names, is in the Clerk's office in Salem, in the very beautiful hand writing of John Woodbridge, Esq., and contains the names of 236 persons, then resident in Newbury. A transcript of Woodbridge's record was made at that time by Robert Lord, Clerk of the writs at Ipswich. It was, I doubt not, from Lord's badly written copy that Mr. Brown transcribed the article in the last number of the Register, [vol. vii. p. 349–50,] entitled "Materials for the history of Newbury." As all those materials, dates as well as names, copied from the original document, have already been published in the history of Newbury, the title, "Materials for a history of Newbury," would be more appropriate.* Should any person be tempted to write another history of Newbury, and use these "materials," he must first correct many mistakes. The most obvious are Hesley, Barlet, Bayly, Petingul, Woolpoorle, Naukam, Bayer, Bautle, Rowle, Seely, Rolph, Carmack, Perse, Glesby, Huddy, Damford, Thomas Hulemir, Pease, Glesley; which should be Ilsley, Bartlet, Bayley, Pettingell, Woolsworth, Warham, Badger, Bartlet, Lowle, Kelley, Rolfe, Curmac, Pierce, Ilsley, Hardy, Danforth, Thomas Hale, jun., Pierce, Ilsley, &c., with more than 30 other mistakes of less consequence, all originating, doubtless, from attempting to transcribe a badly written copy instead of the beautifully written original.

J. COFFIN.

[The EDITOR of the Register is grateful to Mr. Coffin for sending the above corrections, and duly warning all persons of their liability to err if they do not go to the History of Newbury in all matters touching the history of that ancient town; and we here again add our testimony to the great value of Mr. Coffin's work, and caution our Correspondents to step very carefully when they chance to light on any part of "Ould Newbury." It is within our knowledge, that Robert Lord wrote a peculiar odd and crabbed hand, but not a difficult one to read; hence it is not easy to conceive how so great a number of mistakes could have occurred. Hence we slightly incline to the opinion, that the "more than 30 others" in Mr. Coffin's communication must be taken with some trifling allowance for infringement of territory.]

*This Title was sometime ago adopted by the Editor of the Register, as appropriate for any Articles which elucidated or added to the History of Towns, and our Correspondents are not answerable for Titles so bestowed.—[EDITOR.]

INSCRIPTIONS COPIED FROM TOMBSTONES IN THE OLD BURYING GROUND AT PORTLAND, MAINE.

[Communicated by W. G. BROOKS, Esq., Boston.]

Beneath this marble, by the side of his gallant Commander, rest the remains of Lieut. Kervin Waters, a native of Georgetown, District of Columbia, who received a mortal wound Sept. 5, 1813, while a Midshipman on board the U. S. brig Enterprise, in an action with his B. M. brig Boxer, which terminated in the capture of the latter. He languished in severe pain, which he endured with fortitude, until Sept. 25, 1815, when he died with Christian calmness and resignation, aged 18. The young men of Portland erect this stone, as a testimony of their respect for his valor and virtues.

Beneath this stone moulders the body of William Burrows, late Commander of the United States Brig Enterprise, who was mortally wounded on the 5th Sept. 1813, in an action which contributed to increase the fame of American valor, by capturing H. B. M. Brig Boxer, after a severe contest of forty-five minutes, ae. 48. A passing stranger* has erected this monument of respect to the manes of a patriot, who in the hour of peril obeyed the loud summons of an injured country; and who gallantly met, fought and conquered the foe.

In Memory of Captain Samuel Blyth, late Commander of His Britannic Majesty's Brig Boxer. He nobly fell, on the 5th day of Sept., 1813, in action with the U. S. Brig Enterprise. In life honored, in death glorious. His country will long deplore one of her bravest sons! His friends long lament one of the best of men. Ae. 29.

(South side.) In memory of Henry Wadsworth, son of Peleg Wadsworth, Esq., Lieut. in U. S. Navy, who fell before the walls of Tripoli, on the evening of the 4th Sept. 1804, in the 20th year of his age, by the explosion of a Fireship, which he with others gallantly conducted against the enemy; determined at once, they prefer death and the destruction of the enemy, to captivity and torturing slavery.—[Com. I have one life,
That life I give for you.

John Chipman, Esq., Barrister at Law, who was born Oct. 23, A. D. 1722, and died July 1, A. D. 1768, of an apoplexy with which he was suddenly seized in the Court House at Falmouth, while he was arguing a case before the Superior Court of Judicature then sitting. To the remembrance of his great learning, uniform integrity, and humanity and benevolence, this Monument is dedicated, by a number of his brethren of the Bar.

In memory of William Tyng, Esq., formerly Sheriff of Cumberland, afterwards intrusted with repeated offices in the Province of New Brunswick, and late resident in Gorham, where, after a useful life, marked with probity, benevolence and piety, he died in the firm hope of a joyful Resurrection, Dec. 10, 1807, aged 70—greatly lamented by an affectionate widow, who pays this tribute of conjugal love, and by a family of adopted children, to whom he showed more than parental kindness.

Here lies interred the body of Deac. James Milk, who was born in Boston, January, A. D. 1710–11. He removed to Falmouth as soon as he arrived at manhood, and lived there in good reputation, being honored with several offices of trust and importance, which he executed with fidelity. He fell asleep after two days' illness, Nov. 19, A. D. 1772. His bereaved children have erected this Monument as a Testimony of their Remembrance of his parental affection, strict virtues, and exemplary piety.

PEDIGREE OF WALDRON.*

Compiled from Chancery Records in the Tower of London, and from the Parish Register of Alcester, in Warwickshire—by H. G. Somerby, Esq.

Buried at Alcester, 13 Jan. 1590.

* The original name of this family was Walderne. It was spelt Waldern or Walderne by Major Richard W., (see Reg. V, 181), and was changed to Waldron by his son Richard.

† He resided at Dover, N. H., and was Recorder of Maine, &c. He was drowned at Kennebunk, Me. 1647. His daughter Prudence in Richard Scammon. It appears from a pedigree of this family, compiled by Wm. D. Bruce, Esq., from a bill in chancery at Tower of London, and by him furnished to J Wingate Thornton, Esq., that in 1654, W. W. was supposed to be "living in New England, beyond the seas,"—"having issue Christopher and many other children." From this pedigree it also appears that he had a brother Edward, (younger than George), who was "of Alcester, 1650," and "of Kidderminster, Worcester, 20 April, 1658." Felt mentions an Edward Waldron, who died about 14—1. D.

† "Of London, citizen and leather-seller, of St. Bride's parish."—Ibid.

† This date agrees with his own deposition, (aged 43 in 1663), but differs from Belknap, (Hist. N. H., I. 200.) He was killed at Dover, by the Indians, 1689. By two wives, the last of whom was Anne —, (prob. Scammon), he had ch.—1, Paul, d. abt. 1659, in Algiers; 2, Timothy, d. a student at H. C., 3, Richard, b. 1650, d. 3 Nov. 1730; m. 1st, Hannah, dau. of President Cutt—2d, Ellenor, dau. of Maj Wm. Vaughan; 4, Anna, m. Rev. John Gerrish of Dover; 10, Marah, b. 17 July, 1668, and "of Kidderminster, Worcester, 20 April, 1658." Felt mentions an Edward Waldron, who died about 14—1. D.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The History of New England, from 1630 to 1649. By JOHN WINTHROP, Esq., &c.

One of the most marked features of the notes of Mr. Savage, is their peculiar theological bias ; and yet it will probably quite as much puzzle the general reader to form an opinion as to the tenets held by their author, as it has puzzled the biographers of Samuel Gorton to define those of that singular man. One thing, however, is tolerably certain, namely, that the author is a real Ishmaelite among tenets, and it would have been quite as well for his theological reputation if he had let discussions of that nature entirely alone.

On page 5,* Volume I, Mr. Savage says of Isaac Johnson, that he was "formerly regarded as the founder of Boston, where it is not probable that he ever passed a single night." In his first edition his note read, that "this gentleman, who is usually regarded as the founder of Boston," &c. The clause, "where it is not probable that he ever passed a single night," is interpolated in his new edition, and for which he gives no reason whatever ; nor does he refer to Prince's Annals, to which every reader should be referred, in which work, and in Hutchinson's Massachusetts, are to be found statements not to be discredited by a single dash of any modern pen. The matter of Johnson's burial has lately been ably presented in the Daily Evening Transcript of Nov. 4th, 1853.

At page 29 we are informed, "Here is inserted, on a whole page of the original MS., a chart of the shore of Maine, Isles of Shoals, Boone Isle, Cape Ann, etc., with remarks on the appearance of the various landmarks on the several days, depth of water, bottom, bearings, distances, etc."—We are surprised that this should have been omitted by the Editor, and in all deference to his judgment in that capacity, we think we have lost a good deal more by that omission, than if a half dozen pages of the Journal containing those details about monsters, &c., had been omitted. We do not say that we should have omitted even these ; but to omit the only drawing in the whole work is exercising a liberty with the original, which no one could expect to be taken.

In page 39, the Editor speaks of a work of William Aspinwall, as some writers of the present day speak of those who believe the end of the world to be near at hand. Aspinwall published a tract which he entitled "A brief Description of the Fifth Monarchy, or Kingdom that shortly is to come," &c. Mr. Savage says, "Its title-page is garnished with several texts of scripture, distorted in the usual style of that day." What he means by "texts of scripture distorted," he may know, but we confess we do not. Suiting his remarks to his extracts he says, "Proceeding through his inquiries of 'the Sovereign, (Jesus Christ,) subjects, officers, and laws of that Kingdom,' his fanatical vaticination favors us with 'some hint of the time when the Kingdom shall begin,' which he had wit enough to delay so long, that the event might not probably injure the credit of the living soothsayer. 'Know, therefore, that the uttermost durance of Anti-christ's dominion will be in the year 1673, as I have proved from scripture in a brief Chronology, ready to be put forth.' Cromwell, whose power was just then preparing to be established, knew well the dangerous tendency of such jargon, unless when used by himself; but though he applied the civil arm to many other dreamers of King Jesus, I believe he left the New England Seer to the safety of oblivion or contempt." Had the Editor been writing about Cotton Mather, whom he will not allow a shade of honesty or sincerity, we might have expected any kind of "jargon," but such raillery at the meek and sincere Aspinwall, is entirely out of place. He has accused him of hypocrisy, and both unnecessarily and absurdly coupled Cromwell with him in the offence. If Aspinwall were a "dreamer of King Jesus," so was the great Cotton, and so were all of Cotton's true followers.

In a note to "Capt. Mason," p. 266, he goes on to make him the same "Lieut. Mason," who, in 1632, was sent to the eastern coast after a pirate. Now he has no evidence, or if he has he does not produce it, that Capt. John Mason was in the country before 1634-5. There was a Hugh Mason at Watertown, who may have been in the country in 1632, and this was the man, in all probability, who went in pursuit of the pirate. He was denominated "Lieut. Mason," while John Mason of Pequot memory never was, we think, called "Lieut. Mason" in this country.

Regarding the authorship of "A Short Story of the Rise, Reign, and Ruin of the Antinomians, Familists, and Libertines that infected the Churches of New England," &c., in his first edition of Winthrop the Editor charges it upon Thomas Welde, and abuses him in unmeasured terms for the virulence of its contents. Long before he published his second edition, his error in attributing it to Welde was, we have good reason to believe, pointed out to him. Indeed, how one could read the "Short Story," in connection with Winthrop's Journal, and then charge the authorship of the former to Thomas Welde, is, to say the least, most unaccountable, when the authorship of the body of that work is as clearly Winthrop's as his own Journal. And, it may safely be affirmed, that, if Welde wrote the Short Story, he also wrote Winthrop's Journal.

What then should have been the course of the Editor in his new edition of Winthrop? Should he not, in justice to the memory of Mr. Welde, have made some amends for the wrong done him in his first? He has not had the magnanimity to do anything of the kind, but has repeated all he said before, and attempted to fortify it against further attacks. Thus he vaunts in his preface:—"Exposure of the infirmity of unhappy Thomas Welde, in his Short Story of the Rise, Reign and Ruin of Antinomianism, will compensate, I think, the curious hunter in bibliography." This is one of his peculiar sentences, and by it he means, or we understand him to mean, that he has, in further exposing Welde, done something for the reader in bibliography. "Unhappy Thomas Welde." He does not mean by this that Mr. Welde was more unhappy than other men probably. The reader of Mr. Savage's notes will often find that "unhappy" adjective, quite as happily applied to other individuals.

Beginning at page 298, we find about two pages in small type, devoted to "unhappy Thomas Weld." We have seen at different times, all the books remarked upon relative to this subject, and we must acknowledge, after some examination of them, and the Editor's long note upon them also, that we find no reason to charge anything upon Mr. Welde, beyond what he has himself acknowledged; and it is our firm conviction, that whatever

Mr. Welde did, he did under the direction, or by the advice of the dominant party here. And, that the wholesale branding of him by the Editor, amounts only to this, namely,—a determination on his part, to “make out a case.” He should remember, that writing history is one thing, and defending a bad cause before an intelligent jury is another. Unhappily he seems incapable of making the distinction. Sape intereunt aliis meditantes necem.—There is nothing clearer that one has a bad cause, or that he has undertaken on the wrong side, than the fact that he resorts to abuse to sustain his assertions. He charges that, what Mr. Welde wrote and put his name to, was “altogether a pretence on the part of the virulent pamphleteer;” that he was “over cunning” in making false title-pages, “to mystify a heedless observer;” what might have been, and no doubt was, a printer’s error, he calls “a sneaking device” at deception; and in an air of triumph, closes his long note, with, “perhaps the reader may think I have derived too much gratification from disclosing the shameless infirmity or petty malice of the ecclesiastical historian. Let it go for the least skillful of all attempts at deception.”

After all this, we candidly think his “much gratification” will soon be, if it be not already, at an end. The jury of the public will set the matter right in due time, and it would have been prudent for the Advocate to have withheld his exultation until a verdict was rendered; for he should remember, that he is not Judge and Jury too. In an earlier notice of Mr. Welde and his “Short Story,” (page 248), he says, “The work has not, I presume, been often quoted within a century;” and yet we know that it has been very often quoted within a quarter of a century.

The following reflections do not at all harmonize with the manner in which Mr. Welde is handled:—

There is a “strange note” of above a page, beginning on page 306, in which the Annotator goes into the question of the “resurrection of the body.” We can see no other object which he could have had in view, except to let the reader know that he had consulted some learned authors upon that subject; from which we may infer, that his own opinion agreed with that “profound and original philosopher,” Abraham Tucker.

In 1638, a woman was executed at Boston for infanticide, and it is melancholy to consider, that she must have committed the act while in a deranged state of mind. What the following reflection of the Editor has to do with the facts, we are unable to discover. He says, “Perhaps Peter [who merely attended at the execution in his clerical capacity] regretted his treatment of Talby [that being the name of the executed woman] after his own wife was distracted.” [Insane.] Why is Peter singled out in this way, as though he must have been conscious of participating in the murder of a crazy woman? Why are not Wilson and Winthrop arraigned under some misfortune, and taunted in like manner? Was Mr. Peter in fault because his wife became insane? We believe no such charge can be supported by evidence. Mr. Peter (or Peters as his name is more usually written) was an active, and energetic man. He entered into what he believed to be his duty and the will of God; of all such duties he acquitted himself manfully. But our Editor could not divest himself of the rancorous feelings which he had imbibed in reading some of the books about him, the productions of hireling vilifiers, whose name was legion, immediately after the glorious restoration. Mr. Peters perished by the hand of the mercenary murderer, but his memory should be safe in the hands of a faithful historian of New England. The despicable minions of power have injured the reputation of many an honest man in his time. The cause of Peters was the cause of New England, and he perished for doing more than many others had courage to do.

Extremes often meet in the same individual. Few men have more sagacity, probably, to detect minute errors and discrepancies than Mr. Savage, and his opinions upon questionable points of such nature are more worthy to be trusted than family traditions. But this peculiar talent is not ample security that he will never commit some signal blunders himself. We cite a case in point; for the double purpose of showing how easily a very shrewd investigator may blunder; and when he has blundered, how loath he may be to acknowledge it.

In Winthrop's Journal published at Hartford, page 114, is this passage. "Board was at 9 and 10s. the C., carpenters at 3s. the day, and other work accordingly." Mr. Savage had, perhaps before consulting the printed copy, transcribed from the original manuscript—"Bread was at 9 and 10s. the C.; carpenters at 3s. the day," &c. In his over-anxiety continually to find errors in the Hartford copy, he seized upon this as one, but notes, "The MS. looks very much like the reading of the former edition, which was ridiculous." That is, it "was ridiculous" that boards should be sold at 9 and 10s. the hundred feet; while selling bread at those rates was a plain common-sense matter!

But the worst is to come. President Allen, in his notice of Winthrop in his American Biographical Dictionary, playfully pointed out the above blunder of Mr. Savage, and his attention was subsequently called to the correction. Did he make the correction in his new edition? No. Bread is left to disfigure Winthrop's text, and will probably disfigure it until another edition is called for by the Public.

Again. On page 207, under date of 28th of November, 1635, Winthrop records the arrival of "a small Norsey bark, sent out by the Lords Say, &c." To the name Norsey Mr. Savage makes this note. "I never saw this word before; but cannot doubt that it is the same gentilitial as Norwegian, or of the North Country. Norse is common with the "poets and others." Now the Author of this note often pries into Winthrop's "and so forths," and had he given but slight attention to this, he would have found it to contain Lord Brook, Sir Arthur Heslerigge, and Sir Matthew Boynton.* These last named gentlemen were all interested with Lord Say, and were not mentioned by Winthrop by name, as being well enough known in the undertaking. Mr. S. would have found that one of the undertakers of the enterprise lived at Nosely, in Leicestershire, which fact would no doubt have saved him all that tedious journey among the Norwegians to get a "small bark of twenty-five tons" to bring half a dozen emigrants to New England.

We should not omit to notice, in passing, the slur attempted to be cast upon Sir Henry Vane, on whose arrival in Boston, Winthrop thus respectfully and sincerely remarked. "Here came also [in 1635] one Mr. Henry Vane, son and heir to Sir Henry Vane, comptroller of the King's house, who, being a young gentleman [only 23 years of age] of excellent parts, and had been employed by his father, when he was ambassador, in foreign affairs; yet, being called to the obedience of the gospel, forsook honors and preferments of the Court to enjoy the ordinances of Christ in their purity here." Now there never was a man in the country, probably, young or old, from its first settlement to the present time, who conducted himself with more prudence, Christian forbearance, and resignation to what he believed to be his duty, than this "young gentleman" did. The majority of the people thought him more fit for their Governor than any other, and while he was Governor, no one can doubt nor even presume to say that he did not acquit himself to the general satisfaction of the people; and when he was left out of office by a manoeuvre of the minority, his conduct was that of a high-minded and good citizen. Winthrop was his rival, and did not treat him quite so well as he probably wished he had done, several years after. Mr. Vane bore all in silence, and left the country much to the regret of the people, who, on the occasion, showed him every attention in their power. Of this pious and conscientious pilgrim, Winthrop's Editor remarks:—"Few men have done less good with greater reputation than this statesman, whose fame rings in history too loudly to require my aid in its diffusion. The brief but busy exercise of his faculties here, is exhibited with sufficient minuteness by our author, in whose pages is found no deficiency of respect towards the fanatic, who was too much honored, in his early years, when exalted as the rival of the father of Massachusetts."

We will now hear what Winthrop says of Mr. Vane in the beginning of the Antinomian controversy. "The Governor, Mr. Vane, a wise and godly gentleman, held, with Mr. Cotton and many others, the indwelling of the person of the Holy Ghost in a believer," &c. Several years after Mr. Vane had left the country, and some of the Colony's agents were in trouble in England, Winthrop says, "it pleased God to stir up such friends as Sir Henry Vane, who had some time lived at Boston, and though he might have taken occasion against us for some dishonor which he apprehended to have been unjustly put upon him here, yet both now and at other times he showed himself a true friend to New England, and a man of a noble and generous mind." Now we should think that this ought to have kept his Editor quiet, at least.—See Winthrop, ii. 304.

Passing over numerous points open to criticism and animadversion, we shall in the next place dispose of a question which had its rise in a careless blunder. We refer to the question (if it can be called a question) whether or not John Endicott was the first Governor of Massachusetts. In the first place it is proper to state how the blunder arose, by which first Governor was transferred to Winthrop. It will have been seen in the early part of this notice, that Mr. Noah Webster was the Editor of the edition of Winthrop's Journal published at Hartford in 1790; and that in the title-page of that edition, "First Governor of Massachusetts," follows the name of the Author, "John Winthrop, Esq." Now that this was a mere blunder, or inadvertence, will, we think, clearly appear from the following observations:—

First, Mr. Webster was not then a critical writer of history. He had read enough of it to acquire a taste for it, especially for that of New England; that when he supervised Winthrop's Journal he did not write with that precision which he did afterwards. This is evident from the fact of his saying in his preface to the work, that it contained every important occurrence, from Winthrop's first embarking for America to the year 1644. It is only necessary to ask, who would make that assertion now? Mr. Webster says too, that the blanks and omissions in his edition were few and of no considerable consequence. We know from Mr. Webster's own frank confession, that he said this not knowing what the blanks and omissions were, they having been made because the best reader of old manuscripts he could find could not make them out; therefore, how should he know? Other similar inaccuracies in Mr. Webster's short introductory matter might be produced, but these are sufficient to show, that scrupulous exactness in his statements, of certain particulars, was not thought of.

Second,—the superior growth and expansion of the settlement in and about Boston, gave a kind of general impression everywhere, that, as it was certainly the greatest, so it was the first settlement. This general impression led Mr. Webster into his error—there can be no doubt of it. It may be jeered and denied because we say it. That will not be of much advantage towards maintaining so palpable an error. The present Editor of Winthrop thinks, and we believe he has said, that the spot, including Boston and its immediate vicinity, is the paradise of the world. This is not mentioned with any view to dispute the point with him; but only to show how much superior he views this vicinity to all other places on the globe; that therefore, as it was the first place in the world (which is not disputed) the first Governor there, was the first Governor in the world! With such notions in his head, how could he think otherwise? With these ideas, and happening not to question the fact in his own mind, nor to converse upon the subject with anybody, and then meeting with Mr. Webster's blunder, he was in the right mood to be deceived effectually, and he was deceived, and he ought to have owned it long ago.

As a proof that Mr. Savage was deceived, or rather deceived himself with regard to the first Governor of Massachusetts, we will state one fact, which we think is perfectly conclusive. Happening to be in the library of a certain institution in Boston, one day, he was asked by a gentleman, how he came to call Winthrop first Governor, in his edition of the Journal? At this question he looked up, evincing a good deal of surprise. This was evidently the first time the question had ever entered his mind. As his surprise began to subside, he replied,—“Well—he was first Governor.” After a few words of discussion, Mr. Savage appealed to Hutchinson, saying, “Hutchinson will settle it.” He then took down from the shelves, and proceeded to examine Hutchinson. When he had satisfied himself that Hutchinson did not sustain him, he replaced that Author, said no more upon the subject, and soon after left.

The subject hardly deserves to be treated with gravity, but as there have been some long and labored arguments upon it, pro and con, something more may be expected in this examination.

It is rather singular, that in his first edition of Winthrop, in which the name of Endicott so often occurs, in which the Editor himself has frequent occasion to mention “Governor Endicott” under years before Winthrop was thought of as Governor at all, that it did not occur to him, that when there was certainly but one Governor, and that one Governor was Endicott; that he, of necessity, must be first and last, until another should be chosen.

The “idle question” that Endicott was not chosen under precisely the same circumstances that Winthrop was, deserves no consideration whatever. Circumstances are continually changing. Will such considerations make John Hancock first Governor of Massachusetts, because the Revolution had entirely changed the order of things? Will it prove that Samuel Adams was first Governor, and that Hancock was only “Captain,” because a great change had taken place, and that his Government was more permanent and important than Mr. Hancock's, which had just emerged out of the Revolution? This would be nonsense indeed. But there is quite as much sense in it as there is in denying that Endicott was first Governor, because he did not come over with the second company of emigrants which happened to be a little larger than the first which came with Endicott !

Everybody acquainted with the main facts in the case, thought, that when Mr. Savage issued a new edition of Winthrop, he would leave out the "first" to his Governor, and either say nothing about it in his notes, or if he said anything, would say he had incautiously followed the title-page of the Hartford edition ; but the only place where he has dropped first Governor to Winthrop is on the portrait. This is one step towards bringing the matter right. While, if his weight of argument to sustain his old error, were equal to the weight of type employed in his immense note, it would remain beyond hope of refutation. And yet in his weighty note, the Editor says, "An idle question, as it seems to me, was raised, a short time since, whether Endicott should not, instead of Winthrop, be entitled first Governor of Massachusetts."

To raise what mist he can, Mr. Savage cites "Mr. Felt," as saying in his Annals of Salem, that "Roger Conant preceded both Endicott and Winthrop" as Governor. Roger Conant, Mr. Savage well knows, has nothing to do with this question, any more than John Oldham, or any others who were over here before the formation of the Massachusetts Company, and happened to remain until that Company sent over a Colony. In a few simple interrogatories lie the whole length and breadth of this "idle question." They may be thus put:—

First,—Did the Massachusetts Company send out its first Colony to make a settlement in what is now Massachusetts without a Governor ?

Second,—If that Company did send out a Colony with a Governor, who was he ? And did he, or did he not have all the power of governing a Colony conferred upon him in exact accordance with the Charter of the Company and the laws of England ?

Third,—Did not the first Colony sent out by the Massachusetts Company make a permanent settlement at Salem, Charlestown, &c., in 1628 ?

Fourth,—Where was Mr. John Winthrop during that early period of the operations of the first Colony ?

"But," says Winthrop's Editor, "Endicott never was Governor of the Company in England ; Endicott did not bring over the Charter."—With just as much relevancy he might say, "Endicott was never Governor of the Plymouth Company, whose lands the Massachusetts Company purchased, and that he was never King of England."

By the way, there is one thing we do believe,—namely, that if Endicott had been King of England instead of Charles Stuart, the Charter would not have been brought out of that country, against the laws of the realm, as it in fact was. And this leads us to the following question :—

Did that act of the Company, in taking away the Charter out of England, give Winthrop any claim to being called first Governor ? He certainly, so far as known to us, is the first Governor who took away a Charter under such circumstances. But that this fact entitles him to be considered first Governor of Massachusetts, is extremely ridiculous. He acted under the direction of the Company, and as affairs turned, that illegal act of the Massachusetts Company was a very happy circumstance for New England.

Let us go to Winthrop's own account in his Journal. He never even dreamed that he was first Governor. He never considered himself Governor at all, saving of those who came over with him in "the fleet," till he was elected, several months after his arrival at Charlestown. Did he take the Government out of Mr. Endicott's hands on his arrival? No such thing. He considered himself only as an assistant to Mr. Endicott. Read his Journal, page 30—1, Vol. I.—Arriving at Salem on the 12th of June, 1630, and being visited on board his ship by Gov. Endicott, he says, "We that were of the Assistants, and some other gentlemen, and some of the women, and our Captain, returned with them to Nahumkeck, where we supped with a good venison pastry and good beer, and at night we returned to our ship, but some of the women stayed behind."

Now will anybody pretend that Winthrop considered himself as superseding Endicott? It appears to us that if any one will attend to the facts, the plain simple facts as they stand recorded, it will inevitably supersede the necessity of any more long arguments to prove "a clear case."

The assertion that "Endicott could not be the Governor which the Charter required," is unworthy attention, when no pretence is set up that he was not made Governor according to the Charter. We have elsewhere shown where, how and when, Winthrop came in general Governor of Massachusetts.* To deny that he was elected Governor at Charlestown, on the 23d of August, 1630, cannot be done without impeaching an Authority never yet impeached. Edward Johnson attended that election, beyond question, himself, and no particular in his book is more minutely and particularly recorded.

The limits to which we are confined in this examination prevent our remarking upon many points deserving attention; but having already filled the pages allotted for it, we are "compelled" to draw to a close. We cannot however dismiss the subject without adverting to one other point; and that is respecting the Deed or Grant of New Hampshire by certain Indian Sagamores to Mr. John Wheelwright in 1629. That any such conveyance was made to Mr. Wheelwright in that year, the Editor of Winthrop denies with a confidence almost alarming. He was sufficiently positive in his first edition, but in his second,

"As if the Kraken, monarch of the sea,
Wallowing abroad in his immensity,
By polar storms and lightning shafts assailed, Wedged with ice mountains, here had fought and failed;"

and, in his expiring agonies, for the want of new weapons with which to preserve himself, he has made a very unfortunate effort to show his contempt of those who differ from his opinions.

With regard to the instrument which Mr. Savage denounces as a forgery, we will only remark, that the subject is in competent hands, and in due time the result will be given to the public. We never promised or proposed to give our views upon it in the Register, as Mr. Savage improperly insinuates in his Winthrop, Vol. I, page 504; and, he has purposely or by mistake, misquoted a deposition of Mr. Wheelwright which we published some three years ago; which deposition—truly copied—happens to shake his theory very essentially. Notwithstanding the vast labor which Mr. Savage has performed to prove the deed a forgery, he has by no means settled the question. It yet remains open, and even he may be surprised should he live to see what can be said on the other side.

The Frontier Missionary; A Memoir of the Life of the Rev. JACOB BAILEY, A. M., Missionary at Pownalborough, Maine; Cornwallis and Annapolis, N. S.; with Illustrations, Notes, and an Appendix. By WILLIAM S. BARTLETT, A. M., Rector of St. Luke's Church, Chelsea, Mass., and Corresponding Member of the Maine Historical Society. With a Preface by Right Rev. GEORGE BURGESS, D. D., Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Maine. Boston: Ide & Dutton. 1853. 8vo, pp. 366.

Notwithstanding the length of the title-page, extracted in full, above, one will not be very likely to receive an adequate impression of the real contents of the pages which follow it. When we hear or read of Frontier affairs, disconnected with dates, the mind is at once carried to the confines of the Great Lakes in one direction, or to the northern shores of Memphremagog in another. Know then, reader, that when Jacob Bailey was laboring as a missionary among the frontier lumbermen of Maine, his field was near the very sea coast, and that it extended over the period immediately preceding the Revolution, and during a considerable portion of the latter stormy era.

Titles, in many respects, are unimportant appendages, but not so to books. And we do not think Mr. Bartlett has made a fortunate choice of one for his work. It is mainly made up of the Diary or Journal of Mr. Bailey, an Episcopal minister, whom the Patriots of the Revolution obliged to leave the country, as he could not conscientiously remain neutral. Mr. Bailey was born in Rowley, Ms., in 1731, and was son of David and Mary (Hodgkins,) grandson of Nathaniel and Sarah (Clark,) gr.-gr.-son of John and Mary (Mighil,) and gr.-gr.-gr.-son of James and Lyda (—) Bailey, of that ancient town.

Mr. Bailey was a graduate of H. C. 1755. Several of his classmates were afterwards distinguished men; among them were John Adams, President of the U. States, and John Wentworth, Governor of New Hampshire. He was Rector of St. Luke's Parish, Annapolis, N. S., from 1783 to his death, which occurred 26 July, 1808, at the age of 76. His wife was Sally, fourth daughter of Dr. John Weeks, of Hampton, N. H., whom he married in Aug. 1762. She died at Annapolis Royal, 22 Mar. 1818, æ. 70. He left at his death six children. His oldest son, Charles Percy, was a Captain in the Duke of Kent's Regiment, and was killed at the battle of Chippeway, U. C., in the war of 1812.

This work is one of uncommon interest, and Mr. Bartlett has performed his office of historical and biographical Editor, with a true love of his subject, and in an able and scholar-like manner; and we venture to affirm, that no one would, from the title of the work, form the least conception of its intensely interesting character. No chapter in the history of Maine will hereafter be read with greater avidity than that which this will make in the hands of a skilful historian of that great State. The engravings with which Mr. Bartlett's book is embellished, are appropriate, and add very much to its value.

Glastonbury for Two Hundred Years; A Centennial Discourse, May 18th, A. D. 1853. With an Appendix, containing Historical and Statistical Papers of interest. By Rev. ALONZO B. CHAPIN, D. D., Rector of St. Luke's Church, South Glastonbury, &c. &c. Hartford: 1853. 8vo, pp. 252.

It is a source of great gratification to those engaged in the humble, and we may say thankless business of collecting the past records of our country, and treasuring them up for those who may come after them, that they may be enabled to trace truly by their light the steps by which their domain has advanced to its importance—it is a source of gratification, we repeat, to those thus engaged, to witness new laborers in this extensive field, and they are ready to hail with delight the appearance of the fruits of such labor.

On opening Dr. Chapin's book, the first thing which meets the eye of the reader, is an "Indian Map of Glastonbury." Nothing could be a higher recommendation to its merits, and we wish every Local History had a like recommendation. The Author has treated his subject under a classified arrangement; so that "The Town, Lands, its People and their Occupations," have each received a due share of attention. About one hundred pages of the work is occupied with the Appendix, conta ing matter of the very first importance—an “Original Survey of Naubuc, with some Geneological Account of the Families possessing the Farms” This latter portion of the work will never lose its importance, so long as there are inhabitants possessing intelligence in Glastonbury.

Dr. Chapin has evidently paid considerable attention to the language of the Aborigines, and has given definitions of many names of places in and about Glastonbury. All such attempts should be encouraged, and criticisms upon them should aid rather than disparage every effort of the kind.

Annals of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association. Compiled by JOSEPH T. BUCKINGHAM. Boston: 1853. 8vo, pp. 432.

When a piece of Mechanism is produced by professed Mechanics, we are led to expect something excellent in their line; somewhat above ordinary fabrics, by ordinary operatives. The Mechanic Association has had an existence of half a century, and among those composing its members, Printers, Book-binders, and those in some way immediately connected with the typographic art, have always held a conspicuous place. Hence, when they should publish a History of their doings, every one would very naturally be led to expect something a little above the common stamp. The work before us is from the press of Messrs. Crocker & Brewster, and it is altogether a beautiful specimen of a book of the year 1853. To say anything in respect to the manner in which Mr. Buckingham has performed his labor, would be more than superfluous, to whomsoever his works are known—and they should be, if they are not, known wherever books circulate.

The preparation of these “Annals” could not have been entrusted to better hands. Mr. Buckingham has an excellent talent for biographical writing, and well may every individual member of the Association exclaim, “After my death I wish no other herald,

No other speaker of my living actions,
To keep mine honor from corruption,
But such an honest chronicler——”

And, perhaps it may be said, that if an institution is worth being kept in existence, it should have a history at the mature age of fifty years; at least, this is our opinion. There are in the volume good steel engravings of Paul Revere, Benjamin Russell, and the Author. We wish there had been one of Jonas Chickering; and while we are wishing, we might as well wish there had been an Index to the work. But we do not complain, for we have got much more than we had any right to expect. Some of our readers will be sorry to learn that the work is not for sale—that barely enough were printed (1000 copies) to supply the immediate wants of the institution. The officers for 1853 were JONAS CHICKERING, President; FREDERICK W. LINCOLN, Jun., Vice President; OSMYN BREWSTER, Treasurer; FREDERICK H. STIMPSON, Secretary.

An Address in Commemoration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Incorporation of Lancaster, Massachusetts. By JOSEPH WILLARD. With an Appendix. Boston: 1853. 8vo, pp. 230.

Mr. Willard has had a good deal of experience as a writer, is a good scholar, well imbued with a love of historical and antiquarian matters; and though not aged, he has been a good while engaged in these researches. As long ago as the year 1826, he gave to the Public a History of Lancaster, which was one of the very best local histories that had appeared. In 1829 he delivered “An Address to the Members of the Bar of Worcester County,” which embodied a great amount of valuable information respecting the legal affairs of that County. That, like the present “Address,” was quite extensive; containing 144 pages.

Few towns in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, or even in New England, afford so fruitful a field for the industrious annalist, as Lancaster; and there is no man, at least none known to us, so well qualified in every respect to do its annals justice, as the Author of the above “Address.” It is true, speaking for ourself only, that we should have been glad if the Author had thought proper to have confined himself a little more to the town of Lancaster itself than he has done, instead of going so much at length into matters somewhat foreign to its history; but this very course may be the most agreeable one to the people of Lancaster, and if so, their gratification was of course to be regarded before that of foreigners, or those who have no special connection with that town. The doings at the Celebration are pretty fully given in the Appendix. The speeches upon the occasion, are, many of them, lively, able, and of very general interest. We have not space to enumerate their Authors.

History of Candia: once known as Charmingfare; with Notices of some of the early Families. By F. B. EATON. Manchester, N. H.: 1852. 8vo, pp. 152.

We are presented here with a very handsomely executed pamphlet, little inferior in mechanical execution to similar productions of a metropolitan press; while the literary portion of the work is equally creditable to its Author. Candia is comparatively a modern town, its settlement dating back not above one hundred and ten years, and its incorporation not above ninety years. It was "the north-westerly part of the town of Chester," in the Province of New Hampshire, and on its incorporation it received the name of Candia.

Among the families of which Mr. Eaton gives some account, are those of Anderson, Bean, Brown, Burpee, Buswell, Carr, Cass, Clark, Colby, Dearborn, Dudley, Duncan, Dusten, Eaton, Emerson, Fitts, Foster, Hall, Hill, Hubbard, Lane, Martin, McClure, Moore, Palmer, Patten, Rowe, Robie, Sargent, Smith.

The work is interspersed with several very handsome plates, and a neat map of the town, on which the inhabitants are located.

Secular and Ecclesiastical History of the Town of Worthington, from its first settlement to the present time. Albany, N. Y.: 1853. 8vo, pp. 72.

The town of Worthington is in the State of Massachusetts, though from the title above extracted, one would not feel quite sure that it is not in New York, or some other State.

Though there is no name as Author in the title-page, the work is believed to be by a young gentleman, an under-graduate of Yale College, Mr. James C. Rice. The ecclesiastical part (consisting of 24 pages) is by the Rev. J. H. Bisbee. Both parts are very creditable to their respective Authors.

The town was called Worthington in honor of Col. Worthington, of Springfield, a large proprietor of its lands. It was settled about 1762, chiefly by people from Connecticut. Mr. Rice gives their names, and points out the places where they settled. This will be a matter of great importance for the enquirer after localities in the year 1953 or 2000. Some account of Col. Worthington would have been an interesting addition to the history of the town that received its name from him. No doubt the Author will be called upon in a few years to publish a new edition of his work. If he should be, he will find much to add, probably; yet it is all, and even more now than any one has a right to expect.

The Early History of the Medical Profession in the County of Norfolk, Mass.—An Address delivered before the Norfolk District Medical Society, at its Annual Meeting, May 10, 1853. By EBENEZER ALDEN, M. D., President of the Society. Published by request of the Society. From the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal. Boston: 1853. 8vo, pp. 48.

The name of Dr. Alden is fully and sufficiently a guarantee for the performance of anything he may undertake. He does not leave things half done. The pamphlet before us is a finished work, and were we able to incorporate it entire into our pages, there is no doubt but that by such transfer our readers would be much gratified. Our field, however, is the unpublished records of New England, or mainly so. It is pretty well understood, we think, that the Publishing Committee of the New Eng. Hist. Gen. Register decline publishing anything already in print, except by way of illustration of manuscripts.

The Reader of Dr. Alden's tract will find a great amount of biographical matter in it, and much that is entirely new. The Author has had excellent opportunities to gain information, and no one knows better how to improve such opportunities. We can only avoid doing injustice to his work, by referring the reader to it, instead of attempting an analysis of it, or any part of it.

Address delivered at the Consecration of Rock Hill Cemetery, in Foxborough, Mass., Tuesday, October 4th, 1853. By Rev. SAMUEL WOLCOTT, of Providence, R. I. Providence: 1853. 8vo. pp. 22.

This "Address" is replete with profound reflections upon man's earthly career; glowingly embellished with the most apt and happy quotations from the sacred writings, and the works of the learned and wise of past ages.

Mr. Wolcott seems to be peculiarly fitted for a Discourse upon such an occasion. Foxboro' is probably quite wanting in printed materials for its history, but here is one which the future historian of that town, at whatever time he may appear, must not overlook. He will find in it far more than he may be led to expect, judging from similar productions.

Remarks on a "Reprint of the Original Letters from Washington to Joseph Reed, during the American Revolution, referred to in the Pamphlets of Lord Mahon and Mr. Sparks." By JARED SPARKS. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. 1853. 8vo, pp. 43.

It must be annoying indeed to a gentleman of Mr. Sparks's habits and feelings, to be compelled to issue one tract after another to defend himself against attacks upon his literary integrity. We had occasion to notice one of these defences in a former volume, and what we said on that occasion is perfectly applicable to this. It is truly wonderful to see how well Mr. Sparks's labors, the object of these attacks, stand the test of the severest scrutiny. It is fortunate, in one respect, that his assailants showed themselves in Mr. Sparks's lifetime; in that he can put them at rest at once. Had they waited until he was gone, it might have been a long time before they would have been exposed—though exposed they eventually would be.

BURGES, Hon. Tristram, one of the most distinguished men of Rhode Island, died Oct. 13th, at the good old age of 84. He was a remarkable example of a self-made man. His childhood and youth were passed in the trying times of the Revolution, and he never went to school a day till he was fifteen years old, and was only twelve weeks at school up to the age of twenty-one. His sister taught him to read, and his father gave him a little instruction in writing and arithmetic. But by his own industry and energy, and under the impulse of his own high aspirations for knowledge, he eventually, self-taught, became a good scholar, a practised writer, and an eloquent orator. Though late in life, he fitted himself and entered Brown University, where he took a high rank and graduated with distinction. He was sometime afterwards elected to the Professorship of Oratory and Belles Lettres in the same University, a post which he filled with great ability and success.

Mr. Burges was finally sent to Congress, where he served with much distingtion for many years. He was said to be the only man who ever made the eccentric John Randolph quail in debate. Mr. Randolph at one time in some discussion made a sarcastic and disparaging attack upon New England and her representatives, and especially upon Mr. Burges. Whereupon the "Bald Eagle," (a name by which Mr. Burges was then familiarly known,) arose, and retorted upon the proud Virginian with such withering and overwhelming power, that he not only silenced him in the debate, but fairly drove him from the House.—[Newspaper.

CHENEY, Mr. John, Concord, N. H., Oct., ae. 91.

CHICKERING, Jonas, Esq., Boston, 8 Dec., in the 57th year of his age. He was seized with an apoplectic fit at the house of a friend, about 11 o'clock in the evening, and being immediately carried to his own residence in Boylston Street, died very soon after his arrival there. In the death of Mr. Chickering the City has met with as great a loss as has happened to it in the death of any individual for many years. His kind and unassuming manners are known to every one who made his acquaintance. His funeral was probably the largest which has ever been in Boston.

Mr. Chickering descended from an ancient and highly respectable family long resident in the County of Norfolk, England. In the time of Henry VIII, Thomas Chickering, of Wymondham, in that county, deceased, leaving a widow Clare, and three children, the eldest of whom, Stephen, became of Wicklemwood, a village adjoining that of Wymondham, where he died in 1576. By his wife, Anne, he had five sons and two daughters.

Henry, the eldest, removed to Ringsfield, in the Co. of Suffolk, and died in 1627, leaving five sons and two daughters.

Henry, the eldest son, was of Wrentham, and, together with his brother Francis, and his nephew Nathaniel, emigrated to this country about the year 1635, and settled at Dedham, where he held important offices, and was representative to the General Court for several years. He died in 1671, and his only son, Doct. John Chickering, of Charlestown, became heir to his large estate. From this John, descended

- DICKERSON, Hon. Mahlon, Morris Co., N. J., 5 Oct., ae. "over 80;" long one of the most distinguished men of New Jersey; in 1815 he was Governor of the State; in 1817, U. States Senator; Secretary of the Navy in Pres. Jackson's time. His descent is from an early New England family. [See vol. v. 332]. Mr. Dickerson was an early member of the N. E. H. Gen. Soc. He resided at a place called Sucasanny.
- DIXON, Thomas Henry, of Boston; died in Paris, France, 26 Sept., aged 33. He was born in Amsterdam, Holland, Sept. 4., 1820, and was the second son of the late Thomas Dixon, of Boston, K. L., K. N. L., (vide N. E. H. G. Register for 1850, p. 100,) and Mary B. Homer, his wife.
- His first christian name was that borne by his father, an Englishman by birth, and grandfather Thomas Dickson, afterwards Dixon, a Scotchman. His middle name was that of his great grandfather, Henry Dickson, a Scotchman.
- Mr. Dixon was a gentleman living upon his income, and unmarried, and had been about a year in Europe on a tour of pleasure, when suddenly taken ill in Paris. He died of congestion of the brain. His remains, embalmed, were brought home and interred in the Homer Tomb, King's Chapel Burial Ground.

- EWER, Charles, Esq., Portsmouth, N. H., 14 Nov., ae. 63. He was son of Capt. Silas and Mary (Armstrong) Ewer, and was born in Boston. Mr. Ewer was the first President of the N. E. H. Gen. Society, established in Boston, in the early part of the year 1845; to which office he was elected, as being one of the first who had agitated the question of the practicability of such an institution. In early life he served an apprenticeship at the dry goods business, but subsequently was in the employment of Thomas & Andrews, extensive booksellers of their time. He was next established in the book business, in Portsmouth, but being unsuccessful there, returned to Boston. Here he resided permanently until within about two years. In 1828, he was associated with Mr. Timothy Bedlington in the publishing business. This connection was not of long continuance. Among the works published by them, was Mitford's History of Greece, in eight volumes, octavo, one of the best executed works of that day. This was published by subscription. Mr. Ewer had previously issued Neal's History of the Puritans in the same way; having himself procured most of the Subscribers for the work.
- Mr. Ewer thought much of being the originator or projector of works; and the building of Avon Place was commenced by him, and the immense improvements at the South Cove were earnestly urged by him as advantageous and feasible. and he always believed that the City, and those who had so much increased their wealth by that speculation, were indebted to his foresight for their success. In 1847 he procured several written testimonials respecting his early agency in that enterprise.

Mr. Ewer was never married. He leaves two sisters and a brother to mourn their loss. And there are numerous others, who, while they lament his departure, take sincere pleasure in bearing testimony to his firm and inflexible integrity, and to his many virtues. His remains were brought here for interment, and rest in the Granary Burying-ground.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE REGISTER :

Sir : Your correspondent A. H., of Ipswich, asks on p. 300, for some information regarding Robert Hale, son of Rev. John of Beverly, and father of Col. Robert, of the same town.

He graduated H. C. 1686 ; became a minister of the Gospel ; supplied his father's pulpit when he was in Canada in 1690 ; and preached for a short time in Preston, Connecticut, then just settled. His health was delicate, however, as appears from a letter dated Nov. 22, 1693, which is still extant, which he wrote there. Before 1697 he returned to Beverly. In 1700 he married Eliz. Clarke. He was master of the Beverly school in 1700 ; lived in that town as a physician ; and held there a commission as magistrate, till he died in 1719.

I believe his father, and he, and his son, always spelt the name of his mother, Byley. In the Antiquarian Society's collection are many letters to and from the agent of her English property, Bennett Swayne, who spells it thus, wherever he alludes to it.

Respectfully yours,

EDWARD E. HALE.

MAIL COMMUNICATION BETWEEN NEW YORK AND BOSTON NINETY-EIGHT YEARS AGO.

POST-OFFICE, NEW YORK, Feb. 3, 1755.—It being found very inconvenient to persons concerned in trade, that the Post from New York to New England has heretofore set out but once a fortnight, during the winter season ; the stages are now altered, by order of the Postmasters General, and the New England Post is henceforth to go once a week the year round ; whereby correspondence may be carried on, and answers obtained to letters between New York and Boston, in two weeks, which used in the winter, to require four weeks ; and between Philadelphia and Boston, in three weeks, which used to require six weeks. But to obtain this good end, it is necessary, on account of the badness of the ways and weather, in winter, to despatch the Post some hours sooner from New York. Notice is therefore hereby given, that he begins his weekly stage on Monday next, being the 10th instant, and will be despatched precisely at 9 o'clock in the morning, on that day, and every Monday following.

ALEXANDER COLDEN, Post-Master.

VERMONT.—A table of the last census shows us where the inhabitants of the different States were born. It is curious to see how migratory a people we are. Vermont shows herself a regular hive. She not only has mainly stocked her own towns, but has been constantly sending off swarms to other States. Of the 314,120 persons residing in the State when the census was taken, 280,966 were American born, and of these 232,086 were born in the State. But besides these, there were in other States nearly 146,000 persons born in Vermont, she having received from them not quite 49,000, of whom 34,668 came from New Hampshire and Massachusetts. About 29,000 born in Vermont have gone to those two States. Most of the rest have gone to New York, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. Not many have gone into the Southern part of the Union.—Boston Journal, 1853.

MEMOIR OF GOVERNOR INCREASE SUMNER.

[Prepared for the Register by Gen. W. H. SUMNER.]

INCREASE SUMNER, Governor of Massachusetts, was born in Roxbury in the County of Suffolk, now Norfolk, on the 27th of November, 1746. His portrait, the engraving of which precedes this sketch, was taken in the robes worn by the Justices of the S. J. Court until about 1792. In the year 1797, after he was chosen Governor, it was retouched, and the hair dressed and powdered as he then wore it.

The house of his father, in which his birth took place, stood on the site of Hall's new brick block of buildings in Washington street, Roxbury, nearly opposite to Sumner street. This house, in which his mother then resided, being exposed to the shot of the enemy during the siege, the family removed to Dorchester, and had a temporary residence on the farm left him by his father, called "Morgan's," now belonging to the Hon. Marshall P. Wilder, whose house he afterwards built. He gave an outright deed of this estate to his son a few days after he was taken sick, anticipating the fatal termination of his complaint, and declared his intention not to make a will. After the Revolution, he purchased the house and land formerly owned by Judge Auchmuty, which was a confiscated estate, and lived there until his death. This house, situated on Bartlett street, is now occupied by Mr. Charles Bradford. Opposite to it lies the estate of fourteen acres (in the centre of the city of Roxbury) which his father-in-law, Mr. Hyslop, purchased for him, and in cultivating which, after he had ploughed down the breastworks erected in the time of the war, and made it an open field, he took great pleasure. This estate was recovered of his heirs by Joseph Dudley, as tenant in tail, a few years after his death, when Mrs. Sumner removed to Boston.

His ancestor, William Sumner, it is said, came from Burcester in Oxfordshire, England, and settled in Dorchester, Mass., about the year 1635, from which time until his death he held various public offices.

The father of the subject of this sketch, whose name he bore, was a yeoman, who by his industry subdued his paternal acres, and left considerable property. Never was there a man better calculated for the sturdy labors of a yeoman. He was of colossal size, and equal strength of muscle, which was kept in tone by regularity and good habits. He shrunk from no labor, however arduous or fatiguing it might seem to others. Instances of the wonderful feats of strength performed by him were related after his death by his cotemporaries in his native place and the vicinity. He married Sarah, daughter of Robert Sharp of Brookline, on the 28th of October, 1736. He was chosen one of the Selectmen of Roxbury in 1753, and again in 1756, and was a man highly respected. He died much lamented on the 28th of November, 1774, having had eight children; four of whom, Sarah Davis, Elizabeth Cushing, Increase Sumner, and Lucy Bowman, left descendants.

The first rudiments of learning were taught the subject of this notice by the late Judge William Cushing of the Sup. Judicial Court of the U. S., who was preceptor of the public Grammar School in Roxbury, in 1752. Under such a master, and his successors in this distinguished school, (one of whom was General Joseph Warren, a native of the town,) the pupil made such progress as induced the friends of the family to solicit the father's permission that his son might continue his studies at Harvard University. To gain this point was no easy task. The hardy yeoman considered that happiness and success in life were more certainly found in agricultural, than in any other pursuits; but he yielded at length to the repeated entreaties of his son, and to those friends who indulged ardent hopes of the youth's future eminence if he could obtain a classical education. All obstacles being surmounted, he entered College in 1763, and his reputation, while there, justified the predictions of his friends; for he graduated with a distinguished part in the Commencement exercises of 1767. On leaving College, he took charge of the school at Roxbury, at which he had received his preparatory education for admission to the University, and continued in this situation for two years, during which time his name stood as a student in the office of Samuel Quincy, an eminent barrister and Solicitor General of the Province, who fled with the refugees at the evacuation of Boston, and was afterwards appointed by the Crown, Solicitor General of the island of St. Kitts.* This gentleman was the brother of Josiah Quincy, who, taking the opposite side in politics, dis-

* He applied to John Adams for admission to his office. But, says Mr. Adams afterwards, in a letter to Gov. Sumner's son, "Having at that time three clerks, and the orders of the court prohibiting any barrister to entertain more than that number at any one time, I was compelled, much against my inclination, to refuse him. It was a sensible mortification to me, not only because my mother and his mother were sisters' daughters, but because I knew the young gentleman was a promising genius, and a studious and virtuous youth."

tinguished himself as a patriot, statesman and orator, and fell a victim to his arduous exertions in the cause of freedom before the commencement of the Revolution.

In 1770 Sumner was admitted to the Bar, and opened his office in Roxbury, in the house in which his mother continued to reside until her death. The people found him intelligent and worthy of confidence, and his business in the profession soon became important and lucrative.

The following letter to Roland Cushing, Esq., shows the sentiments which Mr. Sumner, although educated in the office of a Tory, entertained at this early period of his life, upon the then existing state of affairs :

“BOSTON, November 24th, 1772.

DEAR SIR,—

We have nothing new here, but the affair of the piracy, the particulars of which the Col. will be able to inform you.

The late appointment from home has revived old disputes, and caused frequent town meetings, the effect of which is a full and explicit declaration of our rights, natural as well as political. Roxbury has not pursued the measures taken by the town of Boston, but has instructed its Representative to use his influence to obtain an act of the General Assembly, by which the Judges may have fixed, established salaries, adequate to those appointed from home.

I have heard some folks much applauded for their judicious address to a certain great man on the same subject. I could wish a little more of the time of a gentleman of your leisure, abilities and independency, was taken up in asserting and maintaining the rights of Britons and free-born Englishmen. If it was, sir, it would not be time misspent ; for the man who, with his pen, his fortune and abilities, exerts himself to support that constitution which is so happily calculated for the good of society, and for the preservation of which our venerable forefathers submitted to the most rigorous hardships, must necessarily feel that divine satisfaction, which ever accompanies true, loyal, undaunted patriotism : while on the other hand the man who, regardless of public happiness, is ready to fall in with base measures, and to sacrifice conscience, honor, and his country, merely for the sake of his own advancement, must, (if not wretchedly hardened,) feel a torture, the intense-ness of which nothing in this world besides can equal. But pardon me, sir, if I caution you against running into extremes, which have so much hurt some of our politicians. They, like gentlemen of our own profession, when they take up on either side, have extended their principles too far, and very often to the prejudice of the cause they mean to espouse. The Whigs haven't stuck at anything, however rash and unwarrantable, to accomplish their designs. The Tories, under a pretence of supporting order and good government, on the other hand, have advanced the most palpable absurdities: so that the character of a high Whig, or high Tory, by the most judicious, is thought to be equally despicable. 'In medio tutissimus ibis,' is the motto I have long since adopted, and a close adherence to which appears to me to be likely to carry a man through life in peace and quietness.

I am, sir, your friend, and

Very obedient, humble servant,

To Mr. Roland Cushing, Attorney, } INCREASE SUMNER JR.
at Pownalborough." }

The following extract of a letter, dated Boston, 10th of June, 1773, and addressed to his brother-in-law Charles Cushing, Esq., Sheriff of the County of Lincoln, who then resided at Pownalborough, on the Kennebec River, contains a relation of some interesting historical facts, and shows the political sentiments he continued to entertain:

"The Governor's [Hutchinson] letters lately received are the chief subject of conversation, though it is said now they are not so infamous as at first was given out. The history of that matter, as I have it second-hand, is this: The Governor, after he had finished the second volume of his History of Massachusetts Bay, sent several sets to Mr. Jackson, who was then agent, to be distributed to such gentlemen as he saw fit. Among the rest he gave a set to Mr. Whately, who was then Secretary to Mr. Grenville, and a member of Parliament; upon which Mr. Whately wrote the Governor a letter informing him that he had received his History of Massachusetts Bay, and had read it. Passing many compliments upon the performance, he desired the Governor to hold a correspondence with him, and give him his opinion upon the state of the government here, of the temper and dispositions of the people, and to give him intelligence of whatever took place on this side of the water, in the political way, assuring the Governor that he might expect the same kind of intelligence from him on that side of the water. The Governor, finding by his writings that Mr. Whately was a gentleman of abilities and learning, though an utter stranger, wrote him several letters about the time the Liberty Sloop* was seized, in which he expressed his opinion pretty freely upon political matters, and made such observations as occurred to him. This gentleman afterwards died; and his executors sent (or at least winked at their being sent) those letters, with a number of others from the Lieut. Governor, Judge Auchmuty, and Mr. Paxton, under such restrictions that the originals cannot be kept, nor copies taken, so that the House of Representatives are at a loss how to proceed. The Governor, I hear, is desirous of having his printed. What will be the event

[*This sloop belonged to John Hancock.]

I cannot say ; but this is certain, people's minds have been much agitated, but they can't tell very well at what, as all remains as yet a profound secret.

I shall write Mrs. Cushing, if I can find time, which I somewhat scruple about, as Mr. Quincy is at Portsmouth, and Mr. Walker in Connecticut, and the whole care of the office lies upon me."

Soon afterwards Mr. Sumner made a journey to Pownalboro'. On his return he wrote the following letter to his brother Cushing, which shows that a passage from the Kennebec to Boston was quite as hazardous, and occupied nearly as many days, as a voyage across the Atlantic to Europe does at the present time :

"BOSTON, Oct 4th, 1773.

DEAR SIR, —

After a tedious passage of eight days, I arrived at Boston, where I found all friends well. The morning after I left you, we got out to sea with a fair wind which continued till afternoon, when it got further east and threatened a storm ; to avoid which we put into Cape Porpus, and there remained until Monday morning, when we got out, but made poor progress, there being no wind. The next day we had a strong head wind, which obliged us to put into Piscataqua. The Captain determined to sell his load there, and I had determined to take land tacks and go home in the stage coach. Accordingly we prepared ourselves the next day to go up to town ; but the rain and wind, of which there was an abundance, prevented. The Captain then altered his determination, and put out of the harbor three hours before day on Wednesday morning, the weather then being very uncertain. We had not got far when we found our mistake, and wished ourselves back again. Before we could see Cape Ann, a violent N. E. storm came on, and we were well nigh buried in the waves. The seas were so great as to throw the sloop nearly upon her beam ends, by which means our deck load shifted, and the water, we suppose, run in at the hatchways. We presently found between three and four feet of water in the hold, although the pumps were constantly going. You may well conceive the situation I was in. Every thing seemed to be against us ; the pumps got foul, the topping lift (the support of the boom) gave way, and the wind headed us nearly three points. Soon after we got our boom to the windward, which balanced the deck load on the other side, she righted. We at length weathered the Cape and got into Marblehead much worn with fatigue and hunger.

Thus, sir, I have given you a brief though dry statement of facts, which, as they have been very interesting to me, will not, I trust be very disagreeable to you. In the beginning of the siege, I was somewhat seasick ; but fear soon took the place of sickness. I had feelings then which I was a stranger to before : in short, I expected little else than to fall a prey to the merciless waves ; but, through the kindness of that Being to whose nod the sea and the storms are subject, I escaped, and have another opportunity of subscribing myself, Dear Sir, (with due sense of favors, and love and compliments to sister, and brother Roland,)

Your obliged friend,

And affectionate brother,

INCREASE SUMNER JR.

Col. Cushing.”

The following paragraph in a letter from Thomas Aylwin, a merchant, to his brother-in-law Col. Cushing, dated 21 Oct., 1773, shows what an awful consequence was apprehended in Boston from the introduction of tea into the colonies :

“ The East India Company has liberty to export teas to America, which makes us uneasy, as it will not only hurt our sales, but drain the continent of silver.”

Mr. Sumner, in correspondence with his brother-in-law Cushing, at Pownalboro’, mentions the state of public opinion on this subject. His letter, dated Boston, 8th Dec., 1773, says—

“ We have been much agitated here for some time about the East India Company’s tea, upon the arrival of which a vast assembly of people from this and the neighboring towns met at the Old South. For their proceedings I must refer you to the newspapers, and your brother. The consignees are now at the castle, and are obliged to keep very close. The tea, I believe, will be returned. What will be the consequence is uncertain. ‘Tempus coronat opus.’”

In the year 1776, a period of great difficulties and fearful apprehensions, Mr. Sumner was chosen a member of the General Court, and continued to represent his native town the three following years, until, in 1780, he was elected a Senator for the county of Suffolk, which office he filled the two succeeding years, by the almost unanimous choice of his constituents. In the convention of 1777, for agreeing on a form of government, he held a seat ; but the part which any one took in that body is now nearly forgotten, as no report of their proceedings was ever made, and the newspapers of that day mention the fact of a convention only as they did ordinary occurrences in the legislature.

On the 30th of September, 1779, he formed a connection interesting in every man’s life, by his marriage to Miss Elizabeth Hyslop, the daughter of William Hyslop, Esq., then of Boston, afterwards of Brookline, a woman of great intelligence, and of a remarkably amiable character. She was afterwards distinguished by her dignified presence, and no one could more acceptably have filled the station of a Governor’s Lady than she.

In the same year he was chosen a member of the convention for forming a State constitution, the first plan not having been approved and adopted by the people.

In June, 1782, he was chosen a member of Congress by the Legislature of Massachusetts, in room of Timothy Danielson, who resigned; but Mr. Sumner never took his seat in that body.

In August of the same year, he was made an associate Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court. This appointment was made but a short time after the State Constitution had gone into operation, and everything was in an unsettled state. After the turbulence of the conflict with the mother country had subsided, the loss of blood and treasure were severely felt. The paper currencies, which had been floated along by hope and credulity, and buoyed up by a spirit of patriotism, sunk in value. All confidence fled, and the war-worn soldier reluctantly yielded to the course of law which took from him his last penny, and left his family mendicants. Heavy taxes were laid to pay the interest of the public debt, which the people could not meet, and for the payment of which their cattle were distrained, and they were otherwise reduced to extremities. Symptoms of disaffection and acts of turbulence were witnessed in every part of the Commonwealth. The government were not prompt in avenging the insults offered to the majesty of the laws, but used palliatives and acted with indecision, until rebellion was open and direct.

This shew itself in the attempt to stop the County Courts, before the S. J. Courts were interrupted, and it was most commendably met by the Justices of that Court at Springfield, and in every place in which the disaffected assembled. Judge Cobb, of Taunton, who had been a member of Washington's military staff in the army of the Revolution, and who, after the peace, was appointed Maj. General of the Militia, when he found the court-house in Taunton was surrounded by an angry multitude, made his way through the populace, and, as he took his seat on the bench of the Court of Common Pleas, proclaimed his determination "to sit as a Judge or die as a General."

The Judges had a hard and painful task in discharging their duty. They however not only proceeded with discretion and humanity, but also with that fearlessness of consequences which performs its duty, and leaves the event to Heaven. To the firmness and independence of our judiciary, backed by the military power, we are much indebted for the suppression of the insurrection, and for the good government which followed those civil commotions.

The Judges who held their offices under the charter of William and Mary were removed by an act of the legislature, and five others were appointed. On the death of Jedediah Foster, one of the latter, Mr. Sumner was appointed to fill his place. This distinction was thought by all to be merited. He was then only thirty-six years of age, but the public had confidence in his integrity and ability, and the court considered him an acquisition to the bench.

His preference, in 1782, for a judicial to a political office, both of which were presented to his acceptance, was the turning point in his pursuits in life ; whether he should assume the judicial robes or enter the political arena. For the judicial office he proved himself to be eminently qualified, and it cannot be doubted, that, had he entered the field of politics at the time the choice was offered him, he would have been equally distinguished. A sufficient proof of this was the universal popularity with which he afterwards filled the office of Governor. He continued upon the bench for a long course of years, "approving himself to the public as a dispassionate, impartial, discerning, able and accomplished Judge."

The following extract from one of his charges to the grand jury will show how he felt and reasoned upon a subject of vital importance to the public, at a very early period of our existence :—

"Our venerable ancestors were early impressed with a sense of the importance of education to the rising generation. No sooner had they got footing in this inhospitable land, even while struggling with poverty and want on the one hand, and a savage foe on the other, than they laid a foundation for the proper education of their children, foreseeing that the prosperity of their then infant settlement depended upon it ; and if a matter of such moment was neglected, their posterity would soon become as illiterate and uninformed as the natives they were contending with ; and shall I presume that we, their posterity, will suffer an institution so wise, so important to society, to lie neglected ? If such inhabitants did but consider the importance of education to the public, as well as to their children, they would exert themselves to carry the laws relating thereto into full execution ; for how can a republican government be maintained but by the learning, virtue, public spirit and knowledge of its citizens ?

"What remains then, gentlemen, to make us the happiest people on the globe, favored as we are with the wisest and the freest constitutions of civil government ; encircled as we are with the blessings of peace, health, and plenty ; but that we carry into private life those principles of reverence for the Supreme Governor of the world, and that industry, public spirit, frugality, and benevolence, which will not fail to insure the continuance of those blessings ? Let every one, then, in his station, cultivate those virtues, and we should soon find that crimes would become less in number and in magnitude, and that society was rapidly advancing to its highest state of perfection. Thus we shall have the satisfaction of reflecting that we have discharged our duty, by contributing all in our power to the general welfare, which is best promoted by the practice of that righteousness, which always did, and which always will exalt and dignify the character of a nation. We have the happiness to live in a country where our rights are fully understood, and freely enjoyed ; and America furnishes one among the few instances where the blessings of civil liberty and the rights of mankind have been the primary objects of their political institutions ; in which the rich and the poor are equally protected ; where the weak are defended against the usurpations of the violent ; where the rights of conscience are freely enjoyed, and where merit and abilities can be the only claim to the favor of the public. May we not, then, pronounce that man destitute of the true principles of liberty, and unworthy the blessings of society, who does not at all times lend his aid to maintain and support a government, on the preservation and due administration of which depends his own political as well as private happiness. It is in vain to think of supporting a free government, unless it be by the virtue, public spirit and affection of its members. Governments of other descriptions may be supported by the intrigues of officers and magistrates, and by the terror of arms ; but that which owes its existence to the will of the people, must derive its support from the same source. Hence it becomes the duty as well as the interest of every citizen to aid the magistrate in the faithful discharge of his office, without which the laws, or in other words the will of the great body of the people, cannot be carried into effect."

Judge Sumner was a member of the Massachusetts Convention which was called in 1789, for the purpose of discussing the Constitution for the Federal Government which had been sent to the several States for their adoption,—a question of the highest moment, requiring for its discussion those qualities of mind with which he was eminently endowed. Profound lawyers, able politicians, and eloquent orators were sent by the people to this body, to deliberate and decide. The prosperity, the dignity and strength of the nation were involved in it. To unite, was considered by all to be necessary ; but on what terms it was as difficult as it was important to settle. The rights of all must be secured, and the honor and prosperity of the nation consulted. The interests of every section of the country were to be regarded, jarring claims to be adjusted, and discordant feelings to be reconciled. It requires a powerful grasp of thought to discuss, and the learning of ages to illustrate principles arising from moral and political relations among a free and enlightened people. The confederation of independent states, which carried us through the war, when union of effort by each was produced by the equality of danger to all, was not of sufficient strength to hold us together after that danger ceased to press upon us. The States, instead of a common enemy, began to contend with each other ; and made a new form of government, with stronger obligatory powers, necessary to preserve the Federal Union. In the construction of this, some were fearful of giving too much power to the executive, while the advocates of a strong executive were afraid it would be overpowered by the unruly democracy of the house of representatives. Ames observed that "the known propensity of democracy was to licentiousness, which the ambitious call, and the ignorant believe to be, liberty." In this convention the subject of this memoir made several impressive speeches. In the debate concerning the adoption of the Constitution, the first trial of strength between the parties was upon the question of biennial or annual elections of the members of Congress. Judge Sumner took an influential part in favor of biennial elections. The democracy would not run wild, he thought, as the qualifications of the Federal electors were the same as those of the most numerous branch of the State Legislatures. We had, he hoped, sufficient restriction upon the electors in our State Constitution, as by it no person could vote, unless, besides a year's residence in the town in which he claimed to vote, "he had a freehold estate in the same town, of the annual income of three pounds, or any estate of the value of sixty pounds." If there were no pecuniary qualification, a pauper's vote would balance that of him who had everything at stake. To be sure, all men alike had their life and liberty to protect. The life of a pauper who slept in the gutter, and the liberty of such an one, was as much prized by him, as by those of his neighbors who were more prosperous ; but they, besides their life and liberty, had an additional incentive to preserve the government, which with many was more operative than either or both the others, and for which they sometimes sacrificed them both, and that is property. The poor man, as he was without property, might be corrupted ; but if he had some property at stake, he would feel its influence upon every vote he gave. This pecuniary qualification was low ; but he hoped it would be sufficient to prevent those from voting, who had not fully estimated the value of this elective privilege. Any higher qualification would give the government an aristocratic character. The existing provision was a happy medium between the restraints of aristocracy and the licentiousness of democracy. The decision of the question of the pecuniary qualification of the voters was what gave the government the hope of stability at its starting, and yet only seven years after it went into operation, Ames, among many others, predicted its speedy downfall. In one of his letters to a friend, dated Philadelphia, March 9, 1796, he thus expresses himself :

"Whether the government will long outlive me is doubtful. I know it is sick, and many of the physicians say, of a mortal disease. A crisis now exists, the most serious I ever witnessed, and the more dangerous, because it is not dreaded. Yet, I confess, if we should navigate the Federal ship-through this strait, and get out again into the open sea, we shall have a right to consider the chance of our government as mended. We shall have a lease for years,—say four or five,—not a freehold, certainly not a fee simple.”

We remember before this to have heard a conversation between the then Judge Sumner, at his own gate in Roxbury where he was dealing with a marketer, and Mr. Ames, who, on his way from Dedham, frequently stopped to give the Judge a passing word. “What’s the news in Boston this morning, Judge?” said he. Just then Mr. Mears, a neighbor, and attached to the Tory party, as he walked by the cart, inquired of the Judge, what he gave a pound for butter; who answered, “Ninepence.” “Ninepence a pound for butter! Ninepence a pound for butter!!” repeating the words. “It did not use to be so in King George’s day, Ninepence for sixpence! This is your new Government, is it? Ninepence a pound for butter,—it won’t last;” and repeating his words, “ninepence a pound,” jogged on and left the Judge and Mr. Ames together. The latter observed, “I am somewhat of that man’s mind. It won’t last. What do you think of it, Judge? I say it won’t last, at least I fear it won’t.” The Judge, who always took the bright side of things, answered, “I do not fear it. The machinery is complex, but it is new. Let us see how it works. Let us give it a fair trial, Mr. Ames.”

Some time afterwards Mr. Ames stopped again, and the following conversation occurred: “Well, Judge, what do you think of it now?” “Why? has anything taken place?” “Have you not heard of the doings of the Roxbury town meeting yesterday? It is in the morning papers.” “I have not seen the papers,” said the Judge, “what did they do?” “It is your own town, and surely you don’t want a Dedham man to tell you what was done in a Roxbury town meeting. You will be sorry to hear, Judge, that your Constitution has given way in the point of your greatest security. After a long debate,” said Mr. Ames, “not unpremeditatedly, the town decided that a man ‘has an estate of the value of sixty pounds’ if he is able to earn that sum within the year.” “What!” answered the Judge, “without having a freehold estate or having in possession any personal property of that value?” “No property at all, as I understand it, Judge. A carpenter, who owned his tools, but nothing else, and who was able to work for his living, they admitted to vote for a representative to the General Court, and General Heath led the majority. You see how it works. What do you think of it now, Judge?” “Why,” says the Judge, “that construction never entered into any man’s mind. It amounts almost to universal suffrage; it never will prevail ; but if it does, Brother Ames, I must say that my confidence in it is very much diminished."

In our reference to the portrait of Gov. Sumner, we alluded to the costume in which it was taken. The dress of the Judges before the Revolution, and which was continued by them afterwards, was a black silk gown worn over a full black suit, white bands, and a silk bag for the hair. This was worn by the judges in civil causes, and criminal trials, excepting those for capital offences. In these they wore scarlet robes with black velvet collars, and cuffs to their large sleeves, and black velvet facings to their robes. The dignified appearance of the Judges, in either dress, made an impression upon the public mind of reverence for the authority of the law. The use of the robes was discontinued soon after the appointment of Judge Dawes to the bench. The Judge was a man of small stature, of a most amiable and excellent disposition, somewhat of a poet, but had a slight impediment in his speech which made him lisp. Dana, the Chief Justice, was also of small stature, but had a very impressive and authoritative manner. The Chief Justice took umbrage at this appointment, on account of what he considered the undignified appearance and utterance of Judge Dawes, and alleged that it was not for his qualifications, but by the influence of his father, who was a member of Gov. Hancock's Council, that he was appointed. Soon after Judge Dawes took his seat upon the bench, the Chief Justice came into Court without his robes, while the side Judges had theirs on. Upon their retiring to the lobby after the adjournment of the Court, Judge Sumner remonstrated with the Chief Justice against his undignified appearance without his robes, and said, "If you leave yours off, Chief Justice, we shall ours also ; but remember what I say, if the people get accustomed to seeing the Judges in a common dress, without their robes, the Court will never be able to resume them." The Chief Justice, with a remark of great asperity, persisted in his determination, and from that period the robes, which gave such dignity to the bench, were laid aside.

The following extracts of a letter from Judge Sumner to Judge Wm. Cushing, dated Roxbury, 14th February, 1794, and Judge Cushing's reply on the 24th of the same month, will show the state of political feeling among some orders of the people.

In his letter Judge Sumner says, "We have but little this way, either of business or pleasure, worth communicating. The public mind, for want of something more important, has been almost entirely directed towards theatrical entertainments. Such has been the rage for this new species of exhibition, that the gallery tickets, on the first night, were sold by speculators for more than twelve times their prime cost ; but I believe the rage is abating, and probably in a little time the reason and good sense of the people will take the place of their unbounded curiosity. The house is indeed superb, and, it is said, exceeds any thing of the kind in America. The performances are variously spoken of; some applaud, others condemn; I suppose they are tolerable, and nothing more. The design, at first, was to avoid party matters, but the people in the galleries the other night prevailed, after much noise and some confusion, to the no small terror of the ladies, and obliged the music to play up 'Ça Ira.'

"I forgot to mention that Prince Edward, fourth son of George, the British King, is now in Boston from Quebec, waiting a ship from Halifax, to convey him to the West Indies to take the command of the British forces there. I have not seen him yet, but expect to dine in company with him to-morrow. Cousin Mary Cushing is now with us on a visit, and says she saw him last evening at a very crowded assembly, where he behaved with great ease and politeness, and that he danced gracefully, to the entire approbation of all the ladies. A small incident he met with on the journey from Canada, he thus relates: At a tavern, an honest New England man thus accosted him: 'Well, how do you do, sir,—and are you really the son of King George?' He answered that he was. 'Amazing!' said the man, 'and how does your daddy do?' 'He was well,' said the Prince, 'when I heard last from him.' 'Well, now,' said the honest man, 'don't you think he was wrong in quarrelling with America as he did?' 'I don't know but he was,' said the other, 'but there's no foreseeing at all times how matters will turn out.' 'True,' said the man, 'but if it hadn't been for that plaguy quarrel, I suppose he might have been King here yet.' Although our honest citizen came to the point rather abruptly, he seemed to understand it, and I suppose was willing to let the Prince philosophize upon and dilate the principle he advanced at his leisure."

"PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24, 1794.

DEAR SIR, —

I thank you for your kind letter of the 14th inst., containing matters of information and amusement.

As to the theatre, I stand pretty indifferent, and would as soon read a good play as see it acted, abating the pleasure of having good company around me. * * * The theatre would be well enough if confined within the bounds of morality and decency, and not made an engine of party. You speak of the house at Boston as exceeding everything American. The English actors speak of this, as equalling or exceeding anything in London.

The anecdote of the Prince and the countryman is humorous and natural enough. * * *

Entre nous, some gentlemen have proposed to me to stand for the first magistracy of our State; but many weighty reasons prompted me to decline the too high and arduous task. There is our good Lieut. Governor,* who stands in the direct line of promotion, and who has waded through a sea of political troubles and grown old in labors for the good of his country. Why not he! Were I permitted to step out of that line, and dictate for a whole people, I believe I could name one of a suitable age, situation and circumstances, who would serve their real interests, without regard to names.

We had one case of consequence in Court. A French privateer captured a vessel and brought her into Baltimore. The French Consul condemned her as British property. An American and some Swedes, claiming the whole property of vessel and cargo, applied to the Federal District Court for restitution, on plea to y<sup>e</sup> jurisdiction. The Judge refused cognizance. On appeal to y<sup>e</sup> Circuit Court, the decree of the jurisdiction was affirmed, and on appeal to y<sup>e</sup> Supreme Court here, both decrees were reversed, and y<sup>e</sup> cause remanded to y<sup>e</sup> District Court for trial. It was also determined that the French Consul had no jurisdiction in the United States over Americans or neutrals; or, rather, no jurisdiction unless it should be given by treaties; and there was none in this case."

The principal if not the only objection made to Judge Sumner's removal from the Supreme bench to the Chair of State, was the capacity, fidelity and usefulness, with which he served the community in the judicial department. But the public, rightly judging that the integrity and capacity with which he filled the office of a Judge, was the surest pledge of his fidelity and usefulness in a still higher and more important station, turned their attention to him as the most suitable person to fill the office of chief magistrate.

He received the spontaneous suffrages of a large portion of the people in 1796, without consenting to be a candidate for that office. This was owing in some degree to the declining popularity of Governor Adams, whose concealed hostility to the late Gov. Hancock was publicly alleged, and who was suspected of sympathizing with the French party, and of entertaining unfriendly feelings to the administration of the Federal Government. It was a time when the sympathies of the populace with the revolutionary party in France (exemplified by the incident at the theatre related in Judge Sumner's letter above cited) were still strong, and many of the people wore the French cockade in their hats. Mobs assembled on many occasions, to celebrate the horrid events of the early part of the French revolution, and on one of these, when a large number had collected in Liberty Square, and were becoming riotous, the High Sheriff summoned the posse comitatus, and with Attorney General Sullivan, his son William, and many others, went out and read the riot act, and attempted to quell the mob. It being dark, the Attorney General carried in his hand a lantern, which was almost immediately extinguished by a blow of a stick from one of the rioters, and the Sheriff and his assistants were themselves obliged to disperse. These facts were represented to Gov. Adams, who was requested to call out the militia, which he refused to do, remarking that it was "a mere watermelon frolic," and not worthy the notice of the government. This was one of the many incidents that tended to reduce Gov. Adams's popularity. He declined a re-nomination, in his speech to the Legislature at the January Session in 1797, and Judge Sumner, in April following, was elected Governor by the people. He had long been looked upon as the most prominent character to fill the Gubernatorial chair. Judge Wm. Cushing, in his letter before inserted, (which was written years previous to the public nomination of his late colleague on the Supreme bench for that office,) alluded to him. But Judge Sumner would not then hearken to it, and advised all his friends to give their influence for Chief Justice Dana, who was thought to be ambitious of the place.

There were no caucuses at that time for the nomination of candidates to office. Various persons were proposed in the several newspapers, and public opinion was somewhat concentrated by the discussion of their relative merits at the County Courts. Among other distinguished persons named in the newspapers for Governor, were His Honor Moses Gill, Hon. Elbridge Gerry, Hon. James Sullivan, Hon. Francis Dana, General Henry Knox, and Judge Wm. Cushing; but such was the popularity of Judge Sumner, that, out of about 25,000 votes, the whole number cast, he received nearly 15,000, being between three and four thousand more than all the others voted for. And so acceptable was his administration, that on the succeeding year he received more than 17,000 out of 21,000 votes, many towns, and some of them very large ones, giving him their unanimous vote.

In the newspapers of the day we find that on the 2d of June, 1797, the people of Boston learning the hour that the Governor elect would set out from Roxbury to take the oaths of qualification, between two and three hundred citizens on horseback and in carriages, escorting His Honor the Lieut. Governor, proceeded to Roxbury; at the boundaries of which they were met by a numerous and respectable cavalcade belonging to that and the adjacent towns, and with them marched to the residence of the Governor elect, from whence they escorted a long procession to the State House. In the carriages were the Selectmen of Roxbury, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the Sheriffs of the two Counties, Generals Knox and Lincoln, and many other highly respectable citizens of the Capital and the neighboring towns. The whole formed in State Street ; and the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in their presence, proclaimed from the eastern balcony of the State House, as was then the custom, that His Excellency Increase Sumner, Esq., was chosen Governor, and His Honor Moses Gill, Esq., Lieutenant Governor of the Commonwealth, for the ensuing political year. The whole assembly then joined in three hearty cheers, and Capt. Bradlee's Artillery having hailed the announcement with a Federal salute, the multitude dispersed.

At this time Governor Sumner was in the vigor of life, and in this respect formed a contrast to his immediate predecessors. Hancock was so infirm with the gout, that his servants made an arm chair and carried him from his carriage up the stairs to the Council Chamber in the Old State House, when he went to meet the Legislature ; and Adams, older than he, was somewhat bent with years, and showed his infirmity when he walked in the State processions. But on the election day when his successor marched at the head of the Legislative body, on its return from hearing the Election Sermon at the Old South, as he passed in at the door of the Old State House where the apple-woman sat, she was heard to exclaim, "Thank God, we have got a Governor that can walk, at last."

This was the last session that the General Court held in that building, except that, according to adjournment, they met there on the 10th of January, 1798, and on the following day the Governor and Legislature, with the different officers of the Government, moved in procession to the Representatives' Room in the New State House, when the Rev. Dr. Thacher, as Chaplain of the Legislature, dedicated the building "to the honor of God and the People's good."

Dr. Eustis, in behalf of the Representatives of Boston, thanked the House for its politeness in permitting them to take the front range of seats opposite the Speaker.

The next day (Jan. 12) Governor Sumner addressed the Legislature. In his speech he expressed his joy, in common with his fellow-citizens, at the completion of the "stately edifice, not less honorable to the Commonwealth, at whose expense it was erected, than ornamental to the Capital which generously provided the place," and after speaking of the beauty and convenience of the plan, the advantages of its situation, &c., he proceeded to say, "We will then, under the smiles of Heaven, unite in dedicating it to the honor, freedom, independence and security of our country. In this House, may the true principles of the best system of civil government the world has ever seen, be uniformly supported. Here, may every practice and principle be successfully opposed, that tend to impair it. Here may every act of the Legislature be the result of cool deliberation and sound judgment. And in this House, on all necessary occasions, may the Supreme Executive, agreeably to the laws of the land, in mercy cause judgment to be executed."

In allusion to the quasi war with France, (the treaties between the two governments having been repealed by an act of Congress,) he remarked, "The citizens of America love peace, and sincerely wish to cultivate friendship with all nations. But should necessity, which Heaven forbid, compel them to the last resort, the same undaunted spirit and firmness will be discovered in the just defence of their independence, which were so conspicuous at the time it was obtained."

In his office of chief magistrate, he showed the same careful attention to the new duties he was called upon to perform, as he had done in other situations. He dressed in uniform on all military occasions, notwithstanding his brethren of the bench and the bar endeavored to dissuade him from it. He thought that the militia, whether it was regarded as the preserver of domestic peace, of the rights of the states, or as a guard against a sudden foreign invasion, and trained to fight "pro aris et focis," deserved the particular countenance of the Governor, who was its constitutional commander-in-chief; especially, as the hostile measures of the French Government led to the apprehension of a rupture between the two countries. The dress became his portly and commanding figure, and his first appearance in it on the Common, a few days after his inauguration, to deliver the commissions to the officers of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, met the public approbation. Many consider this as one of our most imposing ceremonies. Certainly it is the most intimidating to those officers who take a part in it, and have to march up to the Governor in the public presence on the Common, to resign, or receive their commissions from his hands. It is such as frequently effaces the remembrance of the speeches, which the ceremonies of the day require of those who are invested with office, however well committed they may have been. On this first occasion of the Governor's appearance, his commanding air, in his military costume, added to the trepidation so commonly exhibited. It was not always, however, attended with irremediable embarrassment; for in one instance it was the cause of one of the best speeches ever uttered.

After the Ensign had marched up, quite out of breath, and stood paralyzed before the Governor, he, in his address, charged him with his duties, and spoke of the courage and good conduct expected and required of him to whom the standard of the corps was entrusted in times of peril, and delivered the color to his trembling hand. The recollection of the well-conned speech of the Ensign, in response to the charge which he knew he should receive, entirely forsook him. After an indistinct repetition several times of the words, "May it please your Excellency,"—without uttering a syllable of the complimentary expressions intended for the new Governor, and still hesitating what to say,—and after again repeating the words of form, “May it please your Excellency,” he made a bold effort to rid himself of his embarrassment, and suiting the action to the word, exclaimed, “I have got this standard, and I will keep it.” Thus blundering out, in the fewest words possible, the whole duty of a standard-bearer—“I have got this standard, and I will keep it.”

Governor Sumner felt it to be his duty also to attend the reviews of the militia in various places. At Lexington, in September, 1797, Brigadier General Walker’s brigade, wholly in uniform, defiled before him. In the following year, at the request of Major General Hull, the Governor reviewed the whole of the Third Division at Concord. This was the first time, since the adoption of the Federal Constitution, that so large a body of troops were assembled together in presence of the Commander-in-Chief. They numbered about 4,000 men, who evidently felt the pride of the occasion.* But their fine appearance was marred by a severe northeast storm, to which they were exposed for some hours, and which drove them from the field before the review and manœuvres were completed. At this time the Major General, who was fatigued with the labors of preparation, and had great anxiety of mind, was struck with a paralysis, as he sat on his horse, wet, and exposed to the cold storm.

It may not have occurred to others, (for the writer has never heard it remarked, although it has always impressed itself on his mind,) that the nerves of the General never were so strong after this attack as before, and that it was owing to this that he, who had shown himself so courageously in the Revolutionary Army, at the storming of Stony Point and in other battles, and who had received the compliments of General Washington for covering the retreat at White Plains, faltered in his duty at Detroit, in 1812. Although a paralytic may be restored sufficiently not to be observed on common occasions, it is seldom that the nervous system recovers itself sufficiently to be trusted when put in peril by a sudden attack of superior force. This, we apprehend, would have made a better defence of his conduct on that occasion, than was submitted to the court martial which broke him.

It was remarked that the Governor appeared in uniform on public occasions without aids. This is unusual for a commander-in-chief, but it was not out of disrespect to the militia, for when application was made to him for commissions by two distinguished members of the community,† whose aid would have been of great assistance, he declined to make the appointments, because there was no provision, made by law, for the rank of those officers. That was afterwards fixed, and Governor Strong, his successor, being zealously urged, most reluctantly (for he had not a spark of military feeling) appointed John Phillips, Esq. of Andover, and the son of Governor Sumner, as his aids-de-camp, in 1806, with the rank, given them by law, of Lieutenant Colonel.

General, if we had had such troops as these, we should have made short work of it!”

In his exertions to increase the munitions of war, and to provide gun-houses or additional arsenals for the artillery in various parts of the Commonwealth, the Governor was eminently successful. He thus added to his popularity by his attention to the military department, which had not been cherished with any particular fondness by any of his predecessors in office.

It was by his coolness and firmness, and his confidence in the general government, that he did much to strengthen and support it, at a period when the elements of our political establishments were severely tested. With the illustrious man who was at that time President of the United States, he had long been associated; he loved him as a friend and kinsman, and respected him as a statesman.

Governor Sumner was almost unanimously re-elected in 1799,* but was unable to enter upon the duties of office. He was languishing on a bed of sickness at the time of the meeting of the General Court, at the commencement of the political year; but the Legislature having some constitutional scruples about the right of the Lieutenant Governor to act as chief magistrate after the death of the Governor, without his acceptance of the office, this ceremony took place in the bed chamber of the dying Governor, who was willing to yield his last breath in the performance of his duty. On the 7th of June, in the fifty-third year of his age, he closed his life, to the unspeakable grief of an affectionate family, and of a sympathizing community. "No death," (says Mr. Knapp, whose "Biographical sketches of eminent Lawyers, Statesmen and men of Letters," contain the groundwork of this memoir) "no death, except Washington's," (which took place six months afterwards,) "was ever more deeply deplored in Massachusetts."

His decease having been announced to the Legislature by His Honor Lieutenant Governor Gill, resolutions were passed by that body, that his remains should be interred with military honors at the public expense. A committee of both Houses was appointed to arrange and direct the order and ceremonies of the funeral, which took place on Wednesday, the 12th of June, and was the most solemn and imposing that had ever been witnessed in the Commonwealth. The military escort was commanded by Brigadier General Winslow, and a description of the procession, and also some constitutional points which his sickness and death involved, may be found in the very interesting letter of the late Solicitor General, Daniel Davis, in the note below.* All classes of citizens mingled their sympathies on this mournful occasion. The officers of the militia dressed in uniform, with weeds on the sabbaths; and badges of respect for the memory of the deceased were generally worn for forty days.

On the 13th, the Lieutenant Governor made his speech to the Legislature. He remarked, "It is not suitable to the present interview, that I should attempt an eulogy on the character of the late Governor Sumner; but it may be proper for me to observe, * "Recollections of the last days of Governor Sumner.

No Governor of Massachusetts was ever more loved and venerated than Governor Sumner. His amiable disposition, conciliating manners, and unblemished integrity, both as a Judge and a Chief Magistrate, rendered him the object of universal respect and confidence.

His last election for Governor was on the first Monday of April, 1799. He was then in declining health; and for several weeks before the last Wednesday of May following, when he was to be qualified and inaugurated as Governor for that year, it was too manifest that he would never be able to enter upon the duties of the office.

When the Legislature convened on the day of election, and it was ascertained that the Governor was then on his death-bed, it became a subject of immediate and interesting enquiry, what was to be the state of the Supreme Executive for the ensuing year. No similar case had occurred under the Constitution. Governor Sumner had been constitutionally and almost unanimously elected Governor; but it became certain from the state of his health, that the investiture of the office, according to the forms and usages of the government, could never be conferred upon him. There was a governor elect, with all the powers which the suffrages of the people could confer; but, these powers could not be exercised, until the oaths of office and other ceremonies required by the Constitution and the usages of the State were administered and pursued. Mr. Gill had been duly elected Lieutenant Governor, and the apprehensions of some judicious members of the Legislature were that there would be a sort of interregnum. The Lieutenant Governor could exercise the Supreme Executive power only in case of vacancy in the office of Governor. There then existed no such vacancy. Under these novel and interesting circumstances, the Legislature decided to take every step, and pursue the same course that would have been pursued if the Governor elect was able and ready to enter upon the duties of his office, so far as the same was practicable from the then state of the Governor's health. Accordingly a committee of both Houses was appointed to wait upon the Governor, and if it were possible for him to receive the message, to inform him of his election. I was one of that Committee on the part of the Senate, and was present during the whole important and affecting ceremony.

We first had an interview with his physician, the late Dr. John Warren, for the purpose of ascertaining whether it were possible for the committee to see the Governor and deliver the message. It was the Doctor's opinion that it might be possible for the committee to be admitted, but he refused our admittance until he had seen the Governor, immediately preceding the moment that we had appointed to wait upon him. When we arrived at the Governor's mansion in Roxbury, Dr. Warren [after pointing out to him the necessity of the proposed action, which he admitted.] told us we might proceed. We entered the chamber; and the scene that immediately followed can neither be described nor conceived. The Governor was raised in his bed, and received the committee in his usual kind and polite manner. The late Col. Dawes, who was the chairman of the committee, immediately delivered the message, in a very dignified and emphatic manner. I shall never forget the words of the Governor's answer. They were these: 'Gentlemen, I am extremely grateful to the people of the Commonwealth for the honor they have conferred upon me by electing me to the office of their Governor; I now declare to you my acceptance of the office, and will wait upon the Legislature to take the oaths of office, as soon as my health will permit.' As he pronounced the last words he was much affected, and fell back upon his pillow, from which, I presume, his venerable head was never again raised.

that the dignity of his person, the equanimity and mildness of his temper, his real unaffected piety, his natural and governmental talents, rendered him an ornament to society and a blessing in the world."

I have no doubt that he was prepared and enabled to go through this ceremony by the aid of some slight stimulant, probably a few drops of laudanum. I thought I perceived the effect of it, from the impressive manner in which he spoke in his then state of extreme weakness and in the clear view of speedy dissolution. There was not a person present who was not affected even to tears. There could be no incident in human life more awful and overwhelming to the feelings.

These facts and circumstances were made known to the Legislature in a written and circumstantial report, which was entered on the journals of the Senate; and in consequence thereof, all doubts respecting the vacancy of the office of Governor were removed.

Governor Sumner lived several days after the important and heart-rending scene above described. When his death was announced at the State House, the Legislature took immediate measures for a public funeral at the expense of the State. A Committee of arrangements for this purpose was immediately selected. I was one of them on the part of the Senate, and was present and active during the whole ceremony. A more trying scene, if possible, was yet to be passed through. A sub-Committee was selected to wait upon Mrs. Sumner and inform her of the intended arrangements for a public funeral and request her acquiescence therein. This painful and distressing duty was assigned to the present Judge Robbins (who was then Speaker of the House) and myself. On the evening of the day of the Governor's decease, Judge Robbins and myself waited upon Mrs. Sumner, and had an interview with her in her chamber. According to legislative etiquette, it belonged to me as the representative of the first branch of the Legislature to conduct the interview: but I told Judge Robbins that it was impossible for me to do it, that my feelings would not support me in it, and he kindly undertook it himself. The scene was less trying to him on account of his having frequent and friendly intercourse with the family during the whole of the Governor's last sickness. If I had been summoned to the decisions of the last judgment, I could not have been more horror-struck, than at the moment I entered Mrs. Sumner's chamber. The interview was short, and I retired from it with a degree of excitement and feeling that you can more easily conceive than I can describe. Mrs. Sumner was calm and dignified throughout the whole distressing scene. She gave her consent to the arrangements contemplated by the Legislature, but with manifest reluctance, and I believe altogether from a sense of duty, and contrary to her private feelings.

I of course attended the funeral, and assisted from the commencement to the conclusion of it. The funeral service was first performed at the mansion house, and a most excellent and pathetic prayer was offered by the present Dr. Porter of Roxbury. John Adams, who was then President of the United States, attended the funeral. I saw him when he left his carriage and was announced, as he entered the house, by Sheriff Cutler, then Sheriff of Norfolk.

I cannot be certain as to the number of the military that were ordered out upon this occasion. My impression is that it consisted of four regiments. But it is a fact most vivid in my recollection, that the procession reached from the mansion of the Governor to the Old South meeting house, where a discourse was delivered, and divine service performed by the late Rev. Dr. Thacher, then Chaplain to the General Court. The coffin (but whether it contained the body or not* I have some doubt) was placed in the broad aisle of the church. Dr. Thacher was very much fatigued by the ceremonies of the day, and did not distinguish himself very much by the discourse he delivered.

The following interesting facts I had from Dr. Lloyd, who was one of his physicians, and in attendance to the close of the Governor's life. He told me that the body was opened, (I presume by the consent of the family,) the vital organs were all removed, and a proper quantity of pulverized hemlock bark was put into the cavity of the body. This was necessary to preserve it, on account of the warmth of the weather. Dr. Lloyd described to me the state of the vital organs. He observed he had never seen an instance where they had become more affected and decayed. He described the heart and the liver as being perforated in a remarkable manner and to

The answers from both Houses were full of regard for the deceased, and showed the appreciation he was held in by the Legislature. The Senate thus expressed themselves:—

“We lament—we individually and deeply lament—the heavy loss which the Commonwealth has sustained in the death of our late excellent Governor. He possessed an assemblage of virtues and talents, which eminently qualified him for his dignified station. The great majority of suffrages by which he was last re-elected fully evinces the approbation of his fellow-citizens, and the high sense they entertained of his merit. His candor and sincerity, the purity of his mind and invariable rectitude of his conduct will long secure him a place in their grateful remembrances. His death, therefore, is not less a public than a distressing private calamity. But unerring wisdom guides the counsels of Heaven, and it is our duty patiently to submit to this mournful dispensation.”

The following is the answer of the House of Representatives, as reported by the Committee of which John Lowell, Jr., Esq. was Chairman:—

“We, the House of Representatives, sincerely sympathize with your Honor in the grief occasioned by the death of our late excellent Chief Magistrate. In adverting to this melancholy event, we cannot refrain from pausing, and dwelling for a moment on those qualities of the deceased which so remarkably endeared him to his fellow-citizens. In him were singularly united all those virtues which conciliate affection, and command respect. To an uncommon mildness of temper, and a disposition to promote the happiness of all, were joined unshaken firmness, and an unyielding sense of duty. His knowledge and discernment enabled, and his regard for the public good prompted him to make the most judicious appointments. A correct and enlightened understanding, and a long and intimate acquaintance with the a most unusual degree. He attributed these effects to the suspension of the exercise which the Governor had for many years taken by travelling on the circuits while he was on the bench. And he was decidedly of opinion that these effects and the consequent loss of health was to be attributed to the change in the Governor's mode of life. He also informed me that the vital organs, after they were examined, were restored to the body and buried with it.

The sight of the Governor's portrait at your house yesterday has revived all these impressions and recollections. They are known to no person now alive but Judge Robbins and myself; and I thought a sketch of them might be interesting to you, and have devoted an hour this morning to the recital of them. They are the effusions of the moment, and therefore no apology is necessary for the rapid manner in which they have been stated.

I loved and venerated Governor Sumner as a father and friend. The recollections of his kindness and condescension to me while he was on the bench, and I a young man struggling for my bread, without money, patronage or education, will never be effaced from a grateful heart.

Respectfully your friend, &c.

science of jurisprudence, qualified him to form just opinions of the expediency and constitutionality of such legislative acts as were submitted to his consideration. The whole tenor of his life evinced the sincerity of his piety, and his unaffected patriotism. Surely the death of such a magistrate, and at such a crisis, must be considered as a most serious public calamity ; and if the ardent prayers of his fellow-citizens could have prolonged his most valuable life, long, very long, would he have continued a blessing and an ornament to his country. Nor will his death be lamented by the citizens of this State alone ; the friends of the Federal Government ; throughout the Union, will deeply regret the loss of a man, who, in discharging the important duties of his high office, gave, on every proper occasion, his decided support to the measures of that government."

The testimonials of respect for his character from various sources were very numerous. His name was given to a great number of infants who were baptized that year ; the reverend clergy, the orators and poets of the day paid many warm tributes to his memory. On the day of his funeral, business was suspended, the shops were closed, and the expression of sorrow and mourning was everywhere visible.

His person was attractive and commanding. He was of elevated stature and well proportioned. His countenance was remarkable for composure, and was often lighted up with a smile of peculiar sweetness. Many a young practitioner at the bar has borne testimony to the pleasure and relief he felt, when he was addressing the Court in fear and trembling, in catching the kind looks of Judge Sumner—looks of encouragement and protection which never disappointed the youthful advocate. In his manners he was polite and unassuming, yet dignified and manly. He never compromised or forgot his dignity in any place or circle, even in the moments of his greatest familiarity. His mind was naturally strong, and its various powers were well balanced. He was remarkably free from every thing that had the appearance of party spirit or rancour. His candor and moderation were known to all men. He possessed an unusual degree of self-command. Divesting himself of prejudice and passion, he examined with deliberation and impartiality, and decided with rectitude and wisdom. His cool and dispassionate temper reflects more honor on his memory, inasmuch as it was less the effect of a peculiarly happy constitutional temperament, than of moral discipline and culture, and the benign influence of a religious principle.

Humility without meanness, the incontestible proof of a superior mind, was a distinguishing trait in his character. No one ever heard or saw in his conversation or deportment anything that had the appearance of pride, vanity, or affectation ; or that could be construed into an ostentatious display of his own talents, virtues or services.

Though raised to the highest dignity it was in the power of the citizens of the Commonwealth to bestow, he was never accused nor suspected of employing any unworthy arts to gain the popular favor ; nor of obtruding himself on the public as a candidate for places of power and trust. On the contrary, such was his modesty that when he found the eyes of the community were turned upon him, he appeared not a little surprised and “disordered at the deep regard he drew.” It was owing to this, perhaps, that he declined a place in Congress when it was offered to him in 1782 ; and a seat on the bench of the Supreme Judicial Court, which Governor Hancock importuned his acceptance of, and which he was finally prevailed upon to take. His unwillingness to be considered a candidate for the chair of State may have been the result of the same feeling.

Having come into the possession of a considerable property by the death of his father-in-law, Mr. Hyslop, which took place the year before his election, he was enabled to maintain a hospitality and appear in a style of life in accordance with the generous and social qualities of his heart, and to support the dignity of his station as First Magistrate of a great and respectable Commonwealth. He drove a coach and four on all public occasions. He breakfasted the cavalry and other escorts who volunteered their services on Commencement day, and to the reviews. He was liberal in his receptions of all public characters and strangers of distinction, and entertained at his festive board the Councillors, Senators and prominent members of the House of Representatives, the judicial and other high officers of the government, and distinguished citizens ; and devoted much larger sums to the hospitality becoming a chief magistrate, and to the maintenance of the dignity of the government, than his mere salary would have afforded.

In the more private and tender relations of life he was uncommonly amiable,—a devoted son, a loving and attentive husband, a kind and affectionate father and friend. The purity of his morals was never called in question, and the manner of his life was in a singular degree blameless and exemplary.

He was a substantial practical farmer, and attended personally to the cultivation of the soil, and set an example of good husbandry to his neighbors. He was an excellent horseman, and a great admirer of fine cattle. He was fond of agriculture and gave his attention to improvement in the methods of carrying on its various branches. During his temporary residence at Dorchester, at the time of the siege of Boston, he grafted with his own hand the whole orchard of fruit trees on his farm. He gave much practical instruction to his son in relation to horticulture as well as the other branches of a farmer’s profession, and kept him at work in the garden and the field, and the information thus acquired has proved of great value and has been a great gratification to him during his subsequent life.

In early life, and about the time he entered on the practice of the law, he made a public profession of Christianity as the rule of his religious faith and practice, and became a member of the Congregational Society and Church of the Rev. Dr. Porter in Roxbury. He was impressed with an habitual sense of the truths of religion, and of the importance of its institutions. The temptations of affluence and blandishments of polished life did not, as it too frequently happens, unsettle his principles and corrupt his morals, and thus make shipwreck of faith and a good conscience; but, he held fast his integrity to the end, and was justly esteemed an exemplary member of the Church.

The closing scene of his life was not the least interesting and instructive. His disorder (angina pectoris) was attended with great bodily pain and distress, which he bore with Christian patience and fortitude. He was not insensible of the alarming nature of his disease, and when under the impression that his spirit was soon to take its flight, he took a particular and affectionate leave of his family.

Dr. Porter, who visited him by his request, at a time of his sickness when he appeared to have the full exercise of his reason, and to be apprehensive that his departure was near, thus relates a part of his conversation, in his excellent funeral discourse:—

“A dying bed,” he said, “is not the place for one to begin to attend to his religion and prepare for another world. I have not been unmindful of these concerns. I have thought much of them. The more I have reflected on the subject of religion, the more has my mind been settled and confirmed in its reality and importance. I am sensible that many infirmities and errors have attended me; but I trust I have the testimony of my conscience to the general rectitude of my views and conduct in life.”

“At a subsequent period,” says Dr. Porter, “on the conclusion of the office of devotion, performed at his request, he said, with a gesture and emphasis, the impression of which I shall not easily lose, ‘I AM RESIGNED.’”

Thus, having scarcely passed the meridian of life, ended the mortal career of an exemplary magistrate and citizen, whose conduct and example made an indelible impression upon the community, and whom his fellow-citizens delighted to honor while living, and sincerely mourned when dead.

His remains were deposited in the northerly corner of the Granary burying ground in Boston, near the Athenæum.

The following epitaph, written by the erudite Samuel L. Knapp, Esq., is inscribed upon a monument, which was erected to his memory by his family, an engraving of which is hereto appended.

[By WILLIAM B. TRASK.]

WILLIAM SUMNER, son of William, was born in England, about the year 1605, being by his deposition, given 23d December, 1685, "eighty years old or thereabouts." It is said that he came from Burcester, in Oxfordshire, although the Archbishop of Canterbury, John Bird Sumner, and his brother Charles Richard, the Bishop of Winchester, belonged to Warwickshire, and numerous others of the Sumner family, to Kent. The name was originally Somner or Sommoner, from his office of summoning parties into the ecclesiastical and other courts.

WILLIAM SUMNER, the ancestor, and his wife Mary, settled in Dorchester, Massachusetts. He was made a freeman in 1637; admitted to the Church, in 1652; was for twelve years a Deputy to the General Court; a Selectman twenty-three years, nearly half the time from 1637 to 1688; was a Rater for five years, and a Commissioner "to try and Issue Small Causes" for nine years, from 1663 to 1671 inclusive. In 1645, he "was appointed one of a Committee for building a new Meeting house," and in 1663 was chosen "Clerk of y<sup>e</sup> Training band." His wife Mary died 7th June, 1676. Mr. Sumner's will was proved, 24th March, 1691-2.

The fac-simile of his autograph was taken from an original petition † to the General Court, dated 19th October, 1664.

NOTES ON THE SHRIMPTON, YEAMANS, AND HYSLOP FAMILIES.

Col. SAMUEL SHRIMPTON was the son of Henry Shrimpton, who was a member of the church in Boston in 1639. Henry had a brother Edward, who left five children, four of these were daughters. The inventory of Henry's estate, taken 24 July, 1666, amounted to £11,979, and occupies twelve folio pages on the Probate Records. In his will dated 17 July, 1666, he gave "£10 to the society of Christians in Noddles Island of which Gold and Osborn were members." The whole of this "island or continent of land" was estimated, in Sir Thomas Temple's deed to Samuel Shrimpton, in 1670, to contain 1,000 acres besides the flats; as, on the 6th of May, 1640, "it was declared that all the flats round about Noddles Island do belong to Noddles Island to low water mark." From Sam'l Shrimpton, as their ancestor, it descended to the Greenough, Hyslop, and Sumner families, one of whom projected its settlement as a part of the city and formed a company for that purpose.

Col. S. went to England and there married Mrs. Elizabeth Breeden. They came to America where their son and only child Samuel was born. Upon an after visit to England, the Colonel and his wife persuaded her niece Elizabeth Richardson to come with them to this country, whom their son Samuel m. 7 May, 1696. They had one child only, a dau. Elizabeth, who m. John Yeamans, of St. James' parish, Westminster, Eng. He was a nephew of Lord Barrington. She died 4 Dec. 1721, æ. 19 years. Mr. Yeamans died at Richmond, Surrey, Eng., in 1767, leaving a plantation in the island of Antigua, (which Gen. Sumner sold on his visit to that island in 1818,) and large estates in America.

It appears, by the family papers, that Col. Shrimpton owned 1-20 of a tract of land lying on the Merrimack river, containing in the whole 60 miles in length, and 12 miles in breadth, on each side of the said river, which he empowered his wife to convey to their dau. Elizabeth Shrimpton, then wife of their son Samuel, afterward wife of David Stoddard. This was confirmed by John Yeamans, in 1720.

Col. Samuel Shrimpton d. of apoplexy, 9 Feb. 1697-8. This fac-simile of his autograph was taken from his will dated 5 June 1697.

STARBUCK, NATHANIEL<sup>2</sup>, married Mary, daughter of Tristram Coffin, senr., and born 20 Feb., 1645.

Nathaniel was a wealthy man ; he is also said to have been a man of no mean abilities, but was outshone by the superior capacity of his wife, a woman of uncommon powers of mind. She had been baptized by Peter Folger, in Waiputequat Pond, but years after became "convinced of Friends' principles," and became a preacher among them, as did his son Nathaniel, and his daughter Priscilla. A "Public Friend," who was acquainted with her, calls her "the great woman." On account of her superior judgment, she was often consulted in town affairs as well as in religious matters. She died 13, 9 mo., 1717. Nathaniel<sup>2</sup> died 6, 6 mo., 1719.

They had children—Mary<sup>3</sup>, born 1663, (the first white child born in Nantucket ; she married James Gardiner, son of Richard ;) Elizabeth,<sup>3</sup> b. 9 Sept. 1665, (she married (1) her cousin Peter Coffin, Jr., (2) Nathaniel Barkard, Jr.,) Nathaniel,<sup>3</sup> b. 9 Aug. 1668, (he married his cousin Dinah Coffin, daughter of James, and died in 1752 ;) Jethro,<sup>3</sup> b. 14 Dec. 1671, (he married his cousin Dorcas Gayer, and died 12, 8 mo., 1770 ;) Barnabas,<sup>3</sup> b. 1673, died 1733 ; Eunice,<sup>3</sup> b. 11 April 1674, (who married George Gardner, son of John ;) Hepizbah,<sup>3</sup> (who married Thomas Hathaway, of Dartmouth, Mass. ;) Ann<sup>3</sup> died single, and Paul<sup>3</sup> also.

DORCAS<sup>2</sup> married William Gayer ; she died about 1696 ; he died, after a second and childless marriage, 23, 7 mo. 1710. Their children were—Damaris,<sup>3</sup> b. 24 Oct. 1673, (married, 17 Aug. 1692, Nathaniel Coffin, son of James ; from them was descended Admiral Sir Isaac Coffin, famous in the annals of the isle ;) Dorcas,<sup>3</sup> b. 29 Aug. 1675, (married, 6 Dec. 1694, her cousin Jethro Starbuck as above ;) William,<sup>3</sup> b. 3 June 1677, (he married in England his cousin Elizabeth Gayer, daughter of John, and died in England, a wealthy man, in 1712 or '13.)

SARAH<sup>3</sup> married (1) William Story about 1658 ; (2) Joseph Austin about the year 1659–60, who was dead in 1663 ; (3) Humphrey Varney. "Widow Sarah Storie" is represented to have married Joseph Austin when Wm. Story's inventory was entered ; and Joseph Austin in his will speaks of "my brother Peter Coffin ;" after Joseph Austin's death Elder Starbuck confirms to his "son-in-law Humphrey Varney" husband of "Sarah," land formerly given by him to his "son-in-law Joseph Austin" ; we are inclined to think that Sarah had children in her third marriage, by which she became ancestress to a race of indefinite numbers.

ABIGAIL<sup>3</sup> married Peter Coffin, of Dover, son of Tristram, and lived in Dover. Peter was a noted man in his day, "a gentleman very serviceable in church and state," as the writer of his obituary said, after the death of Peter, 21 March 1715. He was councillor, judge, &c. ; had a garrison house at Dover which was captured 1689, when Peter lost considerable hard money, which grieved him sorely. They had children—Abigail,<sup>4</sup> b. 1657, (who married Daniel Davidson ;) Eliphalet<sup>4</sup> died single ; Peter,<sup>4</sup> b. 20 Aug. 1660, (married his cousin Elizabeth Starbuck ;) Jethro,<sup>4</sup> b. 16

1630. "At Hampton Court, the 29th of September, 1630."

"Samuell Aldersey, Mathew Cradock, and divers others on the behalfe of the Governor and Companie of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England, in America, did by their humble petition to the Board, this day remonstrate, that by reason of the increase of the number of the Planters lately come thether, who tooke no provision with them, And for that divers of their Cattle miscarried, by meanes whereof, and for other reasons more at large sett downe in their petition, they are in great danger to perish this winter, if they be not supplied with some necessarie provisions; The Board did upon their humble suite, thinke fitt, that they should be permitted to transport the provisions of Corne, Victuall, and other things hereunder following, and doe pray the Lord Tresurer to give order to the Officers of the ports accordingly.

Wheat Meale	100 Tonns	Cheese	- 12 weigh
Pease -	- 040 Tonns	Butter	- 50 Kilderkinns

Oatemeale	- 015	Vinagre	- 04 Tonns
Beefe -	- 008	Oyle, Ollive	01 Tonn
Porke -	- 005	besides provisions for apparell."

"Whereas a Petition was this day presented to the Board, on the behalfe of the Gouvernor and Companie of the Massachusetts Bay in New England in America, whereby they desired (amongst other things) leave to transport certaine Corne and other necessarie prouisions for the releife of the Plantacion there, which the Board thought fitt to graunt unto them, as also for the preventing of disorderly Trade of Fishermen, and other interlopers, that a Proclamacion sett out by King James of blessed memorie, beareing date the 6th of November, in the 20th yeare of his rayne should be renewed, with some other needfull and beneficiall additions, which may tend to the safety and prosperitie of the said Plantacion. The Board being alwayes ready to give their best assistance to works of this kinde, which ayme at the propagation of the Christian Religion, the honor of his Majestie, and increase of Trade, thought fitt and ordered that his Majestie's Attorney generall shall be prayed and required to call unto him the Governor or such assistants of the said Companie, as are here in England, and upon conference with them, to insert them into a draught of a Proclamacion, and prepare a bill fitt for his Majestie's royall signature accordingly."—(Co. Regr. Chas. 1. vol. 6.)

"Whereas Captaine Henry Keyes hath made humble sute to this Boarde for permission to transporte thirtie quarters of meale, and twenty quarters of Pease, from the Porte of Portsmouth to Pascatoway in New Englande, for the reliefe of his Majestie's subjects, the Planters there, who through want of such supply are not able to proceede to a farther discovery of those partes. For asmuch as it is meet that a service of that nature should have all convenient furtherance and encouragement; We doe therefore hereby pray and require our very good Lorde, the Lord high Tresurer of Englande to give presente and effectuall order to the Officers of his Majestie's Customes, within the saide Porte of Portesmouth, to permit and suffer the saide Capt<sup>ne</sup> Henry Keys to transport the aforesaid quantities of Meale and Pease according to his humble sute in that behalfe."—(Co. Regr. Chas. 1. vol. 6. 382.)

"Whereas his Ma<sup>tie</sup> hath lately bin informed of great distraction and much disorder in that Plantacion upon the partes of America, called New England, which if they should be true, and suffered to run on; would tend to the great dishonor of this Kingdome, and utter ruine of that Plantacion. For prevencion whereof and for the orderly settling of Governm<sup>t</sup> according to the intencion of those Patents w<sup>ch</sup> have bin graunted by his Ma<sup>tie</sup> and from his late royal father King James. It hath pleased his Ma<sup>tie</sup> that the Lords and others of his most hon<sup>ble</sup> privie Councell should take the same into considera<sup>co</sup>n. Their Lop<sup>s</sup> in the first place thought fitt to make a Co<sup>m</sup>ittee of this Board to take examinacions of the matters informed, which Co<sup>m</sup>ittee having called divers of the principal Adventure<sup>r</sup>s in that Plantacion, and heard those that complained against them, most of the things informed being denyed, and rested to be proved by parties that must be called from that place, which required a long expence of tyme; And at the present their Lordshipps finding that the Adventurers were upon the dispatch of men, victualls and marchandizes for that place, All which would be at a stand, if the Adventurers should have discouragment, or take suspicion that the State here, had no good opinion of that Plantacion. Their Lordshipps, not the faults or fancies (if anie be) of some particular men upon the generall Government, or principall Adventurers (which in due tyme is further to be enquired into) have thought fitt, in the meane tyme, to declare, that the appearances were so faire, and the hopes so great, that the Countrie would prove, both beneficiall to this Kingdome, and profitable to the particular Adventurers, as that the Adventures had good cause to goe on cheerfully with their undertakings, and rest assured, that if things were carried as was pretended when the Patents were granted, and accordingly as by the Patents is appointed; his Ma<sup>tie</sup> would not onely mayntaine the liberties, and priviledges heretofore graunted, but supplie anie thing further that might tend to the good Goverment of the place, and prosperitie and comfort to his people there.—(Co. Regr. Chas. 1. vol. 8. 384.)

1633-4. At Whytehall, the 21 of February, 1633.

"Whereas the Board being given to understand of the frequent transportation of greate numbers of his Ma<sup>te</sup> subjects out of this Kingdome to the Plantacion called New England, (whom divers persons Knowe to be ill affected and discontented as well with the Civill as Ecclesiasticall Government,) are observed to resort thither, whereby such confucion and disorder is alreadie growne there especially in poynt of religion, as besides the ruine of the said Plantacion cannot but highly tend to the scandall both of the Church and State here. And wheras it was informed in particular that there were at this present divers shipps now in the River of Thames, readie to sett sayle thither freighted with Passengers and provision. It was thought fitt and ordered that stay should be forthwith made of the said shippes untill further order from the Board. And that the severall masters and Freighters of the same should attend the Board on Wednesday next in the afternoon with a list of the Passengers and Provisions in each shipp. And that M. Cradock, a cheefe Adventurer in that Plantacion now present before the Board, should be required to cause the Letters Patents for that Plantacion to be brought to the Board.”—(Chas. 1. vol. 9. 503-4.)

“Order for discharge of shippes bound for New England.”

“Whereas by a warrant bearing date the vjth of this present the Severall Shippes following, bound for New England and now lying in the River of Thames were made stay of untill further order from this Board, viz<sup>t</sup> The Clement & Job, the Reformation, The True Love, The Elizabeth Bonadventure, The Sea Flower, The Mary and John, The Planter, The Elizabeth & Dorcas, The Hercules, & the Neptune. Forasmuch as the Masters of the said Shippes were this day called before the Board, and severall particulars given them in charge to be performed in their said Voyage, amongst which the said Masters were to enter into severall Bonds of one hundredth pounce a peece to his Ma<sup>ty</sup> use, before the Clarke of the Councell attendant, to observe and cause to be duely observed and put in execution these Articles following, viz<sup>t</sup>

3. That they do not receave aboard or transporte any person that hath not Certificate from the Officers of the Port where he is imbarqued that he hath taken both the Oathes of Allegiance and Supremacie.

4. That upon their retourne into this Kingdome they certefie to the Board the names of all such persons as they shall transport, together with their proceedings in the execution of the aforesaid Articles.

It was therefore and for divers other reasons best Knowne to their Lo<sup>ppes</sup> thought fitt, that for this tyme they should be permitted to proceed on their voyage. And it was thereupon ordered that Gabriell Marsh Esq. Marshall of the Admiraltie and all other his Ma<sup>ty</sup> Officers to whom the said Warrant was directed, should be required upon sight hereof, to discharge all and everie the said Shippes and suffer them to depart on their intended voyage to New England.

A lyke order, mutatis mutandis, Requiring the Bailiffs and Officers of the Customes of the Port of Ipswich to discharge the Francis and the Elizabeth, bound likewise for New England and stayde by like Warrant within that Port.”—(Co. Regr. Chas. 1. vol. 9. 519.)

Their Lordships hereupon thought fitt and Ordered, that M<sup>r</sup> Meautys, in whose hands the said bonds are remayning shall deliver them up to the Petitioner, for doing whereof, this shal be his warrant.—(*Co. “ His Majestie and the Board, takeing this day into consideration the frequent resort to New England of diverse persons, ill affected to the Religion established in the Church of England, and to the good and peaceable government of this State ; However upon the humble Petition of the Marchants, Passengers, and owners of Shippes, now bound for New England, and upon the reasons by them represented to the Board, his Majestie was graciously pleased at this time to free them from a late restraint, and to sett them at libertie to proceed on, in their intended voyage,—Nevertheless his Majestie well knowing the factious disposition of the People (for a great parte of them) in that Plantacion, and how unfitt and unworthie they are of any support or countenance from hence, in respect of the great disorders and want of Government amongst them, Whereof sundry and great Complaints have beene presented to the Board, and made appeare to bee true by those that being well affected both for religion and Government, have suffered much losse in their Estates, by the unruly and factious partie, Did thinke fitt and order, That Mr. Attorney Generall shall forthwith draw upp a Proclamacion, expresseing his Majestie’s royal pleasure to prohibite all Marchants, Masters and Owners of Shippes, from henceforth to sett forth any Shipp or Ships with Passengers for New England, till they have first obtaineyd speciall Lyeence on that behalfe, from such of the Lords of his Majestie’s most honorable Privy Councell, as are appointed for the businesses of Forraigne Plantacions by speciall commission.”—(Chas. 1. vol. 15. 79.)

“ Whereas by severall late orders of the Board, the Lord Treasurer of England was prayed and required to give effectuall order for the staying of all such Shippes as should bee found at present to bee bound for New England, and to cause the Passengers and Provisions therein to be put on shoare : This day his Majestie being present in Councell, upon severall Petitions presented to the Board, in the names of the Marchants, Passengers, Masters and Owners of Shippes bound for New England aforesaid, aswell for the reasons therein expressed, touching the Petitioners undertakings and covenants for their voyage into those parts, as also for other good causes falling within their Lordshipps grave and wise considerations ; It was by his Majesty, with the advice of the Board, thought fitt and ordered that the said Restraint should bee taken off, and that the Lord Treasurer shalbee hereby authorized to sett at Liberty the said Shippes, together with their Passengers, Lading, and Provisions, formerly stayed by order of the Board as aforesaid ; And that for this one Voyage, aswell the Shippes and Provisions, as also the Passengers thereon depending, should bee cleared and suffered to proceed in their intended Journey, on such Termes and Condicions only as they were formerly subject with, before the time of their late restraint, and noe other.”—(Chas. 1. vol. 15. 86.) of people were sent as now are planted there, That those whom the said Petitioners have there already and all such as they intend now to send are regular people, and neither factious or various in Religion, but conformable to his Majesty and the Laws of the Church of England. That their Plantation is apart from all others and hath no relation to them, That they desire now to send 180 persons to provide and gather up in that country a sufficient quantity of Victualls for furnishing of such Shippes and men as the Petitioners intend to keep and employ in a Fishing trade upon that Coast all the year, for which Works it hath ever been permitted to export provisions from hence. "Ships Licenced to goe to Newfoundland &c."

"Whereas the Merchants trading to Spaine, Portugall, the Straights, &c. did this day humbly represent that the prohibiting of Ships by proclamation to goe for New England, without speciall Warrant, was a foundation to deprive the Kingdome of much Trade, the importacion of much money, his Majestie of much custome, and many Ships and Seamen of employment, And therefore humbly besought the Boord to graunt them liberty to send their shipping intended for Newfoundland and other places, and that by the way they may take in such helpe of freight by Passengers and Goods for New England, as shalbee presented to them, that soe his Majesties Customes, Navigacion and Merchants may bee cherished and increased. Their Lordshippes upon debate and consideracion of the premises did declare, That for all those Ships that are ready to take Freight for the imployment aswell for Newfoundland, Spaine, Portugall, the Straights, &c. as for New England, their Lordshippes are content to give way, And doe order that all the said Shippes now in such readinesse bee permitted to depart and take their passengers with them without any Let or hinderance, but as concerning the Goodes and provisions they are to carry, that is wholly referred to the Lord Tresurer, who is prayed to give such direccion therein as his Lordshipp shall conceive to bee best for his Majesties service. And their Lordshippes did further declare that when there shalbee other Shippes ready for the like imployment to those parts, upon the petition of the owners of them, their Lordshippes wilbee ready to give the like Sufferance for their proceeding in the like wayes, if there shalbee good cause shewen to the Board for it."—(Chas. 1. vol. 16. 22.)

"Sr Ferd. Gorges"

"This day Sr Ferdinando Gorge being called before the Board, to shewe Cause why hee opposed the order of the 11th of October last,*

* Not Entered in the Council Book of that date.

affirmed by Mr. Meautys, Clerke of the Counsell, before the Sub-Committee for Forraigne Plantations to bee the order of the Board. And why hee exhibited a different order of his owne drawing, Confidently affirming the same and denying the other to bee the order of the Board. Thire Lordshipps disliking and reprovng the peremtory cariage of the said Sr Ferdinando Gorge therein, Did nowe againe ratifye and confirme their foresaid Order, and did require the said Subcomittee to proceede in the Execucion of the buisines accordingly, which order followeth in hæc verba.

Whereas it was objected by Sr Ferdinando Gorge, that his promise, whereby hee is charged with the Arreare complained of to bee due from him, did only looke forward to such Shipps as should bee sett out, and voyags made after his said promise, bearing date in June 1632, and not to the Shipps sett out and voyags mencioned in the Certificcate of Sr John Wolstenholme and Abraham Dawes, which were before the date of the said promise. Their Lordshipps doe therefore referr it againe to the Sub-committee, to examine and Certiffy whether his said promise did relate to the Shipps and Voyages sett out, before or after, or to both.—(Chas. 1. vol. 16. 108.)

1638–9. “Att Whitehall, the 20th of March, 1638.

“Concerning Sr Ferdinando Gorge and some poore people.”

“This day was read at the Boord, a certificatt from the Subcommittee for foraine Plantations which followeth in hac verba.—According to your Lordshipps Order of reference of the 22<sup>d</sup> of February, 1638, directing as to examine and certifie whether the promise of Sr Ferdinando Gorges to bee an Adventurer in equall proportion with Capt. John Mason, (whereby he is charged with the Arreare complained of to bee due from him) did only relate to such Shipps as should bee sett out, and Voyages made after his said promise, bearing date in June 1632, or to the Shipps sett out and voyages mencioned in the Certificatt of Sr John Wolstenholme and Sr Abraham Dawes, which were before the date of the said Promise, or to both, Wee have examined the same and fully heard the said Sr Ferd. Gorges, in whatsoever he could alleadge for himselfe, and doe find that his said promise made in June 1632 as aforesaid, had relation to the Shipps sett out and Voyages mentioned in the said Certificatt of Sr John Wolstenholme and Sr Abraham Dawes, which were before the date of his said promise. And it appeared clearely unto us that the objection made by the said Sr Ferd. Gorges, that his said Promise related only and was to be applyed to such Shipps as were sett out and voyages made after his said promise, was a meere Subterfuge and altogether groundless, for that after his said promise made, hee paid in 100<sup>li</sup> which must necessarily bee in relation to the voyages and Shipps sett out before his said promise in regard that since the date of his said Promise there hath not been any Shipp sett out nor voyage att all made by the said Adventurers. Besides it appeared unto us aswell by the Register Booke of Mr. Eyres, Clarke and accountant for the said Company as by the testimonyes upon oath aswell of the said Mr. Eyres, as of George Griffith and Thomas Wannerton, Merchants, that the said Sr Ferd. Gorges did promise as aforesaid, to bee an Adventurer in all the voyages sett forth by the said Adventurers, in equall proportion with the said Capt. Mason. As concerning the some of 254<sup>lbs</sup>. charged to bee owing and in Arreare by the said Sr Ferdinando Gorges (which was ordered to goe towards the satisfaccion of the Wages and Salaries due to the poore petitioners. The prooffe thereof is the said Register Booke of Accompts Kept by the said Eyres, attested by him upon oath to bee a true Accompt. Upon all which Wee are of opinion that the said Sr Ferd. Gorges was in Arreare the said Summe of 254<sup>li</sup> whereof 10<sup>li</sup> only hath been by him paid, since the first complainte of the Petitioners to this Board. Nevertheless in regard Sr Ferd. Gorges did object one particular, whereby he endeavoured to disable the testimony of the said Eyres, and the credit of his register Booke, Wee have at his instance, thought fitt to represent the same to your Lordships, viz<sup>t</sup> That in a cause lately depending in the Court of Requests, betwene one Cotton, Plaintiffe and Sr Ferd. Gorges and Henry Gardiner, defendants, concerning the Somme adventured by Sr Ferd. Gorges in a Fishing Voyage to New England, The Question being whether his adventure were 110<sup>li</sup> or 50<sup>li</sup>. It was notwithstanding the answere of the said Eyres upon oath to an Interrogatory ministred on that behalfe, wherein he affirmed that the Adventure of the said Sr Ferd. Gorges was 110<sup>li</sup>, Resolved by the said Court that the said Adventure was only 50<sup>li</sup> and soe ordered accordingly, a coppie of which deposition and order he now produced before us, Which, whether it may touch to the impeachment of the testimony of the said Eyres, or the creditte of his Register Booke of Accompts, in the matters referred by your Lordships to us, Wee presume not to judge, but humbly submit the same to your Lordships, only wee conceaue it fitt to acquainte your Lordships, likewise with M<sup>r</sup> Eyres his Answer thereunto, which was That the Court of Requests did not reject his testimony there in such a sense as Sr Ferd. Gorges now urges and would make use of to disable his testimony in other thinges. But that although the said order of Court determined it otherwise than as he had deposed, yet the same was but according to the course of all courts, in regard there was but Singularis Testis. And therefore humbly desired that in case the said objection of Sr Ferd. Gorges made any impression with your Lordships, that he might be heard to give further answere thereunto." Signed Will Becher,—Francis Wyatt,—Abraham Williams,—Tho. Meautys,—Laur. Whitaker.

I had intended to give a sketch of my ancestor's romantic and beautiful situation upon the banks of Sudbury river where it receives the waters of Cochitua brook, but it would take more space in the Register than I feel willing to occupy. I will therefore only observe, that on the site of his house now stands the station house of Saxonville B. R. Road—where dwelt Elder John Stone, probably the first white man among the red men of Cochitua Dale.

JOHN DANE'S NARRATIVE, 1682.

A small volume in the handwriting of John Dane, of Ipswich, (great-great-grandfather of Hon. Nathan Dane, founder of the Dane Law Professorship at Harvard University,) has lately been presented to the N. E. H. G. Society by John J. Babson, Esq., of Gloucester. The book contains 132 leaves, is 3½ inches wide, and 6 inches long, and is bound in parchment, with a lappet. On the inside of the cover is written in a large hand:—"Philemon Warner, Junr, his Book, given him by his grandmother Warner, Jan<sup>y</sup> 20th, 1741: 2."—On the first leaf is the following memorandum: "This John Dane was from England, Doct. Phillemon Dane's Father, of Ipswich. I remember y<sup>e</sup> Doct. 60 or 70 years agoe, p<sup>r</sup> PHILE. WARNER, 1770."—On the next page Mr. Dane's writing commences with the following,—probably intended as a title page:

"By John Dane, senner, of Ipshwitch,
And Chiriergen, in the yer of our Lord,
1682;

Containing sum poems in waie of preparation for death, besides the obsaruaton of seauarall prouedensis in the Cose of his lyfe, and aded seauerall meditations.

He that lues out full seauenty years, and has fullfid that number,
his after time that doth apere is of grefe and great wonder. (psalme the 90: 10.)

Mr. Warner has added under this:—"Ipswich, 1682."

The volume contains two narratives,—one in rhyme and the other in prose,—and some religious meditations and advice to the author's children, in rhyme. It also contains minutes of sermons by Mr. Dennison, Mr. Hubbard, and Mr. Gerrish, in the handwriting of one who signs himself John Dane,—probably the son of the first owner. There is also some short hand. The prose narrative—which is here printed—contains all the facts found in the rhymed one, with additional particulars. It will be seen that it is deficient in dates. But it gives the places of residence of the family in England, besides other important facts and interesting descriptions. It is otherwise valuable in giving us an insight into the character and sentiments of persons in Mr. Dane's condition in life, in his day. The writer of the narrative, it seems, came to New England before his parents. He appears to have arrived here in the spring or early part of the summer,—but in what year is not known,—and after a short stay at Roxbury, to have settled in Ipswich. Mr. Felt finds him at Ipswich in 1638.* His father had a house lot granted to him there, "entered 9th 2mo. 1639."†

Sarah Dane, dau. of the narrator, m. 23 Sept. 1668, Daniel Warner, and was probably the "grandmother Warner" mentioned above. Her son, Philemon Warner, b. 2 Feb., 1675, m. 27 April, 1696, Abigail Tuttle, and had Philemon jr. b. 17 Jan., 1697, who "might well remember his great uncle the Doctor, who was living in 1716."‡ Mr. Dane in his will says:—"My will is that my sons John and Philemon have my books and manuscripts, and that Philemon divide them, and John chuse."§ I suppose, from appearances, that this book fell to the share of John, who may afterwards have given it to his sister Sarah Warner.

Below are fac similes of three autographs. The first is that of the narrator's father, written in 1658, the second is his own, 1683, and the last is that of his brother, Rev. Francis Dane of Andover, ab. 1660. I have prefixed a pedigree of the Dane family; in preparing which I am indebted for materials to Mr. Thomas B. Wyman, Jr., and to William R. Deane, Esq. The latter gentleman has allowed me to make use of several valuable letters on this subject which he has received from A. Hammatt, Esq., of Ipswich.

PEDIGREE OF DANE.

A DECLARATION OF REMARKABELL PROUEDENSES
IN THE CORSE OF MY LYFE.

And first of a famely prouedens. In my infansy, and yet I ueary well Remember it, my fatther Remoud his habetation from baicumstid [Berk-hampstead] to Starford [Stortford]. Thare he bout a house, and brout his famely theather; and he went back againe to finesh matters with him he had sould his two, and my mother and hur children ware at Starford. Not being among anie acquaintans, and my father staying longer then she thout he would, or himself other, my mother met with sum wants and was trobeled and weapt. I doubt not but she layd open her wants to god, for she was a serious woman. And my Sister How, she was but a lettell gurle, she went into the yard and sot doune in the sun under the window; and laying hur hand on the ground to Rise up, thare lae a shilling under hur hand. She brout it in. I, being a lettell boy, askt hur where she found it. She shewed me. I went and scrabled with my fingers in the place and found a notther. It being in the nick of time in hur wants, she toke great notis of it and I doubt not but made good improuement thareof, with great acknouledgment of gods marsie at that time.

I shall menshon one more consurning my Mother. When she liued in starford, one nyte, in her slepe, she fell into a dream, and waking she was mutch taken with it. She tould my father, and could not cepe it out of hur mind. And it was, that sutch a minester, I haue forget his name, should preach sutch a weke and sutch a day at elsuam, [Elsenham,] on sutch a text. The thouts of it did so take with hur that she inquired, and as she dreamed, so it was; the same man, the same day, the same text. She and my brother How herd him. I, then being so young, cannot Remember euery thing; but I doubt not but that she made good improuement of that sarmon.

Consarning my self; when I was but a lettell boy, being edicated under godly parents, my Conshans was ueary apt to tell me of euells that I should not doe. Being now about aight yers ould, I was giuen mutch to play and to run out without my fathers Consent and againe his comand. One a time, I haucing gone out most parte of the day, when my father saw me cum home, he toke me and basted me. I then cept home, and folowed my busenes two or thre dase. My father and mother Comended me, and tould me that god would bles me if I obeyed my parents, and what the contrary would ishew in. I then thout in my harte, o that my father would beat me more when I did amis. I fard, if he did not, I should not be good.

Not longe after, I being alone on the shopbord Repping open a payer of bretches of a Gintilmans who had had a hole in his pocut and sewed up againe, thorow which hole he had lost or dropt into his knes of his linings a pese of gould, which, when I saw, I thought I myt haue it, for I thout nobody knew of it, nor could know of it. I toke the Gould and hed it, and sat upon the shopboard to worke; but, thinking of it, I thout it is none of myne. I fetcht it againe, but upone more pondring I went and hed it againe. When I had dun so, I could not be quiet in my mynd, but fetcht it againe, and thout thow nobody could know of it, yet god, he knew of it. So I gaue it to my fatther, hoe gaue it to the gintelman. I cant but take notes of gods goodness in then giving me Restrayning grace to presarue from sutch a temptation, though then I slytly passed ouer many sutch prouedenses.

I did think myself in a good condishon. I was conuinsed that I should pray and durst doe no other, and Red and here sarmons and durst doe no other; yet I was giuen to pastime and to dansing, and that I thout lawfull. Now uppone a time, when I was groune 18* yers of age or thare abouts, I went to a dansing scoll to lerne to dans. My father hering of it, when I cam home tould me, if I went agayne, he would bast me. I tould him, if he did he should neuer bast me againe. With that, my father toke a stick and basted me. I toke it patiently, and said nothing for a day or [two], but on morning betimes I Res and toke 2 shurts on my back and the best sute I had, and a bybell in my pocet, and set the dores open and went to my fathers chamber dore and said, god by father, god by mother. Why, whether are you going? To seke my fortin, I answered. Then said my mother, goe whare you will, god he will find you out. This word, the point of it, stuck in my brest, and afterwards god struck it home to its head.

Allthough I thout my fatther was two Strict, I thout Soloman said, be not holy ouer mutch, and daued was a man after gods oun harte, and he was a danser; but yet I went my Journey, and was from him half a yere before he hard whare I was. I first settled in barcumsted, and thare Rought on a shobord that had bene improud that waie. On a nyte, when most folke was a bead, a mayd cam into the shopbord and sat with me, and we Jested together; but at the last she cared it so, and put huself in sutch a poster, as that I made as If I had sum speshall ocashon abroad and went out; for I fared, If I had not, I should haue cumitted foley with hur. But I ofen thout that it was the prayers of my parents that preuaild with god to kepe me. I then gaue my self mutch to dansing and staying out and heating myself and lying in haymowes, the pepell being a bed whare I abod that I lost my culler and neuer Recuferd it a gaine.

I then went and wrought at harford, [Hertford,] and went to an in for my lodging. The next day I went and got worke in the toune. It was nere the time of the sises at harford, and my m† had manie sargants Cotes to make; and I sat up thre nights to work, and then I went to my In to lodg. The dore was lockt, and I knockt hard. I hard one of the mayds sa, thare is one at the dore. I hard one sa, tis no matter, it is none but the tayler. So they opend the dore, and the ostis sat in a chare by the fyer, in hur naked shift, houlding hur brests open. She said to me, a chare being by hur, she houlding out hur hand, Cum let us drink a pot, and seuerall times Reetrated hur words. I said I was so slepey that I could not stay with her now, but I would drink a cup with hur in the morning; and so I hastend awaie to my Chamber. Here I toke no notes of the goodnes of god in Restraining me, but Rather ascribd it to my self; all though I had as Retched a natter, as I haue bene sens more sensible on then before.

Awhile after thare was a Cockpit bult, to fite Cockes in, and many Knits and Lords meat thare; and thare folowed to the toune a manie braue Lases. And upone a day, as I Remember, thare came on from Starford that I was wonderfull glad to see, that I myt inquier of my frinds thare I inuited him to this in to drink; and thare was one of theas braue lases thare which dind at the table I dind at, and it is lykly that I myt drink to hur and she to me ; but this I know, I neuer toucht hur. The nite after, I came to goe to bead and askt for a lite. My osten sayd, we are busey, you may goe up without, the mone shines. And so I did. And when I cam in the chamber, I went to my bed side and puld of all my Clothes and went in, and thare was this fine lase in the bead. I slipt on my Clothes agayne, and went doune and askt my ost, why she would sarue me so. O, sayd she, thars nobody would hurt you. I tould hur, if I hired a Rome, I would haue it to myself ; and shoud my self mutch angrey. So she gaue me a lite into another Chamber, and thare I lae ; but, in the morning, I went to that chamber I used to ly in, for I had left a lettell bundell of things on the beds tester. I cam to the dore and gaue the dore a shuf, and this fine Mistres Reacht out hur hand out of the bead and opend the dore. So I went in. I doubt mis I am troblsom to you. No, sayd she, you are welcum to me. I tould hur, I had left a small trifell on the tester of the bead, and I toke it and went my waie. For all theas, and manie other of the lyke, I thank god I neuer yet knew any but thos two wifes that god gaue me. But when I conseder my Retched hart, and what I myt with shame and blushing speke that waie, I cannot but sa, O, wonderfull, unspekable, unsarchabl marseys of a god that taketh care of us when we take no Care of ourseluese.

I now being at harford, M<sup>r</sup> Goodin preacht thare, and he preacht consarning prayer. But on saboth day, not being in that trim that i would haue bene in, (I had a great band that cam ouer my shoulders that was not clene, and sum other things that I would haue had,) I would not goe to metting but walkt in the filds close by a meadow sid. Thare was, whetther fly, wasp or hornet, I cannot tell, but it struck my finger, and watter and blod cam out of it and paid me mutch. I went up to a hous and shoud it, but thay knew not what a sting I had at my harte. Now I thout of my mothers words, that god would find me out. I hastend home to the Chamber I lay in, at my masters house ; and when i cam thare I toke my bybell and lokt ouer sum instructions my father had Ret, and I weapt sorly. The payne and swelling increast & sweld up to my shoulder. I prayd ernistly to god that he would pardon my sinn and heall my arme. I went to a surgin and askt him what it was. He said it was the take. I askt him what he meant. He said it was taken by the prouedens of god. This knoet home on my hart what my mother said, god will find you out. Now I made great promises that if god would here me this time I would Reforme.

It pleased god in a short time to ease me and I did Reforme, and stod in aw of gods Judgments, though I had a linking mind after my former pastime. I then Rout with m<sup>r</sup> Tead, that liues at Charlstoune. He was a young man then. He and I was going to a dansing on nite, and it began to thunder, and I tould him I doubted we ware not in our waie ; and he and I went back againe. But about a munth or six wekes after, I had a mynd to uisit a frind of a saboth day foure myle of of harford ; but I tok a good whyle pondring whether I myt or no. I knew m<sup>r</sup> gooding was a good man, and that the other was naught ; but, to quiet my mynd, I thought that Christ said consarning the phareses, thay set in moises chare, here them. I thought he myt preach good matter. And thus I blynded my eyse, and went. And when I cam thare, thay ware gone to metting ; and I flattred myself, it may be I shall mete them cuming home. And so I went in to an orched, and sat doune in an arbore ; and, as before, one the same finger and on the same place, I was stricken as before, And as it struck my hand so it struck my harte, for I sudingly Rose up and went into a wood ; and thare I cryd bitterly, and now concluded that god, god had found me out. I was now utterly forlorn in my spiret, and knew not what to du, thinking that god now had utterly forsaken me, and that he would here me no more. And when I had cryd so long that I could cry no longer, I Rose up in a forlorne condishon, and went home to harford. I then, in a Restles condishon knew not what to du. I was thinking what to do to throw of this troble ; and at this time, awhile after, thare was on master scurfeld, [Scofield ?] who was a minester and my godfather, that had a sonn that was bound to saint Christifars, and he was at me to goe with him. I Readily agreed. And when the time was cum that we should goe, thare came nuse that saint Christifars was taken by the spanyard.*

Then was I at a sore lose, and considred what I should du. I drew up this conclushon, that I would goe and work Journey work thorow all the Counties in ingland, and so walk as a pilgrim up and doune on the earth. But, at last, I had sum thouts to goe first home to my fathers house ; but I thout he would not entertaine me. But I went ; and when I came home, my fatther and mother entertained me ueary louingly, and all the naighbors. Yet my mynd was still trubled, though I had sum secret thouts that god myt still doe me good. M' hares [Harris ?] preaching at storfard on that text, Am I my brothers Cepper ? declard that we out to be one anothers keppers. Upon which I spake to one that I was acquainted with, that if he saw me eyther du or say that that was not mete, that he would tel me of it. At that time when I herd anie Red a chapter that thare was anie of the promises in, my tares would Run doune my Chekes. I saw a young man Cuming in the streat, and I fard that he would call me out. I left the shopbord and went into a backhouse, and prayed to god to kepe me that I myt not be ouercum.

After awhile that I had abod with my father, m' Nortent† cuming to my fathers wisht him to put me to m' Barentons. That was a ueary Religious famely as euer I came in. And I went theatther and was Buttler ; thare I cept companie with the choises Christians. I went to here m' farecloth, thre or fowr myle, I haue forgot the tounes name. The words of m' fare Clothes text was thease : Ye that ware alents and strangers from the comanwelth of isrell hath he Reconsild to himself In this sarmon he did so set forth the loue of Christ, his Redenes and willingnes to entertaine pore sinners, as that I Beleue thare ware uearey feaw dry eyse in the metting house, nor without dores for manie could not cum in. It was great in-curegment to me.

Sone after this I mared, and went and dwelt at a place called wood Roe, in hatfeld. Sone after I had the palsie taking me, which did mutch weaking my brayne and spoyle my memory. And just it was with god that it should be so, for I cannot but acknowledg of what god had then bestowed on me. I went to a phisishon, and he tould me that it was too latte to doe me annie good. I was so as that I could scarce goe to bed or from bed without helpe. And my mother hauing bene saruant to the Ladie denney,* she speaking of it to the Ladie, she tould hur of a meadson, that had cuered an ould woman of thre score yeres ould. My mother, diligently attending to the meathod of the besenes, cam to me and aplied the same to me, and it ceuerd me; though I have the marks of it on my face to this day. Then I liued on wood Ro grene, on hatfield forrist. No soner on trobell was at an end, but a nother insude. There was on muschen liued under the same Rofe that I liued in, only he liued at one end and I at the other. Thare was farmers and yemans sonnes meat thare and I was among them, thinking no harme. But thay ware a contrifing to haue a mearey metting at that muschins hous, and inuitted me to be one of them. And being among them, thay would contrif thare busenes with me, and tould me that thay would haue four bushills of barly out of a barne, (the ouner of which, one of these was his son,) and this muschin was to turne it into malt, and brew it, and drink it thare. I durst not Cros them, thay ware sutch blustring lades; but I was in a sad tune, and knew not what to doe. But I went to my Brother Howest† father and aduised with him. He was a uery onest man, and he tould me I should, by no meanes, be among them when thay did act that busenes, but make sum Journey sum waie or other, and he would du the busenes for me. So I did. And he acquainted the woman of the house, a prudent woman. And at the time apointed thay went to the barn. The woman, hauing had fore knowledg of it, stud after supper at hur hall window lesening, the barne not being fare distant from the house, and she hard a noise at the barne, and sent suddinly to the barne, and toke them with fowr bushills of barly, cared out of the barne in a sacke. The thing being discouered, the men ware in a bad tose, but thay suspected me; and the yemons sonn came flattring to me, to know if I did not tell of it; and said it is well that it was found out, but neds he would know if I did not tell sum of the famely. I toud him I had not spoke with anie of the famely sens we ware togetther. Many words past, but nothing did apere, but suspishon. But on of the Company (as afterwards I was informed, and I myself suspected him and escaped his hands) came with a sord to my shop to kill me.

This was no sooner ouer but cumes a new trouble.

I then went to liue in the chef place in hatfield toun, and toke a prentis and kept a gurniman. And the taylers ware so disgust at it that thay made arnestly to the ould lady barenton, S<sup>r</sup> fransis barenton's‡ widdow, and to m<sup>c</sup> S<sup>r</sup> Thomus barenton to git me out of the toun; for sayd thay

* There is a monument at Bishop's Stortford to Lady Margaret Denny, a descendant of the Edgecumbe, of Mount Edgecumbe, in Cornwall, Maid of Honor to Queen Elizabeth, and wife to Sir Edward Denny, knt., Groom of the Queen's Privy Chamber. She died April 1648, aged 88. The Lady Denny mentioned in the text may have been this person. See Beauties of England and Wales, VII, 214.

† It appears from this that the father of James How, who emigrated to New England and settled at Ipswich, resided at this time at Hatfield, co. Essex, Eng., or in its vicinity. This fact may assist his decendants in tracing their English ancestry.

he takes up all our worke, and we know not how to liue. This was so eagerly prosecuted as that m<sup>r</sup> Roburd barenton tould me y<sup>t</sup> he would giue me his eres, if he did not send me out of toun. And after thre times sent for before S<sup>r</sup> Thomus barenton, by warrant, and pleaded against, and could not preuaile, Thay sumansd me to the quarter seshons ; but god of his goodnes stod by me, and afterwords I found great frenship from thos that was my profest aduersareys.

When theas stormes ware a litle ouer, thare was a great cuming to nu ingland ; and I thout that the temptations thare ware two great for me. I then bent myself to cum to nu ingland, thinking that I should be more fre here then thare from temptations ; but I find here a deuell to tempt, and a corupt hart to deseue. But to Return to the way and manner of my cuming. When I was mutch bent to cum, I went to starford to my fatther to tell him. My brotther how was thare then. My fatther and motther showd themselves unwilling. I sat close by a tabell whare thare lay a bi-bell. I hastily toke up the bybell, and tould my fatther if whare I opend the bybell thare i met with anie thing eyther to incuredg or discourdeg that should settell me. I oping of it, not knowing no more then the child in the womb, the first I cast my eys on was : Cum out from among them, touch no unclene thing, and I will be your god and you shall be my pe-pell. My fatther and motther neuer more aposd me, but fundered me in the thing ; and hasted after me as sone as thay could. My first cuming was to Roxburey. Thare I toke a pese of ground to plant of a frind. And I went to plant, and hauing cept long in the shep, the weatther being hot, I spent my self, and was ueary wearey and thurstey. I cam by a spring in Roxbuery streat, and went to it, and drunk, and drunk againe and againe manie times ; and I neuer drounk wine in my lyfe that more Refresht me, nor was more pleasant to me in my lyfe, as then I absolutly thout. But m<sup>r</sup> Norton being at ipshwitch, I had a mynd to liue under him. And, on a time, I came to ipshwitch alone when thare was no path but what the ingens had made ; sumtimes I was in it, sumtimes out of it, but god directed my waie. By the waie I meat in on place with forty or fiftie indiens, all of a Roe. The formost of them had a long stafe that he held on his forhed lyke a unicorns horne. Many of them ware powwous ; and, as I past by them, I said, What chere. Thay all with a loud uoise, laughing, cryd out, What chere, What chere, that thay made the woods Ring with the noyse. After I parted with them about a myle, I meat with two indines, one of them a uery lusty sannup. I had a packet under my arme, and he toke hould of it, and pekt into it. I snatcht it away, with an angrey countinans, and he made no more of it. So I came to ipshwich, and agreed with goodman medcafes uesell to bring me from boston, whare I had brout my Goods. I brout a yeres prouidyon with me, but I sone parted with it. My meall I parted wth for indin the next yere. I thout if on had it another should not want. Thare came a naibor to me and said he had no corne. He made great complaints. I tould him I had on bushill and I had no more, but he should haue half of it. And he had ; and after I herd of sartain that at the same time he had a bushill in his house. It trubled me to se his dealings, and the dealings of other men. Manie trobles I past thorow and I found in my hart that I could not sarue god as I should. What thay ware, ware two teadus to menshon. But uppon a time walking, with my Gun on my shoulder charged, in the myle brok path, beyond Decon good-hewes, I had seauerall thouts cam flocking into my mynd, that I had beatter make away myself then to liue longer. I walkt discosing with sutch thouts the best part of an ouer, as I Judged it, at length I thout, I oute of two euells to chuse the least ; and that it was a greater euell to liue, and to sin against god then to cill myself, with manie other satanecall thouts. I cock my Gun, and set it one the ground, and put the musell under my throte, and toke up my fote to let it of. And then thare cam manie thing into my head ; one that I should not doe euell that good myt cum of it. And at that time I no more scrupld to cill myself then to goe home to my oune house. Though this place is now a Rode, then it was a place that was not mutch walkt in. I was then mutch lost in my spiret, and as I Remember the next day m<sup>r</sup> Rogers preacht, and exkpressing himself that those ware blesed that fard god and hopt in his marsie. I thout that I fard god and hopt in his marsie. Then I thout that that blesednes myt belong to me, and it mutch supported my spiret.

Upone a time we ware in sum preasant want in the famely, & my wife tould me she had nothing for the children. She desierd me to take my gun and se if I could git nothing. And I did goe ; and I had one pigg and then that was hily estemd on, and that folowd me a great waie into the marshis. I thout the prouedens of god semd to tell me that I should not goe out to day. So I Returnd back againe with my pigg, and when I cam within les then forty Rod of my house, a cumpany of great gray gese cam ouer me, and I shot and brout doun a galant gose in the uery nick of time.

In sixty one, my house was burnt, as nere as I can Remember ; and it was a most uialant fier. At that time I could not but take notes of seuarall prouedensis concurring with. I doe not know that I did murmer at it, but was silent loking up to god to santifie it to me. It pleased god to stur up the harts of my louing frinds to help me to the careyng on of another. I had bene ill before, and not well fitting to goe abrod, and could not indewer weat on my fete. When the carts went into the woods, I went with them, and manie times in the swamps broke in up to the knese, in could watter, in the winter. And it pleasd god I grew beatter then before, which I lookt on as a speshall hand of god. A second prouedens was this that, though my prouidyons was all burnt, I had a stock of fine swine, and the corne that was burnt, when the flowrs fell downe and the fier out, thease swine fell to eatting the burnd corne, and fatted to admiration, and that in a small time, so that I had good porke for the workmen to carey on the work.

Thus god hath all along presarud and cept me, all my daies. Although I haue manie times lost his speshall presanc, yet he hath Returnd to me in marsi againe. Ons in ingland at M<sup>r</sup> Barentons house, in Christmas time, the cumpanie in the hall was shewing trickes in the nite, and m<sup>r</sup> Barenton came and stoud by. I being thare I toke notes that my m<sup>r</sup> changed hur countinans, and the tares Ran doune hur chekes and she turnd awaie. I preasantly thout that hur thouts was better improud then myne. It put me apone a serious medetation of the Joys of heauen and of the uanetys of this world. It toke sutch an impreshon of my harte as that, though it was a time of Jolety, I could scarse here musick nor se wantonnes, [dancing ?] that i was able to show my face without sheding of tares.

The lyke impreshon had my thouts brout to me upone a question in our priuet mettings, upon a question of that text : Gods loue constraynes us to loue him that has loued us first. Beattng my thouts on gods infiniet loue toke sutch an impreshon of my harte as that I thout I could doe anie thing for god or safer anie thing for god. O louing Relations haue a Care of quenshing sutch motions of gods spiret, lest you bring sorow and affliction on to your heads and harts, as manie others haue done, to thare great gref and sorrow ; and I can speake it to the grefe of my soule, by wofull exkperans.

MR. BISHOP, THE TAUNTON SCHOOLMASTER.

Lechford, in his "Plain Dealing," (p. 40,) in giving an account of the gathering of the church at "Cohannet alias Taunton," informs us that : — "Master Hooke received ordination from the hands of one master Bishop, a School-Master, and one Parker, an Husbandman." Hon. Francis Baylies, in his researches while composing his "Historical Memoir of the Colony of New Plymouth," was unable to ascertain the christian name of Mr. Bishop, but he met with some fact or facts which led him to think that Mr. B. afterwards removed to New Haven, (Baylies's Plym. Part II, pp. 265, 282.) Rev. S. H. Emery (Ministry of Taunton, Vol. I, p. 41) does not appear to have learned anything further respecting him ; but Mr. Winsor (History of Duxbury, p. 228) has somewhere found "an ancient freeman of Taunton" mentioned, who bore the name of "Mr. John Bushop." As no other "Bishop" has been met with early at Taunton, and as this person has the "honorable prefix of Mr.," there is great probability that he was the schoolmaster mentioned by Lechford ; who, I presume, was also the "Mr. Boshop" interested in the first purchase of Taunton, whose "rights," in 1675, were owned by Lt. George Macey. (Baylies's Plym., Part II, p. 277.)

In view of these facts, I have queried whether the person who assisted at the Taunton ordination might not have been Rev. John Bishop, who afterwards (about 1644) was settled at Stamford, in New Haven colony, as the successor of Rev. Richard Denton. Trumbull, in his History of Connecticut, (Vol. I, p. 299,) gives the following account of the Stamford minister and his settlement. "The church sent two of their members to seek them a minister. They travelled on foot to the eastward of Boston, where they found Mr. John Bishop, who left England before he had finished his academical studies, and had completed his education in this country. They engaged him to go with them to Stamford. He travelled with them on foot so great a distance. The people were united to him, and he labored with them in the ministry nearly fifty years." Rev. J. W. Alvord, in his Historical Address at Stamford, (p. 19,) gives a similar account, and further informs us that the names of the brethren sent were George Slason and Francis Bell, and that Mr. Bishop carried his bible under his arm, through the wilderness, to Stamford, which bible was then (1841) in the possession of Noah Bishop, one of his descendants.

The fact that Mr. Bishop was found to the eastward of Boston, does not, I think, render the above supposition improbable, as it is likely that he had left Taunton sometime before this.

Prefixed to the Funeral Sermon preached on the death of Francis Foxcroft, Esq., of Cambridge, by Nathaniel Appleton, we find a Preface, written by Henry Flynt, (also a subscriber to Prince,) in which is the following character of Col. Foxcroft:—"Such was that honorable and worthy gentleman, Col. Foxcroft, upon occasion of whose death the following sermon was preached; for he was a truly just and righteous man, take the word in a large or more restrained sense. He was an upright man, one that feared God and eschewed evil. It is known that he was a gentleman by birth, of a worthy family in the North of England, where he had a good school education. He was bred a merchant, and was very expert and skilful, as well as very just and upright, in all his business. His natural powers were extraordinary; his acquired knowledge, of various kinds, was so too; his virtues were great and eminent. His generosity, prudence, sincerity, justice towards men, and piety towards God, were conspicuous to those that knew him. His temper, indeed, was sudden, and made almost uncontrollable by the violence of the gout and pain he was such an uncommon instance of; but this was his burden and lamentation. He was a person of a grave and austere countenance and conversation, mixed with much of the gentleman and christian. He was a man of faith and prayer; true to his God, his king, and his friend, and just to all. He discharged the office of Judge of Probate, and other honorable offices he for many years sustained, with much ability and fidelity. He was of a public spirit, a lover of this country and its best interests, and particularly of the College. He lived and died in firm adherence to the Constitution of England, in Church as well as State; and yet attended with satisfaction and devotion on all the public administrations of divine worship in Cambridge, where he spent the latter part of his life, and was far from the unchristian opinion, which confines the true ministry and ordinances of Christ to one particular denomination or persuasion of Christians."

Rev. Thomas Foxcroft, also a subscriber, was brother to Francis, b. 26 Feb. 1697, grad. H. C. 1714, m. Mrs. Anna Coney, 1718. He was Pastor of the First Church in Boston, where he was settled as colleague with Mr. Wadsworth. Mr. F. was settled 20 Nov. 1717, d. 18 June, 1769, aged 73, of which years 52 were spent in the ministry. He preached a sermon on the death of his mother (Elizabeth Danforth, daughter of Rev. Thos. Danforth, of Cambridge) in 1721. In 1736 he had a paralytic shock, which obscured his intellect. His printed publications amounted in number to 32, a list of which is given in Emerson's History of the First Church. His son, Rev. Samuel Foxcroft, b. 1735, grad. H. C. 1754, settled at New Gloucester (Maine) in 1765, where he died March 2, 1807.

A house lot, on application, having been granted to him in Pequot,† now New London, he removed thither in 1652, and was soon after chosen to keep an ordinary. He died Nov. 6, 1654, leaving a wife Mary, and sons Gabriel<sup>2</sup> and Thomas.<sup>2</sup> His wid. survived him but a short time, and his son Thomas probably died at sea still earlier than the father. Gabriel mar. March 3, 1653–4, Elizabeth Abbot, at Guildford.‡ They had 7 children, the youngest of whom, Lieut. Joseph,<sup>3</sup> b. Jan. 18, 1673, m. 1696 Mary Stevens of Killingworth. Their son Peter,<sup>4</sup> b. April 6, 1700, was the subject of this notice. We discover nothing particularly marked in his character or history. In 1740 he was a grand juror. In 1742, with several other prominent members of Mr. Adams's Church, he associated in forming a Society of Separatists, a sect at that day somewhat common in some parts of Connecticut. He died Feb. 24, 1775, and on his monument is to be found the prefix of Captain. He m. July 3, 1726, Mary Truman, and had Elizabeth,<sup>5</sup> b. The subject of this memoir grad. H. C. 1695. In 1698 he went on a mission to Pennsylvania where he labored about two years. Preparatory to this he received an Apostolic letter, commission, or recommendation, pledging all possible encouragement, and certifying that the character of his piety, learning and prudence was such as to render him worthy of countenance in the undertaking, and finally commending him and his pious labors to the acceptance of the people of God, wherever His Holy providence may dispose of him. This bears date Aug. 25, 1698, and is signed by Increase Mather, Peter Thacher, Cotton Mather, James Allen, John Danforth, Benjamin Wadsworth, Samuel Willard. The place where he preached was Newcastle, Penn.†

In the year 1702 he was ordained minister in Duxborough, where he continued till Nov. 1738, when, by reason of bodily infirmity, and some difficulty growing out of a civil contract between him and his people, he was dismissed.‡ From an examination of some sermons in manuscript, written in a plain hand, we should say that he was a faithful preacher. Among them is an exposition on Matt. 16, 24 to 27 inclusive, containing 129 pages. We do not know that he ever published any of his writings.

He m. Jan. 31, 1705, Hannah Wiswall, b. Feb. 22, 1682, she being the daughter of his predecessor in the ministry. His children were—Mary, b. Feb. 23, 1706, baptized April 13, 1707; Hannah, b. He died at Lebanon, Nov. 14, 1745, and his funeral sermon was preached two days afterwards by Rev. Solomon Williams, from Gen. 47, 9.

By his will, bearing date May 18, 1739, it appears that he was possessed of a large estate. After giving very liberally to his son John, in lands and money, he gave to his son Ichabod, besides considerable in lands, £2000 in money. He also gave to his son last named his Negro man named Jack, and his silver tankard marked S. M. R., a silver porringer, horse, gun, &c. As a specimen to his daughters he gave to Althea, besides 400 pounds in money, his best tankard marked J. H. His son Ichabod was a merchant, and m. first May 25, 1749, Mary Hide, who d. July 1, 1750; m. second, Jan. 16, 1752, Lydia Brown, and had six children. His third son John was a grad. of Y. WILLIAMS, REV. JOHN, of Deerfield, for six copies. There is extant, as the pages of the Register show, an account of the Williams family. No name among the subscribers to the great and important work of Prince, stands pledged to support the author by so large a subscription. The Williamses alone subscribed for forty-one copies. Of these, the subscription of the Rev. John, of Deerfield, was for six. This gentleman is extensively known in New England history. The following particulars of him and his family are the more valuable because they were published immediately after his death. They are from the New England Weekly Journal, of June 23d, 1729, and are as follows:—

"We are informed that on Wednesday the 11th inst. [June, 1729] Died the Rev. Mr. John Williams, Pastor at Deerfield, of a fit of the Apoplexy, in the 65th year of his Age. The Lord's Day preceding, he preached both parts of the Day to his People, though he felt himself something heavy and indisposed, being but a few days before returned from his journey to Boston; on Monday morning he was Speechless, and so continued, (except a word or two he spoke to his son the next day,) until Wednesday about midnight, when, notwithstanding all endeavors for his relief, (several Physicians being there,) He expired, to the great surprize and distress of his people, as well as his relations, to whom he was, on the best accounts, greatly endeared.

"He was the first Pastor settled in that town (circa Anno 1686,) and continued laboring with them in all seasons, and the difficulties and troubles that attended such a frontier town, by the Indian Wars, till Feb. 29, 1703-4; When by an Army of (about 300) French and Indians, that Town was mostly Destroy'd and captivated. His wife was then kill'd; and 2 child<sup>n</sup> and 2 servants, He himself, and the rest of his Family (except his eldest Son) carried to Canada. God wonderfully preserved both him and them, thro' the cold and hardships of the dreadful march of 300 miles thro' the Desert to Mont-royal. And afterwards he was sent to Quebeck. From whence thro' the good hand of God and the care of this Government, he was returned to Boston on Nov. 21, 1706, with 57 captives. As may be more largely seen in his book published after his ret<sup>n</sup> home.

"Not long after he Resettled with those few people who return'd from Canada, and those who yet remain'd at Deerfield. Since which God hath remarkably protected them, smiled upon them and built them up. Mr. Williams would sometimes say, 'It was a dangerous thing to be set in the Front of New England's Sins.'

"All the strong Temptations he met with (and sometimes Threatenings of Death, from the Salvage Indian by whom he was taken) had no influence upon him to make Shipwreck of Faith or of good Conscience.

"His Captivity, tho' it was a very distressing and sore Calamity, and attended with many difficulties, yet it was observable, 'That thro' the Natural Vivacity, Calmness and evenness of his Temper, and a gracious submission and resignation, his spirit was kept unbroken, thro' all his sore Trials. And thro' the gracious Presence of Christ, he came forth of the Furnace as Gold refined, and more fitted for his Master's use: Remembering and Imitating his Glorious Lord; and having learn'd Obedience by the things w<sup>h</sup> he suffered.

"He was heartily concerned for the Interest of Relig<sup>n</sup> and the best good of this Land, and a constant Intercessor at the Throne of Grace for the same.

"So that a very grievous breach is hereby made not only upon the Flock of Christ (and especially at this juncture when they were entering upon the great charge of erecting a new Meeting House) but also upon that Country and Neighborhood, so soon after the Death of the Rev. Mr. Stoddard of Northampton. Yea, it o't to be resented as a great and public Loss. As a fall of one of the Pillars of the Land.

"On the Friday Following, he was decently interr'd. The Rev. Mr. Chancey of Hadley, preach'd a Funeral Ser. on the occasion.

"It pleased God to bless him with 8 child<sup>n</sup>, 4 sons and as many Daughters (yet living, tho' one of them in a doleful Captivitie*—for whom may the Prayers of God's People be yet offer'd up to him)—Three of his sons are settled in the Ministry at Mansfield, Springfield (Long Meadow) and Watertown, in good repute. One at the College, who, it is to be desired, may meet with the kindness of Survivors for his Father's sake."

It is believed that there is in existence a portrait of Mr. Williams, which should long ere this have been engraved to accompany the excellent memoir of him by his accomplished descendant, Stephen W. Williams, M. D., of Deerfield.

In 1735, three of the sons (Eleazer, Stephen and Warham) of the

LETTER OF THOMAS THACHER.

MR. S. G. DRAKE,—

Dear Sir,—I enclose a copy of a letter from Rev. Thomas Thacher to his son Peter, in London, afterwards minister of Milton. It was found with the Thachers of Attleboro', in possession of Deacon Peter Thatcher, now living in the house erected by his grandfather Rev. Peter, and then occupied by Dea. Peter his son, the father of the present Dea. Peter, whose son Peter, of Cleaveland, Ohio, has the letter in a state of decay, which he conserves with great care in a case. He brought it to Boston last summer and I copied the same as read to me by him. A small part, you will observe by blanks in my copy, were obliterated, but nothing of essential importance is lost.

Very respectfully yours,

WILLIAM TYLER.

Boston, 16. 8. 1676.

My dear Son Peter,—

I have received four letters from you, whereby I have joyfully and I hope thankfully taken notice of the kindness of God, in your comfortable voyage to, and kind reception in England, by our friends; which has enlarged my desires to hear farther from you. I hope also you have long ere this received mine to you. At present you may understand that God hath utterly scattered, delivered up and subdued the heathen that first rose up against us, delivered up Phillip to death, cleared the coasts of Plymouth, Narragansett, Connecticut, Quaboag, &c., from those bloody and blasphemous heathen; but behold a new enemy is broken out to the east and northward who have laid waste the country, &c., slain my good friend Capt Lake, and many others, and this very day past woeful tidings is come of the taking in by surrender Mr. Scott's * garrison at Stony Point, he being but the last week come from the same to Boston, and leaving Esq. Joslin, as they call him, chief commander; what the particular circumstances are, is not yet certain amongst us: but this is certain, that the place is taken, the garrison strong; two great pieces there, and many small arms, and good store of provisions. Such a spirit of fear and cowardice is poured out on the inhabitants of those parts, that it is exceeding ominous. The Indians carry all before them, by sea and land, on the main and on the islands in Casco, have taken several vessels, one with two great guns in it, &c. This part of the war is like to be the more difficult, because so far off from us; because so near the French, who are reported to be amongst the Indians. This day it was said that there were twenty in the exploit; but we have no certainty of it, and foolish jealousies may feign that fear makes scarecrows to affright the fearful; and a sluggard may say a lion is in the way. So, many of those fearful persons may think to hide their shame by such suggestions. As for myself I at present enjoy a comfortable measure of health and strength, though laboring under some weakness gotten in my sickness. If you have not more than ordinary encouragement, and a most evident call to stay in England, I hope I shall see you here, if the Lord lengthens our lives to the next summer. The Lord guide your whole way, and bless you with all the blessings of his everlasting covenant, and make you a blessing wherever you come, that he may be your portion. I had almost forgot to tell you that I received a letter from my brother Paul Thacher, that lives in Salisbury, certifying that my brother John died three years ago, very poor. That my mother in law's sister, one Mrs. Elizabeth Coombs, widow to Mr. Coombs, the great Anabaptist, is alive; she was a lively hearty christian when I lived at Salisbury, and I am confident would rejoice greatly to see you: being an old friend of my father's. If you go thither I presume that you will find many old friends, that will rejoice much to see you. But I fear such [obliterated] ne coming on in England that I wish you here. Your sister Betty has nearly recovered, blessed be God, from a sore dysentery flux, which is malignant and has taken away many.

To B. D. your salutations were very acceptable. Your brother Thomas has not yet returned from New York, but is expected daily. The Lord bring him in safety. Your brother Ralph and his family, as also your brother Thomas's, for aught I know are all in health. If you can get Ames Medulla and cases in English for your brother Ralph do it and forget it not [here follows a line of shorthand.] Once again I commend you to the grace and benediction of God according to his everlasting covenant.

This day came news to hand that Mr. Joslin was deserted by those in the garrison whilst he was treating with the Indians, so that he with four more with three women were forced to flee in the night; one of the women died by the way; they fled in old canoes to a place not far from Piscataqua, so that Mr. Joslin was innocent in that matter.

Present my service to my brother and sister Barker and to my son and daughter Sheaf; her mother received great comfort in the letter she sent and doth vehemently long for their return.

BLOWERS.—WILLIAMS.—"Eli the Priest dying suddenly. A Sermon preached at the Thursday Lecture in Boston, June 19th, 1729, upon the occasion of the sudden death of the Reverend Mr. John Williams, who died June 12th, in the 65th year of his age,—And of the Reverend Mr. Thomas Blowers, who died June 17th in the 52d year of his age: By Rev. Thomas Foxcroft, M. A., Pastor of the Old Church, Boston."—Boston, 1729; 12mo., pp. 36.

Mr. Williams died at Deerfield on the 12th June, 1729. The Lord's Day preceding, he preached on both parts of the day; though he felt himself something heavy and indisposed, being for a few days before returned from a journey to Boston. On Monday morning he was seized with a fit of apoplexy, from which he did not recover. He was settled in Deerfield in May, 1686. Of his Indian troubles and Captivity the "Redeemed Captive" gives a full account, and also the "Account of the Williams Family."

Rev. Thomas Blowers was Pastor of the First Church in Beverly, where he died June 17th, 1729, in the 52d year of his age, and 28th of his Pastorate. He was the son of Capt. Pyam Blowers, of Cambridge, and Elizabeth, his wife, sister to the late Hon. Andrew Belcher, Esq. He was born Aug. 1st, 1677, grad. H. C. 1698. He left behind him a good name, better than precious ointment, and preferable to great riches; the character of a very valuable man, a good scholar, and excellent minister; a most tender and kind husband and father; a vigilant, prudent pastor, and close pathetical preacher. He has left a very mournful widow, with four sons and two daughters; for whom we wish, they may long live to bear up their father's name and inherit his virtues."

The following extract is the only one relating personally to the subject of the discourse:

"But give me leave to rejoice in the distinguishing Honors of Providence and Grace to the deceased Mr. Holden, that he seemed to be one of the servants with five talents; inasmuch as it pleased God in his early youth to fix him (as he once wrote to me) in those principles and inclinations which ruled in him through his life, and then being raised to great riches, and endued with uncommon powers of mind, and his integrity with his capacity being manifest to all about him, and so he came to shine not only at the head of the Dissenters, that great and good Body both in the British Church and State, but also at the head of the Bank of England, and on these accounts (as I have heard) was even courted and constrained by the Ministry into a seat in Parliament." In a note Dr. C. mentions he had received from him, in Books and Bills of Exchange, 4847 pounds New England currency for distribution to the Churches and the Poor.

[The Town of Holden in this Commonwealth was named in honor of Mr. Holden, one of its principal benefactors. See Damon's History of that town, pages 30 and 31, where there is a notice of him. Also Turell's Life of Dr. Colman, pp. 113 to 115.—EDITOR.]

MOORHEAD.—An Israelite indeed. A Sermon occasioned by the death of the Rev. Mr. John Moorhead. Preached at the Presbyterian Church in Boston, to the bereaved flock, the first Sabbath after his funeral. By David McGregor, A. M., Pastor of a Church in Londonderry. This sermon does not contain any biographical notice of the deceased, but, from Mr. Parker's History of Londonderry we learn he was from Ireland. He was a man of distinguished talents and eminent piety, but subject to a natural temperament so excitable as frequently to lead to rash and imprudent acts and expressions, which called forth on one occasion, from Mr. McGregor, his particular friend, this reproof, "Mr. Moorhead, you have double the grace of common Christians, but not not half enough for yourself." He was succeeded by Robert Annin, also from Ireland. On his removal to Philadelphia Dr. Belknap of Greenland, N. H., became Pastor of the Church, and its government changed from Presbyterian to Congregational. This is the Church, in Federal street, where Rev. Dr. Channing was subsequently settled.

It is singular that this sermon does not give the date of his death; it was printed in Boston, 1774.

PEPPERELL.—A Sermon occasioned by the death of Andrew Pepperell, Esq., only son of the Honorable Sir William Pepperell, Bart., who died March 1, 1751, in the 26th year of his age. Preached at the Lower Parish in Kittery, the Lord's Day after his funeral. By Benjamin Stevens, M. A. Boston, 1752, 8vo, pp. 31.

STRONG.—["For the gratification of the immediate connexions of the late Governor Strong, the following genealogical sketches, some of which are probably not familiar even to them and none of which can be interesting to the public, are annexed to a small number of the copies of the Sermon delivered at his funeral. To his intimate friends they will be the more valuable, as they are principally taken from a statement made in his own hand writing as early as the year 1777; and as most of the families by the name of Strong, in New York and New England, are supposed to be descended from Elder John Strong, it is not impossible that even some remote connexions may be gratified by this mode of preserving the family record."]

"ELDER JOHN STRONG was born and lived in England, at or near Taunton, in Somersetshire. His father, whose name was Richard, died when his son was young.

He sailed from Plymouth in England on the 30th of March, 1630, in the ship Mary and John, in company with Messrs. Warham, Maverick, Mason, Clap, and others, and arrived at Nantasket on the 30th of May following, and first settled at Dorchester. He married his first wife in England. She died on the passage or soon after landing, and two months after her infant child died. His second wife was Abigail Ford, whom he married at Dorchester in 1630.

In 1635 or 1636 he removed to Windsor, in Connecticut, and with four others, Messrs. Mason, Ludlow, Stoughton, and Woolcot, was appointed to superintend and bring forward the settlement at that place.

In the year 1659 he removed from Windsor to Northampton, where he died April 4, 1699, aged 94 years. He was the first Ruling Elder of the church in Northampton. A sister of his, who came with him from England, afterwards married a person by the name of Dean. [See Reg. vol. iii., p. 383.]

He had sixteen children beside that which died in infancy as before mentioned. By his first wife he had

In the foregoing statement all the sons of Elder Strong are named before any of his daughters, as no information could be obtained of the order of their birth except what was gained respecting the sons and daughters separately. All of them were born before the family came to Northampton, except the youngest son and the youngest daughter."

THACHER.—A Sermon on the Decease of the Rev. Peter Thacher, D.D. pronounced Dec. 31, 1802, in Brattle street Church, Boston. By William Emerson, Pastor of the First Church. Sorrowing most of all for the words which he spake, that they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him to the ship.—Acts 30, 38. Boston, 1803, 8vo, p. 40.

Rev. Dr. Thacher was the son of Oxenbridge Thacher, Jun., who grad. H. C. 1738, and died July 9th, 1765, aged 45. He was an eminent lawyer. The son of Oxenbridge Thacher, who was born 1680, grad. H. C. 1698, died at Milton, his native place, Oct. 19th, 1772, aged 92. He was a merchant, and for several years was a selectman of Boston, and one of the representatives to the Gen. Court. This gentleman and his son were both preachers of the gospel before they entered the other professions.

Peter Thacher, father of Oxenbridge, was born in Salem 1651, grad. H. C. 1671, was ordained in Sept. 1681, and died Dec. 23d, 1727, in his 77th year, pastor of the Church in Milton, in which office he had continued more than 46 years. He married a daughter of John Oxenbridge, who was one of the ejected ministers of England, 1662, and afterwards pastor of the First Church in Boston. He died suddenly, 1674.

Peter was the son of Thomas, who arrived at Boston from England, June 4, 1635. He was ordained at Weymouth, Jan. 2d, 1664, and married a daughter [Elizabeth] of Ralph Partridge, the first minister of Duxbury. Afterwards he removed to Boston, and was the minister of the Old South Church, over which he was installed Feb. 16th, 1670, and died October, 1678.

The father of Thomas was the Rev. Peter Thacher of Old Sarum, [Salisbury] in England. [See a Letter of this Thomas T. in the present Register.]

Rev. Dr. Peter Thacher was born at Milton, March 21st, 1752, entered master Lovell's school July, 1759; left in 1766, and grad. H. C. 1769; taught school in Chelsea the same year, for a salary of six pounds per quarter and board. Preached his first sermon at Malden, Jan 28th, 1770. For this day's preaching he charged £1 8s. He was ordained at Malden, Sept. 19th, 1770. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by the University at Edinburgh in 1791. He was one of the founders of the Historical Society—was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1780,—was Chaplain of the Gen. Court from 1785 till his death,—was dismissed at his own request from the Church in Malden, Dec. 8th, 1784.—installed Jan. 12th, 1785, to the care of the Church in Brattle street, Boston.

Dr. Thacher married Mrs. Elizabeth Pool, Oct. 8th, 1770, by whom he had ten children; six of them survived him, viz: Thomas Cushing, Joseph Warren, Peter, Mary Harvey, Samuel Cooper, and Charles.

He left Boston for the restoration of his health, Nov. 15th, 1802, for Savannah, where he arrived on the 3d December. His disease was pulmonary consumption, and of this he died on the 16th of December, at the house of Mr. S. Howard, merchant of that city. His death being announced, the vessels in the harbor exhibited from their masts their usual signal of grief, united with the city in expressing respect and sorrow for departed worth. On Sunday evening, Jan. 2d, 1803, the body was brought up to town, and deposited in the sepulchre of his fathers.* W. G. B.

TOWNSEND.—A brief display of Mordecai's excellent character in a Sermon preached on the Lord's Day after the funeral of the Honorable Penn Townsend, Esq., one of his Majesty's Council for the Province of Massachusetts Bay, &c., who departed this life Aug. 21st, 1727, in the 76th year of his age. By Thomas Foxcroft, M. A., Pastor of the Old Church in Boston. Boston, 1727, 12mo. p. 42.

The appendix to this Sermon from the News Letter of Aug. 25, 1727, says, "On Monday the 21st instant, about 6 o'clock in the morning, died at his House here, after a short Illness, in the 76th Year of his Age, and yesterday was decently Inter'd, the Honorable Penn Townsend, Esq.—A truly memorable Gentleman, whose Death is a general Loss to the Province, the Court, and to the Church of God, as well as to his worthy Family, and near Vicinity. He was the son of worthy religious Parents; born in Boston, Dec. 20th, 1651. He first marry'd Mrs. Sarah Addington, sister of the late Secretary Addington, after whose death he marry'd Mrs. Mary Dudley, Daughter of Governor Leverett, and Relict of Mr. Paul Dudley, the late Governor Dudley's Brother. Last of all he marry'd Mrs. Hannah Jaffrey, Relict to George Jaffrey, Esq. late One of his Majesty's Council for the Province of New Hampshire; who now survives, a desolate widow, but trusting in God her Maker, as her husband. Col. Townsend has left two Daughters only, and them by his first wife. The Elder of whom is marry'd to a very valuable Minister in the Neighborhood, the Rev. Mr. Ebenezer Thayer. He was early admitted a member of the old Church in Boston, in the Communion whereof he was continued to the end, a Pillar and an Ornament. He was an Encourager of Learning, having not only bestowed a liberal Education on a son of his own, (deceased) but bountifully assisted in educating the sons of others; besides a cheerful compliance with the last Will and Testament of the memorable Elder Penn, his worthy Uncle (whose Name and Estate descended to him) in an annual Exhibition of Ten Pounds for the use of some poor scholar or scholars at Harvard College." He was early appointed one of the Commissioners of the Society for Propagating the Gospel among the Indians.

He was often a Commissioner to make treaties and hold conferences with the eastern Indians, as may be seen both in the published and unpublished records of his times.—EDITOR.]

AN ANTIQUITY DISCOVERED IN THE VALLEY OF THE MERRIMACK.

NEWBURYPORT, Feb. 20th, 1854.

MR. DRAKE,—Dear Sir,—At different periods discoveries have been made in our country, which indicate plainly the existence, at some past time, of a race of people considerably advanced in many arts, and evidently very much superior to the Indian tribes. Knowing the interest you take in these matters, I have taken the liberty (though personally unknown to you) to address you on this subject. During the past summer I was visiting the town of West Newbury, Massachusetts, and while on a shooting expedition, in company with Mr. Silas Pillsbury, a worthy and veracious farmer of that place, he informed me that a rock situated in a pasture belonging to Mr. Farmer had an inscription upon it supposed to have been written by the Indians. I desired him to lead me to it, which he did. Guiding me to the foot of a small precipice about twelve or fifteen feet in height, formed by the cropping out of a granite ledge, of the common coarse hard granite; the precipice overhanging considerably has protected the inscription in a measure. This inscription, which is on the east side of the rock, is deeply graven with some instrument as it appears of a triangular shape, as the grooves are all of that form. The inscription comprises two lines, although part of the lower line has been effaced by the action of the elements. In the centre of the lower line there is the figure of a man, which appears to be armed with a spear. I send you a hasty copy of a sketch I made upon the spot, a profile of the rock,* and a copy as perfect as I could make of the inscription. I have examined Coffin's History of Newbury, and as I see no mention made of it I suppose it was unknown to him. I have a poor copy of the Dighton rock inscription, and by comparing them I think I discover a similarity in some of the figures. Pressure of business has prevented my laying this before you till now, and I must necessarily make this communication short. The rock is situated about two miles from the river Merrimack, and about a quarter of a mile from the road between West Newbury and Georgetown.

Most respectfully, Yours,

GEORGE I. POOL.

* This is omitted as unnecessary to accompany the inscription; there being nothing peculiar in the appearance of the rock.—EDITOR.

HUNTINGTON.

Thomas was the name of that son of Simon Huntington who removed to New Jersey, not Samuel, as is stated in the January number of the Register, p. 46. It appears from the printed colonial records of Connecticut, that Thomas Huntington was made a freeman of Con. in May, 1657, Cris. Huntington, in May, 1658, and Simon Huntington in Oct. 1663. Thomas Huntington married Hannah, daugh. of Jasper Crane, and, with Robert Treat, Sam Swaine, and their associates, the first settlers of Newark, N. J., signed the agreements, "none shall be admitted freemen or free Burgesses within our Town upon Passaic river, in the province of New Jersey, but such Planters as are members of some or other of the Congregational churches," and "we will with care and diligence provide for the maintenance of the purity of Religion professed in the Congregational churches." Thomas Huntington was of the Brandford company, which consisted of the Rev. Abraham Pierson and a very large part of his church. His name is found often on the records of the town. In 1675, the General Assembly "being invited hereunto by the Insolence and outrages of the Heathens in our neighboring colonies, not knowing how soon we may be surprised," enacted "that there shall be a place of Fortification or Fortifications made in every Town of the province, and a House therein for the securing of women and children, provision and ammunition, in case of eminent danger by the Indians." Capt. Swain, Sarg. Johnson, and Sarg. Huntington were "chosen by vote to join with the commissioned Military officers to consider about and contrive for the fortifications belonging to our Town," it having been previously agreed "that two Flanckers shall be made at two corners of the meeting house with Palisadoes or Stockades." In 1675 Thomas Huntington was one of seven "Townsmen" chosen "to carry all Town business according to the best of their judgment for the good of the Town, except disposing of land, admitting Inhabitants, and the way of levying rates." He appears as one of the Townsmen until Jan. 1, 1684-5, when he was chosen a Deputy to the General Assembly. We have no record of his death, or notice of him after that year. In 1702, "Samuel Huntington, (son and heir in law of Thomas Huntington, dec.) inhabitant of Newark, planter," sold lands "formerly belonging to Thomas Huntington aforesaid," and "for fifteen pound current silver money," six acres, &c. The will of this Samuel is dated Nov. 11, 1704, and it was proved Nov. 19, 1712. His children were Thomas, Simon, and a dau. Hannah. The two sons, in 1724, were inhabitants of the district west of Newark mountains, now called Morris County. There Simon died in 1770, aged 74. A Samuel Huntington died in Newark in 1784, aged 74, who, though not mentioned in his father's will, seems to have been the brother of Simon the son of Samuel, to whom he bequeathed "my sermon book the Ten Virgins."

The above facts may be of some interest to the numerous descendants of Simon Huntington. The error, with respect to the name of the brother who settled in Newark, though trivial, is important enough to demand a short notice from one having access to documentary evidence sufficient for its correction.

REMINISCENCES BY GEN. WM. H. SUMNER.

[Communicated for the Register by himself.]

Memorandum. To day, Thursday Nov. 21, 1822, I dined, at an informal dinner, with my respected friend, Stephen Codman, Esq. Madam Scott, the widow of the late Governor Hancock, (having married for her second husband Capt. Scott, since deceased,) Mrs. Hooker, the wife of Judge Hooker, of Springfield, Mrs. Paine, and the members of Mr. Codman's family were present. Having often before had opportunities of hearing of the eventful periods of our Revolution, from those who took part in them, and found afterwards the treachery of memory, when I came to relate them, I now determined not to rest on my pillow till I had recorded the points of her most memorable conversation.

The attention of Mrs. Scott was called to the period of the Lexington battle, and she observed that Mr. Hancock used to come down from Concord, where the Congress sat, to the Rev. Mr. Clark's in Lexington, to lodge, and that he and Mr. Samuel Adams were there the night before the Lexington battle. Mrs. Clark, I think she said, was a cousin of Mr. Hancock.

Mrs. Scott, at this time, was a young maiden lady of the name of Quincy, to whom Mr. Hancock was paying his suit. Mrs. Hancock, the aunt of the Governor, and the widow of his uncle Thomas Hancock (as lady-like a woman as ever Boston bred, she observed,) was her particular friend and protectress, (her mother then being dead,) was also at Lexington, at the same house. She observed that Dr. Warren sent out a message in the evening that they must take care of themselves, and give the alarm through the country, for Gen. Gage had ordered a force to march that night to Concord, to destroy the stores. Paul Revere, Esq., brought the message, and arrived there about 12 o'clock. Mr. Hancock gave the alarm immediately, and the Lexington bell was rung all night; and before light about one hundred and fifty men were collected. Mr. H. was all the night cleaning his gun and sword, and putting his accoutrements in order, and was determined to go out to the plain by the meeting house, where the battle was, to fight with the men who had collected, but who, she says, were but partially provided with arms, and those they had were in most miserable order; and it was with very great difficulty that he was dissuaded from it by Mr. Clark and Mr. Adams, the latter, clapping him on the shoulder, said to him, "that is not our business; we belong to the cabinet." It was not till break of day that Mr. H. could be persuaded that it was improper for him to expose himself against such a powerful force; but, overcome by the entreaties of his friends, who convinced him that the enemy would indeed triumph, if they could get him and Mr. Adams in their power; and finding, by the enquiries of a British officer, (a forerunner of the army,) who asked where Clark's tavern was, that he was one of their objects, he, with Mr. Adams, went over to Woburn, to the Rev. Mr. Jones', I think she said.* The ladies remained

* The singularity of the resemblances related in the following note leads me to append it.

In my late tour to Europe I arrived in London in the beginning of September, 1853, and spent a few weeks there previous to visiting Windsor Castle. The day we left that we arrived at Oxford, and on the following morning lunched at Wytham, the seat of the Earl of Abingdon, about four miles from Oxford, by invitation from Lady Abingdon, who, in her card, stated that his lordship was too unwell either to call or and saw the battle commence. Mrs. Scott says the British fired first, she is sure. This was a point much contested at the time, and many depositions were taken to prove the fact that the British were the actual aggressors. One of the first British bullets whizzed by old Mrs. Hancock's head, as she was looking out of the door, and struck the barn; she cried out, What is that? they told her it was a bullet, and she must take care of herself. Mrs. Scott was at the chamber window looking at the fight. She says two of the wounded men were brought into the house. One of them, whose head was grazed by a ball, insisted on it that he was dead; the other, who was shot in the arm, behaved better. The first was more scared than hurt. After the British passed on towards Concord, they received a letter from Mr. H. informing them where he and Mr. Adams were, wishing them to get into the carriage and come over, and bring the fine salmon that they had had sent to them for dinner. This they carried over in the carriage, and had got it nicely cooked and were just sitting down to it, when in came a man from Lexington, whose house was upon the main road, and who cleared out, leaving his wife and family at home, as soon as he saw the British bayonets glistening as they descended the hills on their return from Concord. Half frightened to death, he exclaimed, "The British are coming! the British are coming! my wife's in eternity now." Mr. H. and Mr. Adams supposing the British troops were at hand, went into the swamp and staid till the alarm was over.

Upon their return to the house, Mrs. Scott told Mr. H. that having left her father in Boston, she should return to him to-morrow. "No madam," said he, "you shall not return as long as there is a British bayonet left in Boston." She, with the spirit of a woman, said, "Recollect Mr. Hancock I am not under your control yet. I shall go in to my father to-morrow;" for, she said, at that time I should have been very glad to have got rid of him, but her aunt, as she afterwards was, would not let her go. She did not go into Boston for three years afterwards; for when they left this part of the country they went to Fairfield, in Connecticut, and staid with Mr. Burr, the uncle of Aaron Burr, who was there. Aaron, she says, was very attentive to her, and her aunt was very jealous of him, lest he should gain her affections, and defeat her purpose of connecting her with her nephew. Mr. Burr, she said, was a handsome young man of very pretty fortune, but her aunt would not leave them a moment together, and in August she married Mr. H., and went on to Philadelphia, to the Congress, of which Mr. H. was President at the time she married him. Mrs. Scott observed that she did not like Philadelphia very much, though she had very good friends there among the Quakers.

receive. Lord Abingdon's first wife was a daughter of General Gage, Governor of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Sumner's cousin, the Gen. having married, when in America, Miss Kemble, the eldest sister of Mrs. Sumner's father. The halls were hung with numerous family portraits, which I took some interest in looking at, both from the association with her family, as well as the merits of the paintings themselves. As we spent several hours at his baronial estate, his lordship's curiosity was probably excited to see his new cousins; and, altho' from the gout he was unable to rise from his couch, he admitted us into his library, where he lay, and gave us a cordial welcome. As my eyes took a rapid look upon other portraits which hung on the library walls, I observed one which exceedingly resembled the revolutionary patriot Samuel Adams. I asked his lordship whose portrait that was, and observed that it so much resembled that of one of the so denominated Revolutionary Patriots who was proscribed by his father-in-law, that I wondered to see it in his house. Why, sir, said he, however singular it may be, that is the portrait of General Gage, the very man who proscribed him.

Mrs. Scott observed that she was busy all the time she was there in packing up commissions to be sent off for the officers appointed by Congress. It was not till some months after this that Mr. Hancock kept a clerk, though all the business of Congress was done by the President—she herself was for months engaged with her scissors in trimming off the rough edges of the bills of credit issued by the Congress and signed by the President, and packing them up in saddle bags to be sent off to various quarters for the use of the army.

Mrs. Scott spoke freely of the character of Mr. Hancock, who was afterwards Governor, and said he would always have his orders executed through life. That he always kept open house, and spoke of his entertainment of the French officers and others at the time the French fleet was in Boston. The poor cook, she said, was worn out, and could not set to picking turkeys every night after getting a great dinner, and the feathers were sometimes too visible on the poultry upon the table. Mr. H. was mortified at this, and to cure the cook, directed a turkey to be roasted with the feathers on. This was actually done, and the turkey caught fire on the spit, and the feathers, when they were burnt down to the quill, popped off with such a noise, and made a stench which annoyed every body in the house but Mr. H., who, though confined up stairs with the gout, affected not to smell it. The experiment was successful, and the poor cook was obliged, nolens volens, to be careful of pin feathers after that, and to have the turkeys well singed. She says at one time they had 150 live turkeys, which were shut up in the coach house at night, and let out to feed in the pasture, where the State House now is, by day, and that two or three were killed every night.

She mentioned another instance of Mr. H.'s determination. Having taken it into his head that he would have nothing but pewter plates and dishes used, one day, when confined up stairs, while his friends were at dinner, he heard the noise of a china plate. He sent for Cato into his room, and asked him if there was not a china plate on the table; Cato replied that it was only to put the cheese in; he ordered Cato to go down and put the cheese into a pewter plate, and bring the china one up to him, which Cato having done, he ordered him to throw it out of the chamber window. Cato thought, as "massa" could not stir, he would cheat him, and threw the plate on to a slanting bank of grass, and it did not break. The Governor, more observing than Cato thought, not hearing it break, made Cato go down and smash the plate against the wall.

When the French fleet were in Boston, in 1778, under the Count D'Estaing, Mr. Hancock ordered a breakfast to be provided for thirty of the officers, whom he had invited. But the Count brought up almost all the officers of his fleet, midshipmen included, and the whole common, to use Mrs. Scott's expression, "was bedizzened with lace." Mr. H. sent word for her to get breakfast for 120 more, and she was obliged to prepare it as they were coming in to the house. They spread twelve pounds of butter on to bread, and sent to the guard on the common to milk all the cows and bring her the milk. She sent to all the neighbors for cake, but could not get much brought into the room, for the little midshipmen were so voracious that they made prize of it, as the servants passed through the entry, and she was obliged to go out and order it to be put into buckets and covered with napkins; in this way it escaped capture. The Frenchmen, she said, ate voraciously, and one of them drank seventeen cups of tea at the table.

The midshipmen, she said, made sad destruction with the fruit in the garden. The Count D'Estaing, however, politely said he would make it up to her, and told her she must come down to the fleet, and bring all her friends with her; and true enough she did, she says, for she went down and carried a party of five hundred. They were all transported in the boats of the fleet, and staid all day. The Count was an elegant man; he asked her to pull a string to fire a gun, which, half frightened to death, she did, and found that she had given the signal for a feu de joie to the fleet, the whole of which immediately commenced firing, and they were all enveloped in smoke, and stunned with the noise. Such a noise she never heard before, nor wishes to again. The officers afterwards frequently dined at their house, and the Count Bourgainville, who could not eat, had his milled chocolate brought and served out to him by his servant. The Governor also gave the officers a grand ball at Concert Hall. Three hundred persons were present.

Mr. Codman said (soto voce) the party to the fleet suspected the French had played a trick on them, by giving them something to eat which operated on them as a violent cathartic, with which the ladies as well as the men were seized in the boats, where, having no accommodations for relief, they were obliged, ex necessitate rei, to do as they could. Mr. C. said he had this anecdote from his father and Mr. Russell; and Mrs. Scott, observing Mr. C. telling me something aside, which convulsed me with laughter, asked him what he was telling,—knowing very well what it was,—and corroborated the truth of the story by laughing most heartily, and crying out, “what a horrid time we had.”

Speaking of Gen. Washington's visit to Boston, after the peace, when Mr. Hancock was Governor, I asked her whether the Governor refused to call on Gen. Washington, as it had been reported. She replied that Mr. H. had enemies as well as other folks, and that although Mr. Hancock had sent out an express to the Gen. at Worcester, and invited him to dine on the day of his arrival in town, yet, as Mr. H. had the gout in his foot and hands, and could not move, they persuaded the Gen. that he was disinclined to make the first call, and the Gen. sent up a note at dinner time excusing himself. It is well known that Mr. H. was a great advocate of the sovereignty of the States, and it was represented to the General that Mr. H., being chagrined at not being chosen the first President of the United States, was determined to insist on the first call from the President. The President could not admit this, and declined dining with the Governor in consequence. Mr. Patrick Jeffery, and other friends of Mr. H., informed him that it was necessary for him to remove the impression which this opinion, now become general, had made, and the Governor, the next day, was carried down to the General's quarters, and taken from his carriage in the arms of his servants. When the General saw them bringing up a helpless man in their arms, she says, he found he had been deceived, and burst into tears. On Monday he sent word by the Marshall of the District, Jonathan Jackson, Esq., that he should call on the Governor, and hoped that he should have the pleasure of spending an hour or two with him and Mrs. Hancock, alone; which he did, and expressed his astonishment that any persons should have so imposed on him, &c., and was very sociable and pleasant during his whole visit. Mrs. Scott says the General was very affable when with his friends only, but in the presence of strangers was always very careful of his dignity.

A day or two after Mrs. Scott's conversation, before minuted, was held, I repeated this view of the subject to Governor Brooks, who says that Mrs. Scott's is only the domestic view of that matter. That he himself dined with General Washington that day at his quarters, and that Mr. Jackson was there also, and that Mr. Jackson frequently spoke of the Governor's conduct, and that he had no doubt his omission to call was intended; but, when he found that he was not supported by the gentlemen of the town, who thought he had degraded himself and committed the dignity of the State by so gross an omission, he got over it as well as he could, and feigned himself quite as sick as he was, to make a good excuse, as a man of his courtier-like manners always did; and that General Washington, not to be outdone in politeness, very probably was quite unwilling to ascribe to Gov. Hancock any such design or motive as really existed, and put it on the ground which Mrs. Scott has mentioned.

While on the subject of Mrs. Scott's conversations, I will record one which she related to me some time since respecting the great zeal of the Governor, before the war, to do away the animosity which subsisted in Boston between the North and Southenders, who, on Pope day, used to have a regular battle, the ill blood arising from which continued through the year, and showed itself in almost every private as well as public transaction. The Governor, wishing to heal this difference, and thinking it essential to a successful resistance of British aggression, exerted himself in every possible way to effect it without any avail. He then gave a supper at the Green Dragon Tavern, which cost him $1000, at which he invited all the leading men of both the Pope parties to be present. He addressed them at table in an eloquent speech, and invoked them, for their country's sake, to lay aside their animosity, and fully impressed upon them the necessity of their united efforts to the success of the cause in which they were engaged. There is nothing more productive of domestic union than a sense of external danger. With the existence of this the whole audience now became fully impressed, and shook hands before they parted, and pledged their united exertions to break the chains with which they were manacled. The happiest results attended this meeting, and since that time the North and South End Popes have not showed their heads in the streets, and a custom and celebration in which all the town participated, and which had long been established, was broken, as it were, by a charm, making the stories related of it by our fathers, who themselves were engaged in it, hardly credible by their children.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

History of Ancient Woodbury, Connecticut, from the first Indian Deed in 1659 to 1854; including the present Towns of Washington, Southbury, Bethlem, Roxbury, and a part of Oxford and Middlebury. By WILLIAM COTHREN, Waterbury, Conn., 1854, 8vo., pp. 833, besides an Index, Addenda, &c.

There were already some elaborate histories of New England Towns, but this by Mr. Cothren leaves them all quite in the back ground, in respect to the amount of matter contained in them. We have been apprized of the author's undertaking for three or four years, but we were unprepared to see a work of the proportions which this assumes.

Mr. Cothren is a young man, and this work has cost him the energies of many of his best days; and, we hope the people for whom he has raised such an enduring monument will not suffer him to go without a reward fully equal to his merits. But, judging from no small experience in similar undertakings, if he should receive a reward commensurate to his labors, his will be almost a solitary exception, at least in this field of literary labor. Men often perform their greatest achievements by the time they are forty. Before that period arrives they are anxious to accomplish something to which they and their friends may look back upon in after life with satisfaction. This is a good and proper feeling, and without it the world would advance but slowly. The man who withholds his labors until near the close of life, because he would have it more perfect than all others, runs a fearful hazard of losing all he has done. It is thus the miser holds on to his treasure; and when he can hold it no longer, the chances are ten to one that it is not worse for his memory than though it had been buried in the sea.

Mr. Cothren has divided his history into Physical, Civil, Indian, Ecclesiastical, Revolutionary, &c. He has also a department of Biography, and another, more extensive than either, on Genealogies. To this he has evidently paid much attention, and his work must be sought for in years to come, by all of those whose ancestors belonged to "Ancient Woodbury." In making up this part of his work, the author has adopted the best method extant, as appears to us. In the volume will be found the genealogies of the families of

The asterisks denote that an engraving of Arms accompanies the pedigree.

Besides engravings of Arms, there are many others in the work; among them is a Map of Woodbury, many views of Mansion houses, Autographs, &c.

As was before remarked, Mr. Cothren is a young man, a native of Maine, a graduate of Bowdoin College, but for some time a resident of Woodbury in Connecticut, and a Counsellor at Law. He was early made a member of the New England Hist. Genealogical Society, and subsequently a member of the Historical Society of his adopted State.

From the Preface of "Ancient Woodbury" we learn several interesting facts relative to the production of the work; that it was not undertaken for the want of employment ; that nearly seven years have elapsed since it was undertaken ; that a remuneration was not expected ; that "more than fifteen hundred manuscript volumes of ecclesiastical, ministerial, state, probate, town, and society records have been carefully examined."

The author says he has heard it said, that, the man that can make a good Town-history, can do almost anything, in a literary way. Upon this he very sensibly remarks, that, though he is not quite sure how that may be, he feels pretty certain that the writer of a Town-history is well qualified for any kind of hard labor ! To this he will find enough to say "Amen," if we are any judge in such a case.

The history of Woodbury, judging from the brief examination we have been able to bestow upon it, is very accurately prepared ; and besides being a most valuable historical record, its literary merits will compare advantageously with any similar composition within our knowledge.

The Nash Family ; or, Records of the Descendants of Thomas Nash of New Haven, Connecticut, 1640. Collected by REV. SYLVESTER NASH, A. M., Rector of St. John's Church, Essex, Ct. Hartford : 1853. 8vo. pp. 304.

We have here a volume of genealogies, creditable in all respects, and to all concerned in its execution. It is illustrated with several Portraits, (of members of the modern Nash family) some ancient Autographs, and other engravings. Though the author has not adopted the method for displaying his genealogies which we consider the best, yet, it is done intelligibly, and will be pretty readily understood.

As the title sets forth, the first certainly known ancestor of the Nash family in New England, is found in Newhaven, in 1640. There was one or more persons of the name, inhabitants of Boston, before that date, of whom the author does not seem to have had any knowledge. The History and Antiquities of Boston, now in course of publication, may afford a few items of interest to those still desirous of extending their inquiries.

The author, the Rev. Mr. Nash, has managed his extensive materials in a systematic manner. He cites his authorities when necessary, and has made his work useful to general genealogists by accompanying it with excellent Indexes. These occupy twenty-three pages, in minion type, three columns to the page. Such appendages are indeed indispensable, and though inserted at great cost, we have never yet heard of an author who has expressed any signs of sorrow for having made a good Index to his book ; while, on the other hand, we know of many very sorry for those authors who have neglected to make them. Many a valuable book lays neglected because it cannot be conveniently consulted for the want of an Index. Formerly, when books were few, those few books could be read. It is far otherwise now. Our fathers could read as much in a given time as we can, but where there was one book formerly there are a thousand now. This shows what we have elsewhere and on other occasions said, namely, that every department of literature, susceptible of it, must be reduced to Indexes, or, in other words, to Dictionaries.

Massachusetts Register for the year 1854, embracing State and County affairs, and an abstract of Laws and Resolves, with a variety of useful information. Serial number, LXXXIII. Boston : Published by GEORGE ADAMS, 91 Washington Street, Jan. 1854. 8vo. pp. 326, and 56 of advertisements.

With his usual punctuality, Mr. Adams lays before the public his valuable Annual, a work prepared with vast labor and great expense. Authors of truly valuable and laborious works seldom get remunerated, but we hope it is not so in this case. Every citizen in the Commonwealth would profit by this book, if they might be induced but slightly to examine it. The Business Directory must be of immense importance in facilitating the commercial affairs of those engaged in merchandise of any kind. This, though necessarily limited, contains a great number of names. It is very difficult to see how the public could dispense with the information contained in this volume. There is one correction, which, though of no great importance on some accounts, it would be well to make. We allude to an error which Mr. Adams himself would not make. It is in his list of early Governors of the Colony. Salem was settled by a small Colony of English in 1628. Over that Colony there was a Governor. In Mr.

Adams's list he has no Governor till 1629. The note to his Governor of 1629 is entirely superfluous, and was originally made to keep the acknowledged first Governor of Massachusetts out of sight.

The Christian Standard of Honor. A Discourse delivered in the First Congregational Church, Quincy, Mass., Jan 8th, 1854, on the Sunday following the death of the Hon. Thomas Greenleaf. By WILLIAM P. LUNT, Pastor of the Church. PRIVATE. Boston: 1854, 8vo., pp. 34.

Like all the productions of Mr. Lunt, this is an able and practical discourse, and upon a truly noble theme. In closing his character of Mr. Greenleaf, the author observes, "it is a duty which we owe to ourselves, to honor the memory of those who have been worthy and useful members of the social body, with whose welfare our own private interests are united. A long life spent in the midst of a community, not so large but that each member can know generally of the condition of all the other members, and whose active years were devoted to the service of that community,—such a life is one of its most precious treasures."

Genealogical Record of the Hodges Family in New England, containing the names of over 1500 persons, from 1633 to 1853, numbering eight generations. By ALMON D. HODGES, Member of the New Eng. Hist. Gen. Society, Boston. Boston: 1854. 8vo, pp. 71.

It very seldom happens that there is more than one of a family interested in genealogical enquiries. In the Hodges family there have been two, who have committed the results of their enquiries to print. The first was Mr. Rufus Hodges of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the other is the author of the work under notice. Mr. Rufus Hodges printed his work in Cincinnati, Ohio, 1837. It was a small 18mo. tract of 22 pages, and he may be considered one of the pioneers in this department of knowledge in the United States. Upon this work Mr. A. D. Hodges has greatly improved; and yet it is surprising that one situated so far from original records as Mr. Rufus Hodges was, should have succeeded so well as he did in collecting information. The present work opens with a very interesting Introduction, respecting the settlement at Taunton, among the first settlers of which was William Hodges, the first New England ancestor of a widely spread and highly respectable race.

The New Hampshire Annual Register, and United States Calendar for the year 1854. By G. PARKER LYON. No. XXXIII. Concord: 18mo. pp. 144.

This, though a very dwarf by the side of our Massachusetts Register, is, nevertheless, one of the best manuals of the kind printed in the United States. Mr. Lyon has a liking for this sort of thing, and where that is the case in any work, the public is far more benefited by it than the author, so far as our experience goes. Mr. Lyon has done one thing in his work which we would like to see imitated by all publishers of State Registers; and that is, he has given a list of the "Judges of the Superior Court of Judicature, (1771,) and who continued to the Revolution, (1776,) and part of them appointed to continue under the temporary Government." This list has been prepared with great labor. It has not only a list of the Judges, but it shows also when they were appointed, when they resigned or died, and it likewise shows how and when Courts were organized over which those Judges presided.

MASS. COLONIAL RECORDS.—We understand that there have been printed, by the State, two volumes of these records, beginning with the earliest. A copy of the impression we have not had the satisfaction to see, though for about twenty years we have, in various ways, according to our feeble ability, been urging the necessity of a measure, which, it seems, is at length commenced. Whether our humble efforts have had any tendency to prepare the minds of the community for so important an undertaking, let the unprejudiced judge. As to the style and manner of their execution, we, of course, cannot now speak. We doubt not the printers were furnished with a faithful transcript of the original; the transcriber and printers doing their duty, nothing was left of much importance for others to do.

- GREENLEAF, Hon. Thomas, was born in Boston, May 15, 1767, and died in Quincy, Mass., Jan. 5, 1854, ae. 86 yrs. and 7 mos. His father, Dr. John Greenleaf, a respectable apothecary in Boston, was born in Newbury, Nov. 8, 1717, and was a direct descendant of Capt. Edmund Greenleaf, the first of the name who came to America, and settled in Newbury, in 1637.

In 1784, Thomas Greenleaf grad. at H. C. April 19, 1787, he mar. the dau. of the Hon. Ezekiel Price, for many years Clerk of the Court in Boston. He leaves three children, one son and two daughters.

Mr. Greenleaf was one of those young and spirited Volunteers from Boston who mounted their horses in the midst of snow and winter in pursuit of Shays during his rebellion; but on arriving at Groton they were told that their services were not needed, as the rebels were already dispersed.

He removed to Quincy early in the present century, and devoted most of his time to the service of this town and to that of the State. He was for twenty-five or more years annually chosen Moderator of the town meetings in his adopted town; for twelve or more years chosen to represent the town in the State Legislature, and during Gov. Brooks' administration was one of his counselors. But above all honors he prided himself upon all occasions of acting the perfect gentleman, and he died an upright and virtuous man. E. W.

HARRIS, Mr. Joseph, Cranston, R. I., 17 Dec., in his 84th year. Mr. Harris was descended from William Harris, who was associated with Roger Williams, in the early government of this State, and has always lived, we believe, upon the land once occupied by his ancestor. His whole life has been characterized by great simplicity, integrity, and independence—exhibiting, throughout his long career, many of those marked and rare qualities which so eminently distinguished the first settlers of this State, and which were so generally transmitted to their descendants who were tillers of the soil. His widow, with whom he has lived happily for more than sixty years, and eight children, (one of them ex-Gov. Elisha Harris,) mourn a kind husband and tender father. They were all permitted to stand by his bedside a few days before his death, and to receive the last benediction of one so loved—presenting the rare spectacle of a whole family re-gathered under the paternal roof, and whose ranks had remained unbroken by death for a space of time which had swept from the earth two entire generations of mankind.

PARKER, Hon. John Avery, New Bedford, 30 Dec., ae. 84 yrs. 3 mos.; an extensive merchant of that place.

PARTRIDGE, Capt. Alden, Norwich, Vt., 17 Jan., ae. about 70. He was one of the officers earliest attached to the Military Academy at West Point, and for many years was a superintendent of that institution. He was one of the Boundary Commission to establish the line between the U. S. and Canada. In the army he held a Captain's commission, which he resigned in 1817, and soon after set up a military school at his native place, (Norwich,) since so extensively known throughout the Republic. He had established a military school at Bristol, Pa., which he intended to open this spring. This he called "The National Military Academy." His school at Norwich was so far north, that Southerners were prejudiced against it, which chiefly induced him (as he told the writer) to take up a location between the extremes of the country.

Captain Partridge possessed a mind of no ordinary stamp, and few men have left a wider circle of friends to mourn their loss. At one period he lectured extensively in our large cities upon military affairs, and always with a clearness and comprehensiveness which commanded the strictest attention. To the manners of a perfect gentleman were united the air and dignity of the accomplished soldier. He has left a widow and two children.

He has, by his generous and liberal bequest, conferred inestimable blessings upon the Society which he has vastly elevated by an example worthy of imitation by all those whom wealth may hereafter place in a similar position. It is hoped that we shall soon be able to accompany the Register with a Portrait and Memoir of Mr. Perkins, and therefore defer any farther notice at this time.

PUTNAM, Mrs. Eunice, N. Danvers, 24 Dec., ae. 96 yrs. 5 mos.; wid. of the late Peter Putnam.

RIDDLE, Mrs. Isabella, Co. of Carmont, O., 18 Feb., ae. 104; her maiden name was Caldwell; "she was born in 1750, and was one of the pioneer matrons of the West. Her first husband, Nathaniel Templeton, was killed in the Indian wars, in Col. Crawford's fatal expedition, and several years of her widowhood were passed with her children on an exposed frontier, where she was often compelled to seek in the block house a protection from the prowling savage."—[Newspaper of 23 Feb., 1854.]

ROSSITER, Mr. Samuel, G. Barrington, 21 Jan., ae. 85.

ROOD, Mrs. Lucretia, Canaan, Litchfield Co., Conn., Dec. 5, 1853, in her 95th year, after an illness of five days; relict of David Rood. She was born in Middletown, Ct., 13 Dec., 1758. Her parents, Samuel and Lucretia Stowe, with their children, removed to Canaan, in 1768. She performed the journey, forty miles, on horse back. She had ten children: six sons and four daughters, who were brought up under the best nurture and admonition. Blessed with the sight of four generations of her descendants, she left the world as the good may be expected to leave it—hoping for a better. Christian-like, she was perfectly resigned at the approach of death; for her it had no terrors. Her faculties were in a good degree retained until the last. Her habits of industry and activity were remarkable. She always helped herself, even in her old age, when younger ones were ready to run at her bidding; a kind of self-reliance which imparted energy to our forefathers, a lack of which may effeminate their sons. With few exceptions she always made her own bed until the time of her last illness; and she habitually sat at meals with the family. Her hands were never idle. Patient, she was never heard to complain; cheerful, no cloud settled upon her face; sedate without austerity; mild with firmness—in short, a most striking example of a matron of the olden time.

F. S. P.

SHIPMAN, Mr. Nathaniel L., Norwich, 14 July, 1853. ae. 89; son of Dea. Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Leffingwell) Shipman, of the same place, and was b. 17 May, 1764, being one of six children. On the maternal side he descended from Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell, a native of Croxhall, [Coggeshall?] Eng., and one of the earliest planters of Saybrook. It was this Lieut. Leffingwell who, in the spring of 1646, with a few associates rendered such timely aid to Uncas, when besieged by the Naragansetts, and reduced to the last extremity by famine. He had the address, though at great hazard, to enter Pequot river in the night, with a boat laden with provisions from Saybrook, and to deposit them in the fort on Shantok Point, undiscovered by the enemy. He died about the year 1710. Judge Shipman was the sixth in descent, and possessed at his decease the same silver-headed cane that his venerated ancestor brought with him from his native place, in 1637, bearing the initials, T. L. He was held in high esteem by his townsmen, for beside having been for many years a judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and also of the Probate Court, he was, since 1802, a Representative in the State Legislature 13 sessions.

Judah left Boston in 1803, and established himself in New Orleans as a merchant, out of which city he scarcely ever after went, except to defend it, under Gen. Jackson, in 1816, when he was wounded, from the effects of which wound he never entirely recovered. He gave 10,000 dollars towards the Bunker Hill Monument.

KILBOURN.—"The Kilbourn Historical and Genealogical Society" held a meeting at Great Barrington, on the 7th of September last. The gathering was large, and much interest was manifested. An account of the "Proceedings" was published.

WATERTOWN GENEALOGICAL HISTORY.—It has been long known that Dr. Henry Bond, of Philadelphia, was engaged upon this work. We understand that above 600 pages, octavo, are already printed, and that the work will probably be published the present season.

OLD COLONY HISTORICAL SOCIETY.—This may not be inappropriately considered The Pilgrim Antiquarian Society, and it ought to enlist all the descendants of the Pilgrims in gathering up whatever may tend to elucidate their history and genealogy. We hope the founders of this Society will set an example of industry in the work, which their successors will be proud of, and which, not to imitate, will be a reproach. We personally know many of the gentlemen, whose names are a sure guaranty that something will be done.

CAPT. JOSHUA EDDY.

[Communicated by ZACHERIAH EDDY, ESQUIRE, of Middleborough.]

CAPT. JOSHUA EDDY, of the Army of the Revolution, was a descendant of Rev. William Eddy, a non-conforming minister of Cranbrook, county of Kent, England. The tradition is that he had four sons, Samuel, William, John, and Benjamin, who emigrated to America. We have no certain record of any of them but Samuel and John. These two sailed from Boxted, (England,) August 10, 1630, and arrived at Plymouth, in November following, having been twelve weeks at sea. Governor Winthrop says, "they had sixty passengers, and lost but one," and one of the Eddys told him that "he had many letters in the ship for me."—Wint., 379.

John sojourned over a year in Plymouth, and then concluded to settle in Massachusetts. In February, 1631, he and three others received a letter from Governor Bradford and his assistants, (Standish, Alden, Fuller, and Prince,) to "Governor Winthrop and his worshipful council," informing them of their desire to "dwell and inhabit" in their jurisdiction, and of their "readiness to give them dismissions." See the whole letter and fac-similes of their hand writings, Genealogical Register, ii. 240-244. He "dwelt and resided" in Newton, was a freeman in 1633, and had numerous descendants, some of whom have always lived in that town. He wrote his name at one time, Eddie, at another time, Eddy; his descendants always wrote their name Eddy.

Samuel seems always to have spelt his name Eddy, although other people seem to have spelt the name and also his brother's name in a great variety of ways, as Ede, Edy, Eady, Eadey, Edie, but more generally Eddy. Probably Eedy, as some spelt it, was in accordance with the pronunciation of the name at that time.

Samuel was the ancestor of the subject of this sketch, and he settled at Plymouth with the Pilgrims, the last company of whom arrived the same year, (1630.) He purchased a house and land of Experience Mitchell, (then spelt Midgehill,) May 9, 1631; his name is on the list of freemen in 1633, the whole list containing but 90 names. In 1638, "4 shares in the black heifer" were assigned to him. He was taxed there from 1632, till his death. In 1636, 1641, and 1659, the town granted him lands; and in 1662, he became one of the "26 men," who purchased of the Sachem Wampatuck, the greatest part of the lands constituting the present town of Middleborough, and the title was confirmed to them in 1669, by the governor and assistants. His servant, Thomas Brian, in 1633, "was brought before the governor and assistants, for running away, (brought back by an Indian,) and whipped before the governor." Col. Rec. In 1643, he is enrolled "among those who bore arms." He died in 1688, aged 87 years, having resided with several of his sons, the latter part of his life, at Middleborough, Swanzey, &c.; but in a deed made near the time of his death, he speaks of his residence as being "of Plymouth."

The name of his wife was Elizabeth. We find these entries in the records: "1651. Elizabeth, wife of Samuel Eddy, arraigned for wringing and hanging out her clothes on Lord's day: fine 20s. but remitted." "1660. Elizabeth Eddy summoned for travelling from Plymouth to Boston on Lord's day. She answered that Mrs. Saffin was very weak, and sent for her, with an earnest desire to see her in her weakness. The court thought they saw not a sufficient excuse, and saw cause to admonish her, and so she was discharged." She died in 1682, aged 81.

In 1647, their son Zechariah, and in 1652, their son Caleb, were apprenticed to John Brown of Rehoboth, a ship-builder, and one of the assistants, and also one of the commissioners of the colony. They had two other sons, John and Obadiah. The indentures of apprenticeship of three of them are on record.

SECOND GENERATION. John, the son of Samuel, lived in Taunton, was a large landholder there, and had a numerous posterity. Rev. Dr. Eddy of Newark, and Rev. Chauncy Eddy of Lanesborough, are of this branch.

Zechariah settled in Swanzey, and is the ancestor of Judge Eddy of Providence, and of very numerous families there of that name.

Caleb was a deacon of the church in Swanzey, and lived there to a great age; he had two sons, Caleb and Samuel. Samuel is the ancestor of many families in that region. Caleb settled in Boston, and is ancestor of Caleb Eddy, Esq., now living in Boston.

Obadiah settled in Middleborough, and inherited the patrimonial lands in that town. There were with him in that town, twenty families in the time of "Philip's war," all of whom had their houses burnt, and fled to Plymouth; they returned and rebuilt after the war. He died in 1722 or not long after, aged between 70 and 80 years. The writer knew a centenarian 60 years ago, who remembered him, and described his person, family, and place of residence. He resided in that town until his death. His children were John, Samuel, Jabez, Benjamin, Elizabeth, Mary, Mercy. His wife's name was Bennett.

THIRD GENERATION. John, son of Obadiah, lived in Taunton; Jabez and Benjamin, in Middleborough; Mercy married Samuel Sampson; Mary, Dr. Isaac Fuller; Elizabeth, David Delano.

These sons all had numerous families, but generally were emigrants to other States, as New York, New Jersey, and Vermont.

Samuel, the grandfather of Capt. Joshua, inherited a large portion of the Middleborough lands, and resided on them during his life. He was of a large, muscular frame, very strong and vigorous, lived to the age of seventy-seven, and died in 1752. His wife's name was Melatiah Pratt, a descendant of the Pilgrim Phinehas Pratt, and lived to the age of ninety-two years. Their children were Samuel, Zechariah, Bennett, Fear, and Maltiah. (Melatiah?)

FOURTH GENERATION. Samuel, son of Samuel, married Lydia Alden, sister of John Alden, the centenarian, and descendant of the Pilgrim of that name. He was distinguished for sound sense and discretion, and steady, well regulated piety. He died young, leaving two sons, Samuel and Nathan, who are progenitors of numerous families in New York and the Western States, many of whom are ministers of the gospel. His widow lived to the age of ninety-three years.

Zechariah inherited a large share of the Middleborough lands, and lived on them till his death in 1777, aged 66. He married Mercy Morton, a descendant of the Pilgrim George Morton. They had twelve children, John, Mary, Ebenezer, Hannah, Nathaniel, Mercy, Joshua, Zechariah, Seth, Thomas, Lucy, Samuel.

FIFTH GENERATION. John was in the French war, and died at Crown Point, at the age of 24. He had married Hannah Pomroy, and left a daughter, who married a Washburn, and was mother of the missionary of that name.

Seth, Thomas, and Samuel, all had numerous families, and were in the army of the Revolution, with their brother. Thomas and Samuel settled in Vermont, and numerous families of their descendants reside in that State and the State of New York. Seth lived in Middleborough, and had also a numerous family.

JOSHUA, son of Zechariah, and subject of this notice, was a vigorous agricultural laborer on the estate, turning his hand to divers mechanical operations which were called for by the low state of the arts one hundred years ago. When the difficulties with the mother country commenced, his father and numerous family became earnest whigs, resisting the influence of his neighbor, Judge Oliver, who repeatedly dissuaded him, and who said, among other things, "Great Britain has the power, if not the right, to tax America and compel the payment, and to subdue us to her will, and if you continue a whig, you will see your children hung upon the trees of your field, like young lambs in the spring." The answer was "bonâ fide, we will not submit." On the first news from Lexington, their patriotism was put to the test. "The youth, the flower of the country, rushed to the field and saw the eye of the immortal Washington lighten along their embattled ranks." It was said by Capt. Eddy, that it was thought there were thirty thousand assembled when Washington arrived: he was then but an ensign; the year following he was promoted to a lieutenancy. Early in 1777, orders came to enlist men to join the "Northern Army," to resist the forces of Gen. Burgoyne, destined for the invasion of New York from Canada. He received a commission from the Continental Congress, to enlist and command a company for that campaign, and speedily enlisted eighty men in Middleborough and two or three neighboring towns, who were forthwith on their march.

His company was among the earliest of the New England troops which arrived on the banks of the Hudson. He was in the disastrous retreat from Ticonderoga, in which his company suffered much; and after the battle of Saratoga one half of them were found to have been killed in battle, or had otherwise suffered death. He used to give a very graphic account of that battle and of the events preceding and succeeding it, and especially of the high spirits of the soldiers on the capture of the British troops, the surrender of Gen. Burgoyne. The Northern Army received marching orders to join Gen. Washington in New Jersey, which, after recruiting his company, he obeyed. His father died December sixth, of that year, and Captain Eddy received a furlough for the winter. About this time he married Lydia Paddock, daughter of Zechariah Paddock of Middleborough, a descendant of the Pilgrim Robert Paddock, and on the mother's side, of Elder Faunce and Governor Bradford. He recruited his company and returned to the army while the British troops were in Philadelphia. He was in the battle at Monmouth, and said he saw Gen. Washington when he met Gen. Lee on his retreat, and heard him say, "Gen. Lee, if you had obeyed my orders, the whole British army would now have been prisoners of war;" and heard Gen. Lee say, "General, your men will not stand the fire of British troops." Several of his brothers were in his company at this battle, and suffered greatly by the severe heat of the day.

He continued in the army until November, when, finding there was to be a new arrangement of the army, he applied to Gen. Washington to be deranged, when the new arrangement should be made, giving for reason the death of his father, and the family cares which had devolved upon him. Gen. Washington ordered him an indefinite furlough, and it was given him by Adjutant General Scammel, who also told him, if he should not be deranged,* he must return. He became a "deranged," officer according to his request.

On his return he settled the family estates, built him a house, and engaged in a diversity of business, agricultural, mercantile, and manufacturing. He dealt in every variety of country property; and the care of it called him to every part of the Old Colony. But his vigor and energy met every call. This kind of employment engaged his attention, more or less, till about 1810, when he committed the care of everything to his sons, except his farms, which he continued to oversee till his death. He had a family of ten children, well nurtured and bred by the best of mothers, he himself providing for that part of their education which did not belong to her province. His sons are business men, well known in the Old Colony, now well advanced in life. He died May 1, 1833, at the age of eighty-five within four days.†

He was of a firm, well-knit physical constitution, of about six feet stature, usually enjoyed good health, and was never known to be depressed in spirits.‡ It may well be inferred that he was enterprising and persevering in every kind of labor and calling which he undertook. His descent on the part of the mother is from Governor Bradford and George Morton and other Pilgrims of the "May Flower," and he truly inherited the Pilgrim blood and the Pilgrim spirit. The religious and ecclesiastical codes of John Robinson were household words with him; he was true to his principles, and his code of morals was severe. His reverence for the Bible was great, and he would tolerate no deviation from its teachings; but all such deviations were sure to receive his rebuke. He was decisive and downright in his judgments and opinions; he did not spare the Sabbath breaker, the irreligious or profane, wherever he met them, at home or abroad. And yet he had a large heart and an ingenuous mind, which was always open to attend to, consider, and receive any new truth, fairly propounded and candidly discussed, being "the world-wide" from bigotry of every kind, and cant and sectarianism of every sort; no exclusionist: the friend of the Bible was his friend and his fellow at the Lord's table.

He was a warm friend of the Constitution and of the administration of Washington, as were the numerous officers and soldiers who resorted to his hospitable house. The writer has been with them, and heard them "fight their battles over again," with much gratification and honest pride.

‡ His manufactory was twice burnt, and at another time his dwelling-house; yet he "bated not a jot of heart or hope."

He was some forty years a member of the First Church in Middleborough, and about thirty years one of the deacons of that church. He was a fast friend of the gospel ministry, whether of his own, or other order; the Baptist and the Quaker were welcome to hold a meeting at his house; and the missionary or his agent, the poor and the suffering, always found the hand of charity open as the doors of his own hospitable mansion.

LETTER CONCERNING A BRANCH OF THE WELD FAMILY.

HAMPTON, WINDHAM Co., Ct., March 10, 1854.

DEAR SIR,—I see in your last Oct. number of the Register, page 309, an account of the Weld family. I wish you would make an addition to it from Daggett's History, page 56, as I feel much interested in that family, as the Rev. Ludovicus W. was pastor of the church and society in Hampton over 31 years. Rev. Ludovicus Weld was born at Braintree, Mass., Sept. 12, 1766; his father was the Rev. Ezra Weld, for more than 50 years the pastor of the Congregational church in Braintree. The Rev. Ludovicus Weld graduated at Harvard University, in 1789; studied theology with his father, and commenced preaching in Epping, N. H., in 1790, where he received a call to settle as pastor. Believing his inexperience inadequate to the duties of a settled pastor, after preaching there a year, he was invited to preach in Hampton, where, after having preached about one year, he was ordained, Oct. 17, 1792; he was the third minister of Hampton. He was a man of talents, and was distinguished for his usefulness in the ministry, and highly respected as a man, at home and elsewhere; he united to an uncommon degree the affections of his people. In 1824, his health having become impaired, so that he felt impelled to ask a dismissal from his people, he was dismissed March 2, 1824, after having been pastor of the church and people in Hampton 31½ years. He soon after removed to Fabius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., where a part of his wife's relations resided, and where, by relaxation awhile from his pastoral duties, his health became improved, but not sufficiently for a settled pastor. He preached only as stated supply about two years in Fabius, and two years in Fabius and Prebble, a town adjoining, and in various other places, till about 1834 his infirmities compelled him to desist from stated preaching, but still continued occasionally to preach, till about 1840, when he preached for the last time in Manlius, N. Y. In 1842 he purchased a residence in Belville, New Jersey, near the residence of his youngest son Theodore D. Weld, where his health steadily declining, he died as he had lived, in full hopes of a blessed immortality, October 9, 1844, aged 78 years and 27 days. His excellent wife Elizabeth survived him till August 31, 1853, when she died at Bellville, aged 81 years. She was the daughter of Dr. John Clark of Lebanon, Ct.; she was a professor of religion for about 60 years; she was much beloved and respected. They were married November 11, 1795. Their family consisted of four sons and one daughter, as follows—Lewis, born Oct. 17, 1796; Charles H., born April 26, 1799, unmarried, lived with the family; Ezra G., born Oct. 26, 1801, doctor of medicine, settled in New Hampshire; Theodore D., born Nov. 23, 1803, has been a very noted public speaker; Cornelia E., born June 28, 1809, not married, lives with ——. Lewis Weld, Esq., graduated at Yale College about 1817, and soon after entered the Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Hartford, Ct., as assistant instructor, in which capacity he remained a few years until he was appointed principal, in which office he remained till his death, which was on the 30th Dec., 1853, aged 57 years, 2 months and 13 days. His health had been on the decline for some time, and in the summer of 1853 he went to Europe to see if it would not improve it; he returned a few months before his death, with his health rather impaired than improved. I will close, with regard to him, by a resolution which was passed the day after his decease, by the instructors of the American Asylum: "Resolved, That in the decease of Lewis Weld, Esq., late Principal of this Asylum, we are called to mourn the loss of an officer of the institution eminent for his ability and success in imparting instruction to the deaf and dumb, and whose efficiency and conscientious fidelity in the discharge of his official duties, love for his work, and earnest endeavors for the temporal and spiritual welfare of his pupils, have commanded our respect and afforded an example worthy of imitation."

JONATHAN CLARK.

NOTICES OF THE WALTER FAMILY.

Crest.—A lion's head Erased Argent.

NEHEMIAH WALTER was born in Ireland, Dec. 1663, and early distinguished himself by proficiency in his studies at school. We are told, in the quaint language of his biographers, “by that time he was thirteen years old, he was such a master of the Latin tongue, as to be capable of readily conversing in it, which he often had opportunity to do, with Popish scholars in his neighborhood; and in his disputes with them, he found it a singular advantage to him, that he had such frequent occasion to tax them of false grammar, and could cite them to the rule; which served to put them to the blush, or at least, bring them to a pause, and to give him leisure to recollect his thoughts.”

About the year 1679, his father, Mr. Thomas Walter, who was of a highly respectable but impoverished family, came to America, bringing the youthful Nehemiah, and settled in Boston. The boy was at first apprenticed to a trade, but it soon appearing that his genius pointed to a professional life, he was placed under the charge of the famous Mr. Cheever, with a view to prepare him for college. After a short “examination and experiment,” Mr. Cheever “returned him to his father with a great encomium, pronouncing him already well stocked with classic learning, and abundantly furnished to enter upon academical studies.”

In 1684, he graduated at Harvard College with distinguished honor, and shortly thereafter removed to Nova Scotia, where he resided some months, for the purpose of acquiring the French language, in which he was so successful, that after his return to Boston, he occasionally preached, in the absence of the pastor, in their own tongue, to a congregation of French refugees, vastly to their edification; though we are told, “he declined praying with them in it, perhaps from a modest suspicion of his own sufficiency for doing this, either extempore or memoriter, and not choosing to read a written form.”

During this period, Mr. Walter did not confine his studies to theology, but extended them in a wide range of philosophical inquiry, and became so distinguished a scholar among the literati of the day, that he was appealed to in disputes, whether philological, theological or philosophical, and his opinion was received with marked respect. For his own tenets, after careful and impartial examination, and great deliberation, “he fell in with the way of the churches in New England; as thinking their constitution and practice in general, with respect to worship, discipline and order, most conformable to gospel institution, and primitive practice; * * * but still preserved a candor for pious people of a different persuasion; and indeed was sometimes ready to think that certain modalities in religion, wherein Protestants vary from one another, had an immoderate stress laid upon them.”

The first church at Roxbury had, at the earnest request of the venerable apostle Eliot,—who was drawing near his end, and as he did so, in the words of Cotton Mather, “grew still more heavenly, and scented more of the spicy country at which he was ready to put ashore,”—been seeking a colleague to share the duties which increasing infirmity rendered irksome to him. Hitherto the divided opinions of the congregation had prevented any choice. One Saturday afternoon, Mr. Walter received an urgent message, desiring that he would preach at Roxbury on the succeeding day. It is said that he had purposed visiting England, and that his luggage was even then on board a vessel lying in the harbor, waiting only a favorable breeze to weigh anchor. Notwithstanding, he accepted the invitation, and discoursed so greatly to their satisfaction, that his hearers were united in their approval, and gave him a unanimous call. It is needless to say, the voyage was postponed indefinitely, and he was ordained 17th October, 1688, in the twenty-fifth year of his age; preaching himself the sermon, as was then the custom, from the words, “But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.”—2 Cor. iv. 7.

Soon after the accession of his young assistant, Mr. Eliot, who had received and cherished him with the affections of a father, died, 20th May, 1690, after a long life crowned with honors and abundant labor, and it was a great consolation to him in his latter days to see his people so happily settled under Mr. Walter’s ministry. “The good old man, like Aaron, as it were, disrobed himself with an unspeakable satisfaction, when he beheld his garments spread upon a son so dear to him.”

For more than sixty years Mr. Walter faithfully discharged the duties of his office, for the greater portion of the time without any assistance, and always to the acceptance of his people; “living the christianity he preached, showing his faith by his works, and having his fruit unto holiness.” As a preacher, he was greatly admired by all who heard him. His voice was low and exceedingly well modulated; his utterance deliberate and pathetic; his manner grave and solemn, yet void of all formality or affectation. His sermons were remarkable for their perspicuity and simplicity—entirely free from any luxuriance or pomp of language; “couched in few and familiar words, with a noble negligence of style, calculated both to enlighten the mind and affect the conscience.” In the language of his biographers, “He was like that wise preacher who ‘sought to find out acceptable words; and that which was written was upright, even words of truth.’” The Rev. Dr. Colman said of him, “When one is hearing Mr. Walter, it seems as if any man could preach so, and yet it is difficult preaching like him, and few can equal him.” The Rev. Mr. Pemberton also bore witness that “No man in his preaching reconciles perspicuity with accuracy like Mr. Walter.”

In person, he was short of stature, with a slight and feeble frame. Naturally of a retiring disposition and reserved temperament, but remarkable for his domestic tenderness and love for his people; he was easy of access, and, with his more intimate friends, free and facetious in conversation, and always communicative and instructive. He presented a bright example of personal holiness, being humble, modest, affectionate and candid, averse to controversy, free from censoriousness, but firm and courageous in the cause of truth. His published works are, “The Body of Death Anatomized, an Essay on the Sense of Indwelling Sin in the Regenerate,” 12mo., 1707; discourses on “Vain Thoughts,” “The Great Concern of Man,” “The Wonderfulness of Christ,” “The Holiness of Heaven,” 1713; "A Convention Sermon of Faithfulness in the Ministry," 1723; "Unfruitful Hearers Detected and Warned," 1754, and a posthumous volume of "Sermons on the 55th Chapter of Isaiah, with a Life, prefixed by the Rev. Messrs. Prince and Foxcroft," 8vo., 1755.

Early in life Mr. Walter married Sarah, daughter of Rev. Increase Mather by Maria, daughter of the distinguished Rev. John Cotton. Among Mrs. Mather's papers was found the following memorandum: "July 15, Aug. 4, and Aug. 11, 1691, I kept a fast in the study, chiefly on Sarah's account; praying that she may be directed to do, in the momentous affair before her, what shall be pleasing to God,"—referring, undoubtedly, to Mr. Walter's proposal of marriage. And we cannot but think that the approving hand of Providence was manifested in the happiness which resulted therefrom. Of their daughters, Sarah, Mrs. Walley, died without issue; Hannah, Mrs. Trowbridge, had a numerous family, of which the third child, Sarah, married General Artemas Ward, and Maria died single.

The latter part of the year 1749 Mr. Walter was confined to his house by bodily indisposition; which gradually increased until the 17th Sept., 1750, when he expired full of years, and greatly lamented by his people. His remains, under the direction of a committee of the church, were entombed in the ministerial vault in the old burial ground, corner of Washington and Eustis streets, and £290 09s., old tenor, were voted to defray the charges of the funeral. And it speaks well for the faithfulness of the pastor, and the devotedness of his flock, that a large sum of money and a supply of fuel was yearly raised towards the support of the aged relict of their beloved minister during the remainder of her life.

The will of the Rev. Nehemiah Walter, dated 27th Dec. 1746, was admitted to probate 26th Feb. 1750. Income of whole estate to wife Sarah, during her life. At her decease, £50, old tenor, to his granddaughter Rebecca, daughter of Rev. Thomas Walter, and the residue to be equally divided between his four surviving children, Hannah Trowbridge, Maria, Samuel, and the Rev. Nathaniel Walter. The latter, sole executor. Signed in presence of Thos. Cobbet, Edmund Weld, Jr., and Abiel George.

THOMAS WALTER, the second son of the Rev. Nehemiah, was born in Roxbury, 13th Dec. 1696, and early gave evidence of the most extraordinary genius. In his younger days he was not a hard student, being of a convivial turn and fond of society, "but so retentive was his memory that he easily made himself master of almost all the learning of his uncle Cotton Mather, by frequent conversation with him. In this way he acquired more knowledge than most others could have gained by a whole life's diligent study." He graduated at Harvard College 1713, and five years thereafter we find on the records the following: "Att a church meeting of the east end of Roxbury, in the old meeting-house, the first day of March, 1717-8, it was unanimously agreed and voted as follows:—

1. That it was necessary to chuse some meet person for an assistant to our reverend pastor.

2. It was agreed and voted to chuse such assistant att the present meeting. Accordingly the votes being brought in and counted, every vote was for Mr. Thomas Walter, son of the reverend pastor.

3. The said church chose and appointed the deacons a committee to acquaint Mr. Walter herewith, and inform the inhabitants of the town in their next meeting with the church's doings, in order for their future proceeding."

“ 13th May, 1718. The town [having had legal warning] meet to chuse a representative, and to consider of a settlement for Mr. Thomas Walter. * * * Voted, that there should be sixty pounds raised for Mr. Walter, as encouragement to his settling among us.”

He was ordained 29th Oct. 1718, and the 25th Dec. of the same year married Rebeckah, daughter of the Rev. Joseph Belcher of Dedham.

In 1719 he engaged in a public controversy with his intimate friend and associate, John Checkley, a man who combined great wit and humor with infinite learning. Checkley had sarcastically attacked the wholesome doctrine of election and predestination, in a pamphlet entitled, “Choice Dialogues between a Godly Minister and an Honest Countryman, desecting the False Principles of a certain man who calls himself a Presbyterian of the Church of England.” This Mr. Walter answered in a 12mo. volume of 80 pages, under the caption of “A Choice Dialogue between John Faustus, a conjurer, and Jack Tory his friend ; occasioned by some Choice Dialogues lately published concerning Predestination and Election. By a Young Stripling.”

In 1721, Mr. Walter, who excelled in the science of harmony, being grieved beyond measure, and annoyed at the very indifferent performances in the sanctuary, published, in a neat 12mo. volume, “The Grounds and Rules of Musick Explained ; or an Introduction to the Art of Singing by Note : Fitted to the meanest capacity. Recommended by several Ministers. ‘Let everything that hath breath, praise the Lord.’—Ps. cl. 6.” In this work the author endeavored to show that singing was reducible to the rules of art, and that he who made himself master of these rules would be able at first sight to sing any new tune, by the bare inspection of the notes. He complains that “for a want of a standard to appeal to in all our singing, our tunes are left to the mercy of every unskilful throat, to chop and alter, twist and change, according to their infinitely divers and no less odd humors and fancies.” And of the singing of the congregations, “it sounded like five hundred different tunes roared out at the same time,” and so little attention was paid to time, that they were often one or two words apart, producing noises “so hideous and disorderly as is bad beyond expression.” The manner of singing also had become so tedious and drawling, that he goes on to say, “I myself have twice in one note paused to take breath.” The preface to this book, signed by fourteen clergymen, discourses delectably, and in a manner equally applicable at the present day. “We would encourage all, more particularly our young people, to accomplish themselves with skill to sing the songs of the Lord, according to the good rules of psalmody ; hoping that the consequence of it will be, that not only the assemblies of Zion will decently and in order carry on this exercise of piety, but also it will be the more introduced into private families and become a part of our family sacrifice. At the same time, we would above all expect that the main concern of all may be to make it not a mere bodily exercise, but sing with grace in their hearts, and with minds attentive to the truths in the psalms which they sing, and affected with them, so that in their hearts they may make a melody to the Lord.”

This volume was the first wherein the music was printed with bars in America. The tunes are composed in three parts only. Mr. Hood characterizes the harmony as being “full, rich and correct, and the whole style purely choral.” In April, 1723, a second edition, “Enlarged, corrected and beautified,” was published ; and it continued to run through successive editions until the last, in 1764. Mr. Walter's other works which have come down to us are, "A Sermon upon 2nd Samuel, xxiii. 1. The sweet psalmist of Israel," which was delivered at the Boston Lecture, 1722, printed at the desire of the ministers, and dedicated to Judge Dudley. This discourse has been pronounced "the most beautiful composition among the sermons which have been handed down to us from our fathers." "The Scriptures the only Rule of Faith and Practice," dictated while languishing upon his bed of suffering, overcome with pain and weakness, and written down by a beloved friend; published in 1728. And two other occasional sermons.

Mr. Walter was one of the most distinguished scholars and disputants of the day. "He had all his father's vivacity and richness of imagination with more vigor of intellect." Rev. Dr. Chauncy, in a letter to Dr. Stiles, 1768, writes: "Mr. Jeremiah Dummer, Mr. John Bulkley, and Mr. Thomas Walter of Roxbury, I reckon the first three clergymen, for extent and strength of genius and powers, New England has yet produced. I was acquainted with the latter, and often had occasion to admire the superlative excellence of his natural and acquired accomplishments. His genius was universal, and yet surprisingly strong. He seemed to have almost an intuitive knowledge of everything. There was no subject but he was perfectly acquainted with; and such was the power he had over his thoughts and words, that he could readily and without any pains, write or speak just what he would."

In his last illness he was for a time anxious for the salvation of his soul. Cotton Mather, in his funeral sermon, has given us a vivid account of his dying hours. Prostrated by consumption, "he went over and over again through the process of repentance," making just reflections upon the youthful errors into which his good temper had betrayed him; and greatly "distressed with the fear of his miscarrying at last; saying, 'O, it is a great thing to die.'" At length his father came to his relief with victorious and overwhelming remonstrance. "My dear son, were our Saviour visibly here, as once in the days of his humiliation, and you should prostrate yourself before Him and beseech His compassion, and a heart to love him, can you imagine he would reject you? How strange then is this unbelief, to be discouraged from that which carries infinite encouragement with it! As if His power and goodness were less, or our access to Him more difficult, now that He is seated on the throne of His glory." His apprehensions being thus removed, he said more composedly, "If I perish, I will perish in the hands of my Saviour, and though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." Thenceforth his fears were swallowed up in the hope of a blessed immortality. "I shall be the most glorious instance of sovereign grace in all heaven," he said.

It was the Sabbath, Jan. 10, 1724-5, and he expressed his hope that he should that day be in Paradise. His father, as the time drew near for the morning service, said to him, "I am going to the house of God, which is the gate of heaven, but you, I hope, are going to heaven itself; I go to the table of the Lord, but you will drink of the fruit of the vine new with Christ in the kingdom of his Father." Then taking his leave, and not expecting ever to see his son alive again, "My child, the Lord Jesus receive thy spirit;" "and the Lord fit it for his reception," he replied. Mr. Walter lingered until near the close of the afternoon, when he gently expired. "He was to me," says Cotton Mather, "not unlike what a sister's son was to Paul, and his death makes a sorrowful time for us. * * * His rare accomplishments, his acute penetration, his copious erudition, with his right principles, render him an unknown loss to our churches. * * * But that which makes him to be remembered with the more honor among us is, that his heart was fixed in his purposes and endeavors to employ all those bright abilities in the service of Christ."

His remains were deposited in the same tomb wherein years afterwards his father's body was placed. And the following account, copied from the original on file, may not at this day be uninteresting :—

MR. DRAKE,—I have found the Record of Rev. Samuel Niles, the 2d minister of 2d or S. Parish of Braintree, who was born 1673, and ordained 1711. It is very full and particular, gives his mother's pedigree, and all baptisms down to 1765, or about then, &c., &c. It was inherited by his son, Judge Niles, and carried by him, in extreme old age, to Connecticut, where he died. It was afterwards committed to his son, Rev. Sam'l N. of Abington, whose aged daughters, now occupying the house he left at Abington Centre, have this Record. Will you please to name the discovery of this Record and where it can be found, that the pastor and selectmen of Braintree may seek transcript.

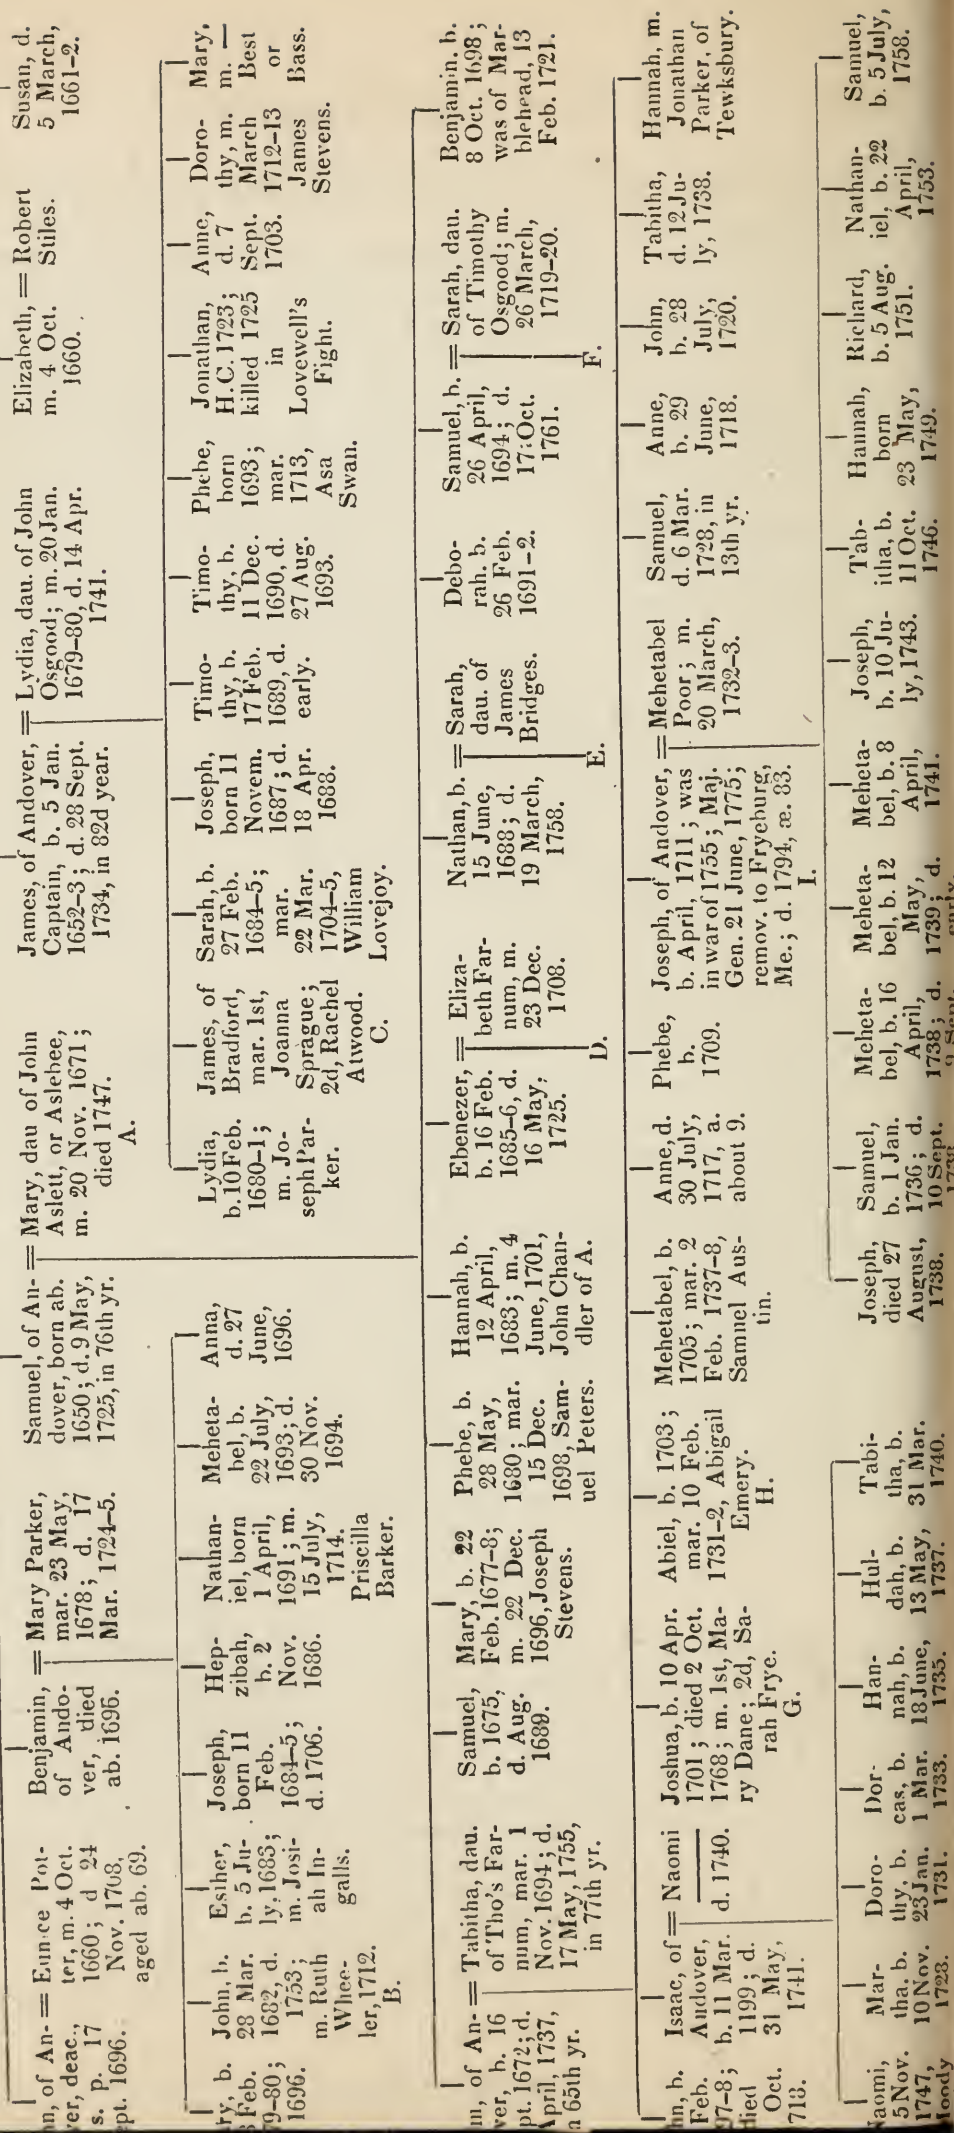

Yours,

A. MORSE.

EVACUATION OF BOSTON, 1776, BY AN EYE WITNESS.

MR. DRAKE:—The following letter was written by Eldad Taylor, of this town, to his wife, the day after the evacuation of Boston by the British. Mr. Taylor was then at Watertown, a member of some of the committees of public safety.

E. DAVIS.

SUNDAY, March 18, 1776.

MY DEAR,—This morning opens with much news. No doubt it will be pleasing to you and all friends to have the most authentic account possible. The ministerial vermin left Boston yesterday morning in the utmost confusion, and the town is now open; three of the selectmen, viz., Deac. Newhal, Mr. Scolly? and Mr. Marshal came to Watertown; Doct. Winthrop and Mr. Severs[?] were called out of public worship about the middle of the first prayer in the afternoon, to see the selectmen. This morning I was with Doct. W. to get the best intelligence. They say that ever since our cannonading, Sabbath before last, the Regulars have been upon the move, and designed to withdraw last Friday, but the wind not favoring they were detained, and last Saturday our forces took possession of a small hill nearer Boston and the shipping, than ever before, on Dorchester Point, which caused the Regulars to fire at them all night, without hurting any of our men except one a little, by the scattering of some gravel. We did not return one shot. In the morning early, in the utmost haste and confusion, they sailed below the Castle, and where they are destined is not known, but probably Halifax. The tories are gone with them, except a few, Ruggles,* Murrāh,† Putnam, and Willard. The selectmen say the tories were most dreadful against them of any; that all the sufferings of the poor for the want of provisions and the necessaries of life, were not equal to the dreadful scorn, derision and contempt from them.

The ministerial butchers have robbed the warehouses and shops of all the best goods they could carry, and destroyed what they could in their hurry. They destroyed the furniture of the houses, broke the windows, chairs, desks, tables, &c. They loaded their vessels so deep that they threw overboard much of their lumber, which floats on the water. They left their heavy carriage; their cannon they spiked. They had an amazing great iron mortar, which, in getting it on board from Hancock wharf, fell into the water. Bunker Hill is left, and all the barracks in good order. Their fort is amazing strong. In their haste, or purposely, they scattered a number of good blankets. It is said that in one of them was wrapped up a child rotten with the small pox. We are now in more danger from that quarter than from the enemy. Col. Bond, Eaton, and Mattesson were ordered this morning to march with their regiments to New York.

The poor distressed captives from Boston, came out with smiling faces, rejoicing at so great deliverance. Col. Putnam entered Boston yesterday, with about 1,500 men. The General has forbid the people going into Boston, but they are so resolute that it is quite impossible to prevent them.

This morning we have intelligence that the King of France has sent to the King of England, that if he should bring the Russian [Hessian?] troops into America, he shall declare in favor of the Americans ; and the King of England has reconsidered his intentions.

* Hon. Timothy Ruggles of Hardwick, died at Wilmot, N. S., in 1795, aged 86.

† Daniel Murray of Rutland, died at Belfast, about 1833.

I desire that none of our people will come here to gaze, as there is the utmost danger of the small pox.

Since I wrote the foregoing, two of the selectmen of Boston came into the council, and they confirm what I wrote, except that the child was found in a garret, sewed up in canvass, and must have been there 5 or 6 weeks.

They say the tories, about a fortnight ago, were in high spirits, encouraging the troops that they would become masters of America—but when the orders were given to sail, they were struck with paleness and astonishment. There is not a Chandler,* Willard,† nor Putnam;‡ they are all gone. Mortifying indeed ! The selectmen say the town is in a most dreadful condition ; houses torn, streets nasty, town empty. They carried away the prisoners taken at Bunker Hill, in irons, also Master Lovewell.* They left some of their draught horses and about 1,000 bushels of wheat. The bells and organs are not hurt.

I am your consort,
ELDAD TAYLOR.

MONUMENT TO JEFFERSON.—The grave of Mr. Jefferson, at Monticello, is marked by a granite obelisk, eight feet high. On a piece of marble inserted on its southern face, is inscribed an epitaph, found among his papers, after his death, in his own handwriting, in these words:

Here lies buried

THOMAS JEFFERSON,

Author of the Declaration of American Independence,

Of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom,

And Father of the University of Virginia.

June, 1853.

BURNING FOR WITCHCRAFT.—Query: When and where was the last person burned to death for witchcraft in England? We believe that the last case of burning for witchcraft was at Bury St. Edmunds in 1664, tried by Sir Matthew Hale, although some accounts state that the victims, Amy Duny and Rose Callendar, were executed. In the same year, Alice Hudson was burnt at York, for having received 10s. at a time from his Satanic Majesty. The last case of burning in Scotland, was in Sutherland, A.D. 1722; the judge was Captain David Ross, of Little Dean. At Glarus, in Ireland, a servant girl was burnt as late as 1786. The last authenticated instance of the swimming ordeal occurred in 1785, and is quoted by Mr. Stenberg, from a Northampton Mercury of that year:—"A poor woman named Sarah Bradshaw, of Mears Ashby, who was accused of being a witch, in order to prove her innocence submitted to the ignominy of being dipped, when she immediately sank to the bottom of the pond, which was deemed to be an incontestible proof that she was no witch."—Notes and Queries, 22 Dec. 1853.

INDIAN WAR PAPERS.

INDIAN WAR IN MAINE, 1675.—LETTER OF LIEUTENANT INGERSOL.

[Copied from the Mass. Archives, by WM. B. TRASK.]

Leif: Augur,—

Yesterday morning, being the 9th of September, was heard three Gunes, and was seen a great smoke up in the Riuer about Mr. Mackworth's; whereupon I caused an alarme, but could not get the Souldiers together, by reason of which I was uncapable for that day to know the cause thereof, and what the issue might be; but this day, being the 10th of the said month, haueing strengthened my selfe, I went up with two fils, and when I came to the place, I found an house burnt downe, and six persons killed, and three of the same family could not be found.* An old Man and Woman were halfe in, and halfe out of the house neer halfe burnt. Their owne Son was shot through the body, and also his head dashed in pieces. This young mans Wife was dead, her head skined, she was bigg with Child, two Children haueing their heads dashed in pieces, and laid by one another with their bellys to the ground, and an Oake planke laid vpon their backs. While we were upon this discouery we saw a smoke, and heard two Guns about one Mile or more about, in the same [quarter]. We judge there be a company of Indians, but how many we know not; therefore I would entreat Major Pendleton and your selfe to send to me, each of you, a dowzen men. I shall then goe to see whether it be according as we thinke or noe. Pray post this away to Major Walden. Thus takeing my leaue, I subscribe my selfe,

Your loueing friend,

Leif: GEORGE INGERSOL.†

Concerning Mis: Purchases,‡ the Indians killed none, but plundered only. At Kennebeck also seuerall houses plundered.

Reed from Lt Ingersol this instrument by 10 of the month about, by William Sheldon to be posted to Major Pendleton.§

* The family of Mr. Thomas Wakeley, who lived at Presumpscot. See Hubbard's Indian Wars, pt. ii. p. 16, and Table, Williamson's Maine, i. 520, Book of the Indians, p. 287.—EDITOR.

† George Ingersol, born in 1618, was the son of Richard Ingersol, who emigrated in 1629 from Bedfordshire, Eng., to Salem, Mass. The residence of George at Back Cove, Falmouth, in 1657, is the first notice of him recollected. His military talents and taste procured his promotion, in 1688, to the command of the town militia company, an office he filled with much reputation to himself through the first Indian war. In 1683 and 5 he was a representative to the General Assembly. Before the second Indian war he removed to Salem, where he died in 1694, leaving two sons, George, who was shipwrecked, and Samuel, who settled at Stroudwater.—Williamson's Hist. of Maine, Vol. I. p. 680.

‡ Thomas Purchas was the first settler at Pegypscot, (Brunswick,) probably as early as 1625 or 6. His companion was George Way. He lived on the southerly side of Stevens' River, near its head, and was engaged in the fur trade; was one of Gorges' Council in 1635; afterwards sole assistant to Mr. Prince, the Colony Commissioner, and in 1664 was a justice under Archdale. His house was plundered by the Indians in September, 1675, when he left Pegypscot, and we know nothing of his return.—Ibid. Vol. I. p. 690.

§ Major Bryan Pendleton, born in 1599, settled in Watertown prior to 1634. Rep. from thence to General Court, six years before 1648; was a member of ar. co. Boston.

Copy of a Letter received by W. L. Ropes, addressed to "the Congregational Minister or other Clergyman, Wrentham, Norfolk, Massachusetts, North America."

"WRENTHAM, SUFFOLK, England, March 22, 1854.

DEAR SIR,

I write to you from this side the Atlantic in the hope of discovering some vestiges of what ought to be more than a common bond of sympathy between the inhabitants of this parish and those of the town to which you belong. I first saw the name of Wrentham in America in the map accompanying Dwight's Travels in New England. Holmes's Annals of America inform me that your town is "said to have received its name because some of the first settlers came from Wrentham in England." If so I conjecture it must have been somewhere about 1638, for just at that time John Phillip the Rector of this parish was driven from his living by the persecuting Bishop Wren, and fled to New England.

I am anxious to learn whether there are any documents relating to the early history of the town itself, or any Christian Churches in it, and I have made so free with you as to write to ask you to give me any information you may have it in your power to supply. However fragmentary, or apparently valueless, even the names of the oldest families, or inscriptions on the oldest gravestones, that I may if possible identify them with the names in our parish registers, or with those in the old church book belonging to the church to which I minister. I am specially anxious to get information respecting the Exile John Phillip, and I wish to know whether there are any allusions to any members of the family of Dr. William Ames. If you cannot yourself attend to my questions, perhaps you will put my note into the hands of some good neighbor, who will feel interest enough in the old place so far to gratify one of its inhabitants.

I am just publishing a History of the Old Congregational Church here.

I am, Dear Sir, Yours, truly,

JOHN BROWNE."

THE WENTWORTHS IN CANTON.—THEIR ANCESTRY.

Upon the examination of Judge Sewall's MS. Receipt Book, kept whilst he was Treasurer of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Indians, the following receipt was found :—

"Boston, January 19th, 1709. Recct. of Samuel Sewall three pounds in a Province bill of credit in full of all demands as to whatever I have done for any Indians at Punkapaug, or elsewhere, from the beginning of the world to this day. I say Recct in full of all demands.

Witnesses—

Bartholemew Green,
Saml Gerrish.

My mark,

MARTHA WENTWORTH.

To this just discovered, add the following from a deed given by divers Indians 3d May, 1717, at Punkapaug, conveying certain meadow lands to one Mehitable Eames :—

"And we do signifie that this is part of a meddow formerly leased to John Wentworth and his son John Wentworth, Jr., as may appear by the adjoining lease dated on ye 14th November, 1704."

Canton was taken from Stoughton and that from Dorchester ; and that part of Dorchester was originally called Punkapaug.

The above John and Martha must be the John and Martha of York, (Maine,) who deed land in 1680 as "formerly of Cutchechah." He was at York 1787. He took oath of fidelity 21st June, 1669, and was on the tax list at Dover from 1668 to 1672. He was the son of Elder William Wentworth, the first settler, and believed to have been the second son. Who his wife was, and when either died, there has yet been no discovery.

Their children were as follows : John<sup>3</sup> died at Canton, Jan. 6, 1772, aged 95. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Bayley, formerly of Falmouth, Maine, and sister of Edward Bayley of Canton.

Charles<sup>3</sup> died at Canton, July 8, 1780, aged 96. He married at Dorchester, Dec. 15, 1713, Bethiah Fenno, daughter of John Fenno of Stoughton. She died April 29, 1780, aged 89.

Edward<sup>3</sup> d. at Stoughton, 12 Feb. 1717, age not given. His wife was Kezia, dau. of Benjamin Blackman of Stoughton. She d. 10 Oct. 1745.

Shubuel.<sup>3</sup> He m. 11 April, 1717, Damaris Hawes, and she d. at Stoughton Dec. 7, 1739. He was m. again by Rev. S. Dunbar of Stoughton, 10 Sept. 1741, to Hannah Andrew. He d. in 1759, and his widow Hannah willed her property, Dec. 1, 1759, to her "only son and child, John Harris of Dedham, cordwainer."

Elizabeth<sup>3</sup> m. at Dorchester, Mass., 30 Dec. 1715, to Benjamin Jordon of Dorchester.

Abigail<sup>3</sup> m. by Rev. S. Dunbar of Stoughton, Mar. 16, 1728, John Kenney.

Descendants of all these six children now live about Canton. It is not known whether there were not other children, as the following extracts from the Boston marriages have not been traced out yet.

Mary Wentworth m. 21 Sept. 1712, James Wright. He was a barber in Boston ; was dead 6 Aug. 1728. His wife admx.

Elizabeth Wentworth m. 31 Dec. 1730, Caleb Phillips. He was of Boston.

Mary Wentworth m. 11 Sept. 1733, Humphrey Scarlet, inn holder of Bost. His will, made 8 Aug. 1738, and proved 8 Jan. 1739, gave to wife Mary, to sister-in-law Ann States, and to dau. Mary. Friend Henry Pigeon, ex'r. His wid. m. Wm. Ireland 1 May, 1740. She quitclaims property 11 May, 1742, and also her dau. Mary quitclaims as wife of Jedediah Lincoln.

BOWDOIN, WILLIAM, son of James, was born in Boston, 14 June, 1713; grad. H. C. 1735. He was a merchant, and had one dau. Sarah, who married her cousin, James Bowdoin, the only son of Gov. Bowdoin.

Mr. B. was chosen by the town of Roxbury to act on several important committees, during "the troubles and difficulties" which preceded the Revolution.

He died in Roxbury, 25 Feb. 1773, in the 61st year of his age. James Bowdoin, Jr. and Gaven Brown, watchmaker, administer on the estate. Amt. £16252. 18. 2. The property consisted principally of lands situated in Hadley, Ashburnham, Freetown, Marblehead, Northampton, Worcester, Sudbury, Leicester, and Western, Mass.; on the Kennebunk river, and various other places in the State of Maine; at Windham, Mansfield, Hebron, Plainfield, and Voluntown, Conn. About 1200 acres in the two latter towns, were purchased of Jonathan Dean, 20 Dec. 1753.

The emigrant ancestor, Pierre Baudouin,* a worthy Huguenot, and a physician of Rochelle in France, was living in the suburbs of that city, in 1685, with an income of 700 louis d'ors per annum. On the revocation of the edict of Nantz, he was obliged hastily to flee from his native land. He went, with his wife and four children, to Ireland, and in 1687, from thence to America. Gov. Andross granted him a hundred acres of land, at the foot of Barbary Creek in Casco Bay. After remaining about two years and a half in this locality, he removed to Boston. In the space of twenty-four hours after his departure, the Indians made a general massacre of the settlers and destroyed the place.

Stephen Boutineau 22 Aug. 1708, had ten children; James<sup>2</sup> had children by his wife Sarah: James,<sup>3</sup> b. 5 May, 1707; John,<sup>3</sup> b. 22 Aug. 1709; Peter,<sup>3</sup> b. 19 May, 1711; William,<sup>3</sup> (the subscriber.) By his wife Hannah, Samuel,<sup>3</sup> b. 25 July, 1715; Elizabeth,<sup>3</sup> m. James Pitts; Judith,<sup>3</sup> m. Thos. Flucker; Mary,<sup>3</sup> m. 1st, Belthazer Bayard, (and had Mary,<sup>4</sup> b. abt. 1732; James,<sup>4</sup> b. abt. 1735; William,<sup>4</sup> b. abt. 1737; Mehetable,<sup>4</sup> b. abt. 1741, who m. 1st, — Porter, 2d, — Newland; Phœbe,<sup>4</sup> b. abt. 1743, m. Arthur St. Clair; Sarah,<sup>4</sup> b. abt. 1747, m. John Elliot.) Mary,<sup>3</sup> m. 2d, Melatiah Bourne; James,<sup>3</sup> (the Gov'r) b. 7 Aug. 1726, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Erving, had children, James,<sup>4</sup> b. 22 Sept. 1752, m. Sarah Bowdoin; no issue. She afterwards m. Gen. Henry Dearborn. Elizabeth,<sup>4</sup> m. Sir John Temple, who had children, among them, James Bowdoin Temple,<sup>5</sup> and a dau. Elizabeth,<sup>5</sup> who m. Hon. Thomas Lindall Winthrop. They were the parents of Hon. Robert C. Winthrop. It is remarkable in the history of this family, that just one hundred years after the ancestor's exile, viz. in 1785, his grandson was elected Governor of Massachusetts. On the death of his son, 11 Oct. 1811, the name of Bowdoin became extinct, but was revived by his great-grandson, James B. Winthrop. On his decease, in 1833, the name again became extinct. It is said the pedigree of this family may be traced to Baldwin, the chivalrous King of Jerusalem in 1143, and still farther back, to Baldwin, Count of Flanders in 862.

CLAP, NEHEMIAH, was a son of Ezra, and grandson of Dea. Edward. He was a man very much respected in Milton, in which town he was born. He married Lydia Tucker of Milton, 16 Aug. 1716. He was Deacon of the Church and one of the Clerks of the town, and died in July, 1743, leaving will dated June 23 of that year; he gave his wife Lydia, one third of his "creatures and moveables" and the improvement of one third of his estate while she remained his widow; to his sons, Stephen and Joseph Clap, he gave the remainder of his estate about home; they were also to have their mother's share after she ceased to improve it. The Joseph here mentioned, was grandfather of Rev. George Putnam, D. D., of Roxbury; his dau. Jerusha having married Andrew Putnam of Sterling, Mass. Dea. Nehemiah left to his daughters, Hannah and Judith, his rights to land now situated in Ashburnham, Mass., then called Dorchester Canada; these rights belonged to him as the representative of his brother Edward, who was lost in the Canada expedition of 1690.

E. C. JR.

DEXTER, REV. SAMUEL, born 23 Oct. 1700, died 29 Jan. 1755, was the third child and second son (of a family of eight children) of JOHN Dexter of Malden, Mass., who died 14 Nov. 1722, and who was for many years a deacon of the church, and selectman of that town, and commanded a Company of Foot under George the First, receiving his commission from Governor Samuel Shute in 1717;—and who married Winnefred Sprague of Malden, born 31 Dec. 1673, died 5 Dec. 1752, who, says her son, the subject of this notice, "was a very pious woman, strictly religious, lived in the fear of God, and died strong in faith, and full of comfort and joy."

The abovenamed John was the son of JOHN, also of Malden, who married Sarah —, and died 8 Dec. 1677, aged 38, had three children, and was the son of RICHARD, likewise of Malden, who had five children, and appears to have been the earliest of the name in the same ancestral line, who came to New England, having been "admitted a townsman [of Boston] 28th of the 12th mo. 1641"—(Feb. 1642);—and who became the owner of a farm in Malden, of forty acres, by a deed dated 7 Dec. 1663, from Edward Lane of Boston, which has continued in the possession of his direct descendants to the present time, (1854) having since been increased to about two hundred acres.

Rev. S. D. was married in Boston, 9 July, 1724, by Mr. Benjamin Wadsworth, to Catherina Mears, born 25 Sept. 1701, died 10 June, 1797, daughter of Samuel, born 22 May, 1671, died 10 May, 1727, and Mary-Catherina Mears; graduated at Harvard College 1720, admitted to the church in Malden same year, kept school in Taunton, Lynn, and Malden, after which, his time was improved in preaching, his first sermon being delivered 15 Oct. 1722. He was invited to settle in Brimfield, Medford, Westboro', Yarmouth, and Dedham, from whence he received a unanimous call, and where he was ordained as the fourth minister of the First Church, now under the charge of the Rev. Alvan Lamson, 6 May, 1724, at a salary of £150, the sermon being preached by the Rev. Mr. Baxter of Medfield, and where he continued to officiate till his death. He was the brother of John, of Malden, born 19 Dec 1705, died 17, March, 1790, who had thirteen children, having been married the third time; was town-clerk for several years, a delegate to the Provincial Congress at Concord, and an active and efficient man during the Revolutionary War. He also held a commission of Ensign from Governor William Shirley, George the Second, 1743, of a Foot Company in Malden, under the command of the "Honorable Spencer Phipps as Colonel;" and continued during his life to occupy the family mansion in Malden, of three preceding generations, and which is now in the possession of his grand and great-grand children. He was also the brother of Richard, a physician, who settled at Topsfield, born 15 June, 1713, died there 25 Nov. 1783, who married Mehitable Putnam, born —, 1722, died 2 Sept. 1801, a sister of the heroic General Israel Putnam, who, it is said, possessed many similar conspicuous traits of character to those of her brother. He had eleven children, among whom were, Samuel, born 16 March, 1726, died 10 June, 1810, a merchant in Boston, who bequeathed at his death, a legacy of five thousand dollars to Harvard College, for the encouragement of Biblical Criticism, upon which the Dexter Lectureship in that institution was afterwards founded; married Hannah Sigourney, born 27 Feb. 1719, died 6 Nov. 1784, eldest daughter of Andrew and Mary Sigourney of Boston. Ebenezer, born 17 Oct. 1729, died 4 May, 1769, a physician in Marlboro', Mass., who married Lydia Woods, born in 1736, died 24 Dec. 1774. John, born 12 Aug. 1735, died 7 Feb. 1800, a goldsmith in Marlboro', Mass., who married Mary How, born 15 April, 1746, died 4 Feb. 1822. Catherine, born 21 Nov. 1737, died 30 Aug. 1814, who married Rev. Jason Haven of Framingham, born 2 March, 1733, died 17 May, 1803; graduated at Harvard College 1754, and ordained over the First Church in Dedham 5 Feb. 1756. Rebecca, born 4 Oct. 1739, died 31 May, 1823, who married Lemuel Clap, born 9 April, 1735, died 29 Dec. 1819, a farmer in Dorchester, Mass. Mary, born 12 Oct. 1743, died 13 May, 1775, who married Rev. Ephraim Ward of Brookfield, Mass., born 2 March, 1741, died 9 Feb. 1818; graduated at Harvard College 1763, and ordained 23 Oct. 1771. He was, likewise, the grandfather of Andrew, born 14 March, 1749, died —, a merchant in Boston and Providence, afterwards resided at Mendon, Mass. and at Athens, N. Y., where he died. Mary, born 15 Aug. 1753, died 5 May, 1828, who married John Bradford of Boston, born — Aug. 1756, died 21 Jan. 1825; graduated at Harvard College 1774, ordained over the second parish in Roxbury, Mass., 30 May, 1785. Catherine Maria, born 11 April, 1760, died 11 March, 1818, who married Judge Artemas Ward, born 9 Jan. 1762, died 7 Oct. 1847. Samuel, born 14 May, 1761, died 4 May, 1816, the eminent lawyer, formerly of this city, who married Catherine Gordon, born — 1761, died 2 Oct. 1841—all children of his son Samuel;—also of Judge Samuel Haven of Dedham, born 5 April, 1771, died 4 Sept. 1847, who married Betsey Foster of Cambridge, born 23 Jan. 1770, died 27 Jan. 1851. Catherine Haven, born 28 Aug. 1774, died 22 Oct. 1842, who married Rev. Stephen Palmer of Needham, Mass. born 8 Oct. 1766, died 31 Oct. 1821; graduated Harvard College 1789, ordained 7 Nov. 1792.

He seemed, early in life, to have been naturally averse to prominent positions, and seldom consented to occupy them without reluctance, being much inclined to seclusion; alluding, at times, to his “suffering under very grievous, disheartening discouragements, extraordinary dullness, and heaviness;” and says, “melancholy is so much my natural disposition that it makes my life very uneasy.” At a few months later date, however, we find his “disheartening discouragements” were less “grievous,” as the following extract from his Diary will show:—“This day was very cold. I communicated something of my mind to the young lady—which I hope, (and I think I have reason to hope,) may, through the smiles of an indulgent Providence, be the person in whom I may find the good thing, and obtain favor of the Lord. I think I have not been rash in my proceedings;—she is, as far as I can find, a woman of merit—a woman of good temper, and of prudent conduct and conversation;—and, O Lord, I would humbly wait upon thee for so signal a blessing.” In a little less than a year afterwards, he observes,—“my companion is a kind, tender, and virtuous person, and I hope I have in her a good thing, which is from the Lord God, make her so to me.”

His widow married Samuel Barnard of Salem, Mass., in 1756, who died 21 Nov. 1762, in his 78th year, living with him about six years; after which she returned to Dedham, and remained in the family of her daughter Catherine, where she continued to be universally beloved and respected, and enjoyed a tranquil and happy old age—her remains being deposited in the tomb with those of her first husband. HUMPHREY, MR. JAMES, son of James and Margaret, was born in Weymouth, 22 June, 1711. He was the fourth in descent from Jonas Humphrey, who, with his son James, came from the County of Bucks, England, and settled in Dorchester about 1637. See N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg. Vol. IV, p. 198. Jonas<sup>1</sup> had also a son Jonas,<sup>2</sup> freeman in 1653, who settled in Weymouth. Jonas<sup>2</sup> by his wife Martha, had James,<sup>3</sup>*

FRAGMENTS OF THE ROLLINS FAMILY.

[Collected by J. R. ROLLINS, A. M., Member of N. E. Hist. Gen. Soc.]

The name Rollins is a corruption of Rawlins, which latter orthography obtains in England and to a certain extent in this country at the present day. Of this, abundant proof may be found.

1st. In the fact that on records in America, prior to 1750, Rollins does not appear, but we find everywhere Rawlin, Rawline, Rawlins, Rawlings, &c.

2d. In names of towns, e. g., Rawlingsburg, N. Carolina, Rawlingsville, Alabama, and Rollingsford, N. H., where, or in the vicinity of which, both forms of spelling are adopted by different descendants from a common ancestry.

The derivation of Rawlins will be attended with more difficulty. The individuals who have borne the name belonged to the workers rather than to the drones of the hive, and though several, by their abilities and talents, have distinguished themselves above their fellows, and have been ranked among the gentry of England, none were of noble birth or have ever received any title of nobility. Hence no extended pedigree can be found, and we must rely upon detached facts to aid us in our investigation.

A. D. 1370.

The earliest date at which I have been able to find the name in England (and this is merely a mention of it) is about A. D. 1370, in Hampshire,* where William Wickham, Bishop of Winchester, was accused by John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, of having converted the fines due to the king, from one Rawlins and Kirkton, to his own use.

A. D. 1395.

Roger Rawlyn was lord of the manor of Testerton, in Norfolk, in 1395. Testerton, called in Domesday Book Estretuna, was the lordship of Peter de Valoines at the survey, out of which Toka a freeman was expelled at the Conquest.†

A. D. 1444.

In this year we find a notice of one John Rawlins at Bridgetown, in Warwickshire. "This town is chiefly memorable for a hermitage to which the chapel of St. Mary Magdalen belongs. It was anciently endowed with some lands by the Powers of Rien Clifford, for the reparation of the bridge, which lands Thomas Power, Esq., confirmed (22 Hen. VI,) and at the same time constituted John Rawlins to be Hermite during life, appointing him to celebrate an obit in the parish church of Stratford, for the souls of the parents and ancestors of him, the said Thomas."‡

A. D. 1494.

Henry Rawlins, L. L. B., was prebend of Lincoln, July 28, 1494.§

A. D. 1504.

Richard Rawlins, S. T. P., succeeded to the subdeanery of York, being admitted Oct. 1, 1504. He quitted it for the archdeaconry of Cleveland, 1507; installed archdeacon of Huntington, Nov. 18, 1514; in 1523 preferred to the see of St. David's, where he died, and was buried in that cathedral.§

Christopher Rawlins, S. T. P., installed prebend of Lincoln, 1555; held it in 1562.‡

A. D. 1677.

Sir Benjamin Rawlins of Putteridge, sheriff of London, died unmarried, Dec. 2, 1775, æ. 98; was descended from Hertfordshire.‡

Since A. D. 1500 the name may be found in almost every county, perhaps every county in England, and Ireland, and Scotland.

Arms.

Rawlins, (Ireland.)—Sa. 3 swords ar. one in pale and two in saltire hilts and pommels or. In base a crescent of the last. Crest—a lion's head erased, gu.

Rawling, (Scotland.)—Sa. a sword paleways ar. hilted and pommeled or., between three mullets pierced, of the last.

Rawlins or Rawlyns.—Granted 1601 to Thomas Rawlins, M. D., of Kilreige, Co. Hereford, and Middle Temple, London, 1610, in which grant Thomas is named as "of the old and noted family ('claræ et antiquæ') of Rawlins, Co. Hereford." Sa. three swords barways, points toward the sinister point of escutcheon ar. hilts and pommels or. Crest—a bull's leg couped near the body. Sa. covered to the fetlock ar. On the top a bird's head erased gu. Motto—In mercurio triumpho.§

Rawlins, (Saunders Hill, Co. Cornwall and Herefordshire.)—Sable—three swords in pale, points in chief, hilts and pommels or. Crest—an arm embowed, in armor, the elbow resting on the wreath, holding the gauntlet a falchion ar. hilt or. Motto—Cognosce teipsum et disce pati.

Borne also with slight variation by William Rawlings, Esq., of Padstow, Co. Cornwall. This family, originally of Herefordshire, was for many generations officially connected with its city. Among the descendants were, I. William, an eminent merchant, distinguished alike for active philanthropy and literary attainments, removed from Hereford to Padstow about the year 1750, among whose estates were manors of St. Columb, derived from the Wardour Arundels, and of Rialton, from the Godolphins, (the latter, perhaps, through Ann Carew, who married — Rawlin; she was dau. and heiress of George Carew, descended from Walter de Winsor, who married Thomasine, dau. of Sir Francis Godolphin.)||

II. William, his son, of Exeter Coll. Oxford, M. A., forty years vicar of Padstow, three of whose children were in holy orders, viz., William, rector of Lansallos; James, rector of St. Pinnoch, and Charles, curate of St. Stephens and St. Dennis.

III. Thomas Rawlins, High Sheriff of Cornwall, 1803, and a deputy warden of the Stannaries.¶

Other Arms.

Rawlings.—Per pale ar. and sa. On a chevron between three birds, as many crescents, all counterchanged. Crest—A ram passant sa. attired or.

Rawlins, (Wakering, Co. Essex).—Ar. a fesse sable fretty or. in chief, three pellets. Granted Jan. 2, 1560. Crest—A bear's head couped or.

With the two preceding exceptions the different grants of arms seem to indicate a common origin, and the inference is strengthened by the following :—

Arms.—Sa. three swords in pale, two with points in base, middle one in chief. Crest—An arm embowed in armor, holding in the gauntlet a sword ar. hilt or. Granted to Rawle of Hennet, in St. Juliott, Co. Cornwall, temp. Edward IV.*

From what has been said, it is evident that Rawlins has been a fixed and hereditary surname for at least four hundred years. And as similarity of arms usually denotes consanguinity, it is inferred that the name is derived from Rawle, the termination ing, denoting offspring, having been added to denote the descent.

Our next inquiry will relate to the origin of Rawle. Mr. Lower, in his treatise on English surnames, gives the Christian name Ralph, as the primitive of Rawes, Rawson, Rawlins and Rawlinson. This name Ralph, which became also a surname, is contracted from Radulph or Rudolph, which signifies "Helpe counsell,"† and Rudolph is the same as the French Raoul. If this name be not the true origin of Rawle and Rawlins, it is not a little singular that we find precisely the same gradation in France, viz., Raoul, Raoulyn, Raoulini, Raoullin, Raulin, Roulin, and Rollin of more recent date. The termination lin, may be a contraction of ligne, denoting lineage. And the French word Raulin is evidently the same as the English Rawlin, inasmuch as the French alphabet has not w. And we may carry the comparison of names even further. One of the elders of the Huguenot church, who arrived in 1685 or 1686, and settled in the present town of Oxford, Mass., was ‡Jean Rawling (spelt also Railing.) And Rev. Peter Dailé left by his will £5 to John Rawlins, the French schoolmaster.

RESEARCHES AMONG FUNERAL SERMONS, AND OTHER TRACTS, FOR THE RECOVERY OF BIOGRAPHICAL AND GENEALOGICAL MATERIALS.

CUTLER.—“A Funeral Discourse on the occasion of the Death of HON. EPHRAIM CUTLER. Delivered at Warren, Washington Co. O By Prof. E. A. Andrews, of Marietta College. Published by request. Marietta, O. 1854.” 8vo. pp. 28.

This Discourse, of which the above is the title, is composed in a manner which meets our entire approbation. Prof. Andrews very justly concluded, that those who may come after the present generation, if an intelligent race, will desire to know something of those who preceded them. We published, in our seventh volume, an interesting letter from the deceased, which contains some account of himself and family. “His death took place on the 8th of July, 1853.” Hence he was 86 years, three months, and five days old. He was among the pioneers of the West; having arrived at Marietta, with his family, 18 Sept 1795, “having spent 31 days upon the river”—as much time as it now takes to go from Boston to England and back again. There accompanied him, Col. Israel Putnam, Israel Putnam, Jr., Phinehas Matthews, with what families they had. Mr. Cutler was occupied for a season as a surveyor of lands; and within the first year he received from Gov. St. Clair, commissions of Captain in the Militia, Justice of the Peace, Judge of the Courts of Quarter Sessions and of the Common Pleas. He was henceforth known as Judge Cutler. He kept a Journal of his hardships, sufferings and toils in the “wilderness work,” which should be published. Judging from a few extracts given by Prof. Andrews, it would be of permanent interest. In 1801 he was a member of the Territorial legislature, and the next year was a member of the Convention to form a State Constitution. In 1818 he went into the State Legislature, and though opposed and thwarted for several sessions, in his efforts to establish a Common School System, yet he eventually had the satisfaction to see his views carried out, and himself called the father of the System. In 1840 he was a delegate to the Harrisburgh Convention, which nominated his old friend Gen. Harrison for the Presidency of the United States.

DUDLEY.—“The Character of a Christian's Life and Death illustrated.—A Sermon upon the death of MRS. LUCY DUDLEY, Relict of the late HON. PAUL DUDLEY, ESQ., who died Oct. 24, 1756, æt. 72. Preached at Roxbury, Oct. 31, 1756. By Amos Adams, A. M. Pastor of the First Church in Roxbury. Boston: 1756.” 8vo. pp. 26.

The author of this Discourse, though a historical man, and has left us several valuable historical works in the form of Sermons, yet in this there is nothing whatever, either historical, biographical or genealogical beyond what is set forth in the title-page. The character of MRS. DUDLEY is drawn at considerable length, and with an ability worthy of the able hand of Mr. Adams. We have room but for a single passage. “She, for abilities of mind, for wisdom, knowledge, prudence, discretion, a heavenly temper, pure morals, unaffected piety, shining graces, and an unsullied character, has been rarely equalled by any of her sex amongst us.” p. 21.

ELIOT.—“The Rest which remaineth,” &c.—“Shown in a Sermon preached at the New North Church in Boston, 13 Sept. 1778. Being the day of the Death of their Excellent Pastor, ANDREW ELIOT, D. D. By Peter Thacher, A. M. Pastor of the First Church in Malden. Boston : " [1778]. 8vo. pp. 40.

DR. ANDREW ELIOT was the father of DR. JOHN ELIOT, author of "A New Biographical Dictionary" of the "Literary and Worthy men of New England;" a work discovering great research, and a thorough acquaintance with the history of the country. It was published near fifty years ago (1809) and is now rare. The publications of Dr. Eliot (the father) were quite numerous, but anything concerning him from us would be quite superfluous, while an account of him may be read in the work just referred to, by one no less able than willing to do justice to the memory of a most honored father.

FOXCROFT.—"The Blessedness of the Dead, who die in the Lord.—A Sermon Preached the Lord's day after the Funeral of MRS. ANNA FOXCROFT, the amiable and pious Consort of the Rev. Mr. Thomas Foxcroft, who died Oct. 9th, 1749, in the 53d year of her age. By Charles Chauncy, D. D. one of the Pastors of the First Church in Boston. Boston : 1749." 8vo. pp. 31.

The Preacher gives the deceased the highest character, quoting that beautiful passage from Proverbs, xxxi, 26-28, but nothing regarding her history or pedigree. She was daughter of Mr. John Coney of Boston, goldsmith.

HIRST.—"The Honor and Happiness of the virtuous Woman; more especially considered in two relations of a Wife and Mother. Meditated upon the lamented Death of MRS. ELIZABETH HIRST, the virtuous Consort of Grove Hirst, Esq., who departed this Life, July 10, 1716. In the 35 year of her age. By Benjamin Colman, Pastor of a Church of Christ in Boston, N. E. Boston : 1716." 12mo. pp. 33.

"MRS. HIRST has made no small addition to the honor of her family, and to the name of Sewall." She was the daughter of the Hon. Judge Sewall. Her Husband died in October, 1717. On his death Dr. Colman also preached the Sermon, which was printed, and accompanying it "MR. HIRST's Remains," making a volume in small 12mo, of 136 pages. It was probably printed only for the immediate relatives, as it is now very rarely to be found, even in our old libraries. MR. HIRST was a son of WILLIAM HIRST, Esq. of Salem, "which had the honor of his birth and education, Boston of his life and grave." Page 41. In his Dedication to Judge Sewall, Dr. Colman says, "You, Sir, are the only Parent now left to MR. HIRST's children. Within six months and a few days the sovereign God has taken away the three other Grandparents. Yea, within one dark fortnight they were made trebly orphans. For on the 19th of October, 1717, died their grandmother Sewall, your gracious consort; on the 28 of the same month God took away their Father from them, and on the 1st of November following their honored Grand-father Hirst." Mr. Hirst left five small children. P. 43. Hirst's Remains.

LAMB.—"Sober Sentiments.—In an Essay upon the vain Presumption of Living and Thriving in the World, which does too often possess and poison the Children of this World. Produced by the premature and much lamented Death of Mr. Joshua Lamb, who died (of a fall received a few days before) July 15, 1722. By one of the Ministers in Boston. With an Appendix by another Hand. Eccl. vii, 2. Boston : Printed by T. Fleet in Pudding Lane, 1722." 12mo. pp. 37.

Although this Discourse does not appear in the Catalogue of the works of Dr. Cotton Mather, as given in his Life by his son, yet there is no question of its being by him, from its style and manner. But if other evidence were wanting, it may be found in the cotemporary autograph of "Samuel Sewall, Junr." He wrote in the copy now used, "By Dr. Cotton Mather." And, in another place he wrote, "Samuel Sewall, Junr., given me by Madam Lamb." The last named person may have been the mother of the deceased. The "Appendix by another Hand," Mr. Sewall says, was written "By Mr. Thomas Walter." Thus by two or three manuscript lines by Samuel Sewall, Junr. we have more of a history of the Funeral Sermon, than of the subject of it, for neither the Sermon nor the Appendix contains scarcely a line about the deceased. From the latter (which consists of six pages) is learned that he was "just entering upon the 20th year of his age, and fourth and last year of his residence at Harvard Collegé."

If there are any LAMBS interested in the history of their family, now or hereafter, they may see a curious Epitaph upon one in Holinshed's Chronicle, black letter edition, page 1313.

NILES.—"A Sermon preached at Braintree, the Sabbath after the Burial of that Pious and Valuable Gentlewoman, MRS. ANN NILES, the Virtuous Consort of the Reverend MR. SAMUEL NILES, of that Town, who died Oct. 25th, 1732, in the fifty-fifth year of her age. By Thomas Paine, M. A., Pastor of a Church of Christ in Weymouth. Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland and T. Green, 1732." 8vo. p. 27.

"She was a Daughter of the late honorable Nathaniel Coddington, Esq., of Newport, on Rhode Island, a Member of the Council in that Province; and her Mother was Mrs. Susannah Hutchinson, Sister of the late honorable Elisha Hutchinson, Esq., of Boston."

The first wife of Mr. Niles was Daughter of the late Rev. Peter Thacher, Pastor of Milton. And her Mother was Mrs. Theodora Oxenbridge, Daughter of the late Reverend Mr. John Oxenbridge, Pastor of the first Church in Boston. She was born March 7, 1682-3, and died Febr 10, 1715-16. Having earnestly recommended to her mournful Consort, Mrs. Ann Coddington, whom, from her own Acquaintance with her, she prudently chose for the Mother of her Children, as well as the Wife of her Husband. Note on p. 24.

W. B. T.

TURELL.—"Memoirs of the Life and Death of the Pious and Ingenious MRS. JANE TURELL, who died at Medford, March 26th, 1735, Ætat. 27. Collected chiefly from her own Manuscripts. By her Consort, the REV. MR. EBENEZER TURELL, M. A., Pastor of the Church in Medford. To which is added, two Sermons preached at Medford, the Lord's day after her Funeral, by her father, Benjamin Colman, D. D."

These Memoirs and Sermons were printed in duodecimo, at London, in 1741. Her birth was at Boston, 25 Feb. 1708. Her mother died about four years before her. "At nine or ten, if not before, she was able to write, for in 1718, her father wrote a letter in answer to one from her."—MRS. TURELL was no ordinary woman. Her letters in this Memoir show that she was educated in all the virtues of the virtuous. She wrote very good Poetry, kept a Diary, and appears to have been in great esteem by all who knew her. The rare young Poet, Mr. John Adams, wrote an Elegy on her at her death.

And lose her sorrows in these realms of bliss.
But TAYLOR calls me downward, and demands
Tears from my eyes and cypress from my hands.

And all her bosom wears the dews of death.

To the name of TAYLOR is the following note :—" Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, the lovely consort of the REV. MR. JOHN TAYLOR, Pastor of the Church in Milton, and daughter of the late Rev. Mr. Nathanael Rogers of Portsmouth, in New Hampshire, died April 16, 1735, three weeks after Mrs. Turell, and alike esteemed and lamented by all that knew her."

WILLARD.—" A Poem sacred to the Memory of the Honorable Josiah Willard, Esq. late Secretary of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England; who deceased December 6th, 1756, Ætatis 76. Boston: Printed by Green & Russell, in Queen street, 1757." 4to.

On the half-title of the above described tract, a MS. note says its author was "Peter Oliver, Esq." On the same leaf is the autograph "S. Checkley's," and "J. Green, Junrs. 1780." On the back of the title-page is the following (printed) record of "Offices sustained by Secretary WILLARD. Tutor of Harvard College. Secretary of the Province, from June, 1717 to December, 1756. Judge of the Probate of Wills for the County of Suffolk, from Dec. 1731 to 1745. One of his Majesty's Council, from May, 1734, to May, 1756."

WILLARD.—" A Funeral Sermon on the Death of that Learned and Excellent Divine, the Reverend Mr. SAMUEL WILLARD, Pastor of a Church of Christ in Boston, and Vice President of Harvard College. Who deceased Sept. 12, 1707, Ætatis suæ 68. By Ebenezer Pemberton, A. M. To which is annexed a Poem, on the same sorrowful occasion, by the Rev. Mr. Benjamin Colman. Boston: 1707." 12mo. pp. 80, and Poem, 14.

There is little indeed of biography or history in the Sermon or in the Poem, but of the two the last is preferable, inasmuch as it contains in few words the substance of the 80 pages, and describes the personal appearance of its subject. The following extract is to the point in the latter particular :—

"Plain was the Saint, his Soul by Grace refin'd,
His Girdle mean, but much adorned his mind :
In face, as well as mind, above the toys
Of this vain world, and all its sensual joys :
Simple in diet, negligent of dress,
Hairy and rough his robe, meet to express
One mortified to things of time and sense,
To truth and things divine a love intense."

The publications of MR. WILLARD are numerous, and Dr. Eliot says, that "no Divine, except Dr. Cotton Mather, in this country, prepared more works for the press; and they were all calculated to do honor to the Author, and edify pious people." His greatest work the "Body of Divinity," was published after his death, in large folio. This was the first folio, except probably a few laws and Journals, printed in these Colonies. It was published by Subscription, and the names of the Subscribers, printed at the end, form an array of talent and learning, which future learned men of New England may look back upon with pride and satisfaction. It is surpassed by no list of that period, perhaps, unless that contained in Prince's Chronology. Some copies of the "Body of Divinity," contained a Portrait of the Author, of folio size, executed in England by Vander Gucht. The writer has, however, seen but a single copy with the portrait, and that was, at one time, the property of the Rev. Dr. Convers Francis, now of Harvard College.

MEMOIR OF ISAAC ALLERTON.

[Abridged from a communication of HON. HENRY W. CUSHMAN of Bernardston.*]

ISAAC ALLERTON, a fac-simile of whose autograph is annexed, was one of those who, about 1608 or 9, left their native land (Old England) and settled at Leyden, in Holland, for the sake of "purity of conscience and liberty of worship."† The exact time or place of his birth—as is the case with most of our Puritan Fathers—is unknown. It is supposed, however, from contemporaneous facts, that he must have been born about the year 1583, in the northeastern part of England, and that he was first married about 1604 or 5.‡ If we are correct in these assumptions, he must have married and have had two children before he left England for Holland, and his daughters Mary and Sarah must have been born in the latter country.

The first mention we have of Mr. Allerton by name is his signature attached to a letter written from Holland to the agents of the Puritans, "Mr. Carver and Robert Cushman," that "the coming of Mr. Nash and their Pilot is a great encouragement to them." This letter was signed by four persons, of whom the initials only are given. These are, S. F., E. W., W. B., and I. A., doubtless intended for Samuel Fuller, Edward Winslow, William Bradford and Isaac Allerton. The next that we hear of Mr. Allerton is at the formation of the memorable "compact" on board of the Mayflower in Cape Cod, or Provincetown Harbor, Nov. 11, 1620, O. S.; of which instrument it has been said, that "for the first time in the world's history the philosophic fiction of a social compact was realized in practice." Allerton was the fifth signer, and was one of nine, in the list of forty-one, to whom Governor Bradford has given the honorable prefix of "Mr." The names of Carver, Bradford, Winslow and Brewster are the only ones that precede his.

The birth of a son of Mr. Allerton is thus mentioned in Gov. Bradford's Journal: "Friday, 22d, [Dec. 1620, O. S.,] the storm still continued that we could not get a land, nor they come to us a board. This morning good wife Alderton was delivered of a son, but dead born." This was the second child born since the Pilgrims left Holland. The first entry in the records of Plymouth colony is an incomplete list of the "Meer-

* This gentleman is preparing for publication a genealogy of the Cushmans of the United States. A memoir of Isaac Allerton (of which this is an abridgement) will accompany that work. Mary Allerton, the daughter of Isaac, was the wife of Elder Thomas Cushman, the ancestor of all the Cushmans in this country. The Cushmans are therefore descended from the Allertons. Any information respecting either of these names will be gratefully received by Mr. Cushman.

† Prince's N. E. Chronology.

‡ His third child Mary died in 1699, aged 90. She was therefore born about 1609. As he had two older children, he must have been married about the time we have stated; and must, therefore, been born as early as 1583, perhaps earlier. He was consequently about 26 years of age when he emigrated to Holland, and about 37 when he came to Plymouth.

steads* and Garden Plottes of those which came first, layed out 1620." This was the first division of land. Mr. Allerton's name is here found. The prefix of Mr. is applied to Brewster and Allerton only. It is probable that he built a house on his "garden plotte," which was on the south side of Leyden Street; but how long he resided there is unknown. A few years afterwards, a tract of land was assigned to him "at Rocky Nook in Jones River Precinct."† Here he built a house, having for a neighbor John Howland, who married Elizabeth Carver, the only child of Gov. Carver, and lived there several years. On the Plymouth Colony Records, under date of 1635, allusion is made to "Mr. Allerton's house on the north side of Jones' River."‡

In February, 1620-1, Mr. Allerton lost his wife, which event Governor Bradford thus records in his Journal: "The 25th dies Mary, the wife of Mr. Isaac Allerton." On the 22d of March, he was one of two (Capt. Standish being the other) who "went venturously" to treat with Massasoit, during that sachem's first visit to Plymouth. In April, Gov. Carver died after a short illness, having officiated as governor nearly five months. "Soon after," says Bradford, in his Journal, "we chose Mr. William Bradford our Governor, and Mr. Isaac Allerton his Assistant, who are, by renewed elections, continued together sundry years." The governor had but one assistant till 1624; then five till 1633; after which seven assistants were chosen. It is not known with certainty how long Mr. Allerton was continued as an Assistant to the Governor. It is certain he was chosen the only one in 1621, and was continued such till 1624, when the number of assistants was increased. There are no lists of assistants until 1633, at which time Mr. Allerton was not of the number.

A party of ten men—of whom Mr. Allerton was probably one—were sent, in September, 1621, to visit the Massachusetts Indians. At that time, or at a subsequent period, three small islands—being the outermost ones as you approach Boston Harbor from the east—were named the Brewsters, in honor of Elder Brewster; and, as a mark of respect to Mr. Allerton, the first headland, or cape, of Nantasket was called Point Allerton.§

Mr. Allerton, having been a widower over five years, in 1626 or thereabouts, married Fear, daughter of Elder William Brewster, who had come over, in 1623, with her sister Patience, in the ship Ann. In the autumn of 1626, he was sent to England, partly to obtain some supply for the

† Called after Capt. Jones, of the Mayflower.

‡ The location of Mr. Allerton's house at "Rocky Nook," in Kingston, is still pointed out; and, from the geographical and topographical position of Jones River, and the country round about, it is obviously correct. The house was situated near the marsh, and not far from the celebrated "Elder's Spring," (so called from Elder Thomas Cushman, who lived near it,) about fifty rods from the highway, and in a northerly direction from the present dwelling house of Thomas Cushman, Esq. Mr. Allerton afterwards sold his house and land at Rocky Nook "vnto my well beloued sonne-in-law Thomas Cushman, of New Plymouth;" and it was occupied by the latter till the time of his death. For many years past there has been no house standing on the spot, but the location is often visited by antiquaries and descendants of the Puritans.

§ On the old maps it has frequently been spelled Point Alderton, and Mr. Allerton's own name was by others frequently spelled and pronounced that way; but, on the Map of Massachusetts, published in 1844, under the authority and at the expense of the State, it is correctly spelled Point Allerton.

colony, and partly to see if he could make any reasonable composition with the Adventurers. Capt. Standish had been sent the year before. A bond, signed by Gov. Bradford, Isaac Allerton and others, was given, dated July 2, 1626, for the purpose of raising money for the colony. Mr. Allerton returned to Plymouth in the spring of 1627, having taken up £200 for the colony, but it was at thirty in the hundred which he invested in goods. The same year he was again sent to England to confirm and ratify a bargain made with the Adventurers to pay them £1800 for their interest in America. He went "in a fishing vessel which was then returning there." "He carried out some beaver to pay some engagements of the previous year, and was instructed to obtain a patent for a trading place on the Kennebeck, and other things. The contract for the payment of the £1800 was dated 15 Nov. 1626. They were to forfeit 30 shillings per week for every week the debt was not paid after it was due. By this contract, the Company sold to the Colony all their stocks, merchandize, lands, chattels, rights and interest, in consideration of the said £1800, "to be paid at the Royal Exchange, at London, every Michaelmas, in nine annual instalments of £200 each." Allerton's agreement was sanctioned; and the whole trade of the colony was bound to Gov. Bradford, Edward Winslow, Miles Standish, John Howland and Isaac Allerton for six years from the last day of September, 1627, for which the whole debts of the colony, amounting to £2400, were to be paid; and they were also to pay to the colony £50 per annum in shoes and hose. Mr. Allerton was in London 14 June, 1627, and Mr. James Shirley, one of the Adventurers, and a firm friend of the colony, writes, under date of 27 December, of that year, that "the bargain is fully concluded." "Thus," says Gov. Bradford in his letter book, "all is now become our own,—as we say in the proverb,—when our debts are paid."

"Early in the year 1628 Mr. A. returned to Plymouth, having succeeded in all his objects. He paid the first £200 to the Adventurers, and all their other debts. He also succeeded in obtaining a patent for a trading station for Kennebeck."* In the autumn of 1628, he went a third time to England. His object was to obtain the enlargement and correction of the Kennebec patent, and also another for Plymouth; and to facilitate the removal of the remainder of the church at Leyden. He returned to Plymouth without effecting his designs; but being immediately (August, 1629) sent back, he had better success. After much delay and great difficulty, he obtained the desired patent, Jan. 29, 1630.

In Winthrop's Journal, under date of Saturday, 12, [June, 1630,] we find the following: "About four in the morning we were near our port. We shot off two pieces of ordnance, and sent our skiff to Mr. Pierce his ship (which lay in the harbour and had been there [blank] days.) About an hour after, Mr. Allerton came on board us, in a shallop, as he was sailing to Pemaquid." Allerton, therefore, must have been the first person who welcomed Mr. Winthrop and his associates to New England.

He made a fifth voyage to England, in 1630, and returned the next year in the ship White Angel, and Mr. Hatherly with him.† About this period a difficulty arose between Mr. A. and the colony, having its origin some time back; and, says Baylies, "he was dismissed as their agent." "The Leyden people had taken up some prejudice against him, and the colony complained that too much money had been lavished, by him and Mr. Sherley, to obtain a royal charter." "As an agent, Mr. A. appears to have been indefatigable in his attempts to promote the interests of his employers. He was a person of uncommon activity, address and enterprise." Whatever the cause, the fact of an alienation between Allerton and the colony became obvious. He therefore quitted forever the employment of the colonists and became rather unfriendly to them and their interests. "1631, Sept. 6. The White Angel, with Mr. Allerton, sails for Marble Harbour, [now Marblehead, Mass.,] being no more employed by the plantation of Plymouth."* In June, 1632, Allerton formed a trading company, hired the White Angel of Mr. Sherley, and attempted to establish a rival trading house on the Kennebec River. He also attempted to deprive Plymouth of the trade at Penobscot, by establishing another house there, but it was broken up and destroyed by the French. "1633. Mr. Allerton set up a trading house at Machias, consisting of 5 men and a quantity of Merchandize." "This season Mr. A. fished with 8 boats at Marble Harbour."† A tax was made this year by the Plymouth colony; and the highest tax assessed was on Mr. Allerton, viz., £3 10s. The next highest tax was on Edward Winslow, Governor, £2 5s. Thus Mr. Allerton's taxable property at Plymouth at that time was one third more than any other man's in the colony. In 1634 Mr. Allerton's trading house at Machias was attacked by the French and Indians, and his goods taken away. His house there was destroyed by fire the same year. Feb. 1, 1634. "Mr. Cradock's house at Marble Head [then a part of Salem] was burnt about midnight, there being in it Mr. Allerton and many fishermen whom he employed that season."† The same year, returning from a trading voyage with the French about Port Royal, his pinnace was cast away and entirely lost. But these were not all his misfortunes. Dec. 12, 1634, Gov. Winthrop, of the Massachusetts Colony, writes to his son: "A pestilent fever hath taken away some at Plymouth; among others Mr. Allerton's wife."

The Massachusetts Colony Records state that Mr. Allerton, in March, 1635, "was to be notified by the civil authorities that he had leave to depart from Marblehead." In May, he conveyed to his son-in-law, Moses Maverick, all his "houses, buildings, and stages" at Marblehead, but whether he removed or not is uncertain. During this year, Mr. A., who had now received the cognomen of the "unlucky," had another of his coasting vessels wrecked. This was "a bark" employed to transport Rev. John Avery and his family from Newbury to Marblehead. It was lost at Cape Ann, Aug. 15, 1635, and 21 persons perished, among whom was Rev. Mr. Avery, his wife, and six children. In 1636, "Mr. Allerton returned in his pinnace from the French at Penobscot. His bark was cast upon an island and beat out her keel, and lay ten days; yet he got help from Pemaquid and mended her and brought her home."†

From 1636 to 1642, we learn nothing of him from the public records, nor from contemporaneous correspondence. It is probable that he was constantly engaged in trade, commerce, and the fisheries; and that, (having lost his wife, and his children—except Isaac by his second wife—having grown to adult age,) for a long time, he had no permanent home. As he was not taxed at Plymouth after 1634, we suppose he ceased to have a domicil there about this time. From 1643 to the close of his life, in 1658, his name is often found. In 1643, he is thus spoken of in Winthrop's Journal:—"Three ministers which were sent to Virginia, were wrecked on Long Island. Mr. Allerton of New Haven, who was there, took great pains and care of them, and procured them a very good pin-nace and all things necessary." The first instance in which Mr. Allerton's name is found in New Haven, is in the Records of a "General Court of the Jurisdiction, 27 Oct. 1643, at which a "proposition and request" were "made to Capt. Underhill and Mr. Allerton, by instructions from the Dutch Governor and some of the freemen of that jurisdiction, for the raising of one hundred soldiers out of the plantations of the English, and armed and victualled, to be led forth by Capt. Underhill, against the Indians now in hostility against the Dutch, to be paid by bills of exchange in Holland.* The first time we find his third wife mentioned, is in Winthrop's Journal, Dec. 16, 1644, where it is stated that Mr. Allerton coming from New Haven "in a ketch, with his wife and other persons, they were taken in a great storm, and cast away at Scituate; but the persons all saved." On the 27th Oct. 1646, he is spoken of as "of New Amsterdam, in the Province of New Netherlands, merchant." On the 10th March, 1646-7, he was seated in the meeting-house at New Haven, on the "second seat of the cross seats at the end." The records of Salem Church show that he became a member thereof in 1647. From 1650 to the close of his life, his name is occasionally mentioned in the New Haven Records.

Isaac Allerton died the latter part of 1658, or before the 12th Feb. 1658-9, and was probably buried in the old Burial Ground at New Haven. In the public records of New Haven, we find the settlement of his estate taken Feb. 12, and presented April 5, 1659. Isaac Allerton, the son, purchased of the creditors, his father's "dwelling-house, orchard and barn, with two acres of meadow." In a deed on the New Haven Records, dated Oct. 4, 1660, and confirmed March 10, 1682-3, he conveys to his "Mother-in-law, Mrs. Johanna Allerton," a life interest in "the house that she now dwells in at New Haven, New England, with all the furniture in it, and the lands and appurtenances belonging to it."

Rev. Dr. Bacon, in the letter before quoted, gives many interesting particulars in relation to the last years of the life of Isaac Allerton; and in another letter, dated July 30, 1838, an extract from which will be found in the same volume, he locates, with great precision, the house at New Haven in which Allerton dwelt. It must, he says, "have fronted upon what is now Union street, between Cherry street on the north, and Fair street on the south." Says Judge Davis, "It is to Allerton's old house, which was taken down in 1740, that the well known tradition," related by President Stiles, in his history, "respecting the concealment of the Judges by Mrs. Eyres, is to be referred."† But the lady protectress, he adds, could not have been Mrs. Eyres, who was then but 8 years old, but must have been Mrs. Johanna Allerton, the widow of Isaac Allerton, whose granddaughter Elizabeth, (afterwards Mrs. Eyres,) probably lived with her grandmother and "might have been a witness, perhaps an assistant, in the transaction, but certainly not a principal."

ADAMS FAMILY BIBLE.

The FAMILY BIBLE which belonged to the Father of the Patriot, GOVERNOR SAMUEL ADAMS, is now the property of the EDITOR of the N. Eng. Hist. and Gen. Register. At the death of the original owner, Samuel Adams, Esq., it passed into the hands of his son, the Patriot. The Family Records of both Father and Son are contained in the volume; the first in the autograph of the Father and the other in that of the Son. Presuming these venerable records would be generally interesting to the patrons of the Register, they are exactly copied below.

It may be proper in the first place to say a word respecting the edition of this Bible; which, as well as its appearance, is rather remarkable. It is in folio, and a large folio for that day; being about seventeen inches high, and three and a half in thickness, and of proportionable width. The paper and print are beautiful, and the binding was of the most substantial kind, with massive brass mountings and clasps. That it does not contain the Apocrypha is easily accounted for. The Old Testament was printed in 1708, the New in 1707, and the Psalms in 1679; the last at Edinburgh, and the first at London. Copies of this edition of the Bible are of exceeding rarity; at least they are believed to be so, as our great Bible collector, GEORGE LIVERMORE, Esquire, has never yet been able to obtain one, and the venerable Doctor JENKS has remarked to the Editor that he has seen no other copy of the edition. It contains several beautifully executed maps, but no ornamental plates, with the exception of a view of London in the title-page, and vignettes upon the corners of the maps.

[Such are the entire Records. From the variation in the color of the ink, they were evidently written from time to time, excepting about half of that by the elder Adams. This half was perhaps copied from memoranda at the time he provided himself with the Bible. Most of the deaths were inserted, apparently, at or near the time of their occurrence. There are slight and unimportant variations in the spelling of some words. These are printed as they were written.

A brief pedigree of this branch of the Adams family was published in our last volume, pages 39–45. Other facts for its extension will be found in Vol. ii. p. 350–1, and Vol. vii. p. 351.]

OLD COLONY INSCRIPTIONS.

LAKEVILLE, [formerly a part of Middleborough] Nov. 14, 1853.

To the Editor of the N. E. Hist. Gen. Register. Sir,—I have had the pleasure to become somewhat acquainted with your work entitled the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, and highly approve of its object, and sincerely wish that it was in my power to do you essential service in carrying on so good a work.

The following inscriptions are from stones in an old burial ground near the Old Forge, so called, in Freetown, and were taken from the stones and carefully preserved several years since. Freetown was my native place, and these are the oldest that I have found in that town.

In memory of Mrs. Hannah wife of Col. Ebenezer Hathaway who died Dec. ye 20th 1727 in ye 34th year of her age.

Soon the decisive Sentence hear.

In memory of Shadrach Hathaway M. A. died Decem<sup>br</sup> ye 3 1749 in ye 33 year of his Age.

[Shadrach Hathaway, I am told, was the first college educated man at Freetown who was raised or rather born and bred there.]

In memory of Col. Ebenezer Hathaway who died Feb. ye 16th 1768 in ye 79th Year of his age.

Under these silent clods I sleep
 In CHRIST may I arise
 And when the angel Gabriel sounds
 Meet JESUS in the skies.

In Memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Hathaway wife of Mr. Gilbert Hathaway died Febr y<sup>e</sup> 2d 1779 in ye 29th year of her age.

In Memory of Capt. Eben<sup>r</sup> Hathaway who died June 16th 1791 in y<sup>e</sup> 73d year of his age.

 This is my dark long home
 Jesus himself lay in the grave
 The house whence all must come.

[These stones are slate and handsomely executed. I was careful to copy capitals where they were used on the stones.

The following is the oldest to be found in the oldest burial ground near the first Christian chapel in Freetown, slate stone considerably ornamented :—]

In memory of Isaac Hathaway died June y<sup>e</sup> 7th 1749 in the 45th year of his age.

There are more persons in Freetown bearing the name Hathaway than any other, and has been for years past, and next to the Hathaways come the Chases.

From the ancient burial ground near the old muster field in Berkley. No labor bestowed on the stones except to cut the letters, which are all capitals, with a dot or period between the words :—

Here lies the body of William Paul aged 80 year died November the 9 day in the year 1704.

Here lies the body of William Phillips aged 35 died in the year 1705 June 12.

The following are from stones in the old burial ground of the Precincts Congregational society of Lakeville and Taunton. The stones are not smoother than the hand of Nature made them, and all the letters are capitals, very similar to those at Berkley :—

Here lies a child of Elkanah Leonard died in the year 1711.

Here lise the body of Elkanah Leonard aged 38 died in the year 1714 December y<sup>e</sup> 29.

MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF MARBLEHEAD.

To the Honored county Court held at Ipswich the 31st of March, 1674.

Humbly sheweth that whereas there are severall actions comenced by Erasmus James, John Legg, and James Dennis and Nathaniell Walton vnder the denomination of agents or atturneyes to the comoners or Towne of Marblehead Therefore wee whose names are vnder written doe vtterly disowne any such act or power given them or that ever ther was any Towne meeting for such a purpose or any power given them of such a nature, Also we vtterly disowne and protest against it, that ever wee gave all or any of our Townes men any maner of order to call any pson or psons to an account for any thing of such a nature as is declared in there sumonses, or that we ever Impowered the select men to order constitute or apoynt any so to doe but we most humby conceive that the thing in hand is as followeth viz. That a part of the Inhabitants of the Towne lay claime to all the vacant or comon Lands herbidge and apptenances therevnto belonging within the bounds of the sd Towne, And to bring there purpose to pas have made many Illegall orders, vnder the notion of Towne acts. Also some of them have most Illegally, as we conceive lettet out severall lottments of our Towne comons to be there owne proper estate and ppriatyes against w<sup>ch</sup> actions soe Irregularly done, as we conceive we being Intrusted in the same title as freeholders, according to the laws establisht in this colony, doe vtterly protest against all such acts done by part vnder the notion of the whole Towne act, and whereas the Towne made choice of an able man for recorder to keepe the Towne booke they have fraudelently gott away the sd booke and keepe it, and deny vs a Towne meeting notwithstanding the select mens time was out the fifteenth day of this present march, also for the carying an end of publike worke as ministry, scooles, Alms for the poorer sort and the sike, If it doe not prove to the vtter depopulating, yet it will prove the vtter vndoeing of soe vsefull a place as this is for the benifitt of the Comonwealth In witness where vnto we have subscribed our hands March the 27 : 74 :

LOCAL HISTORY.—There is in course of preparation a history of Waterbury, Ct., from its discovery in 1673 to the present time. One of the gentlemen engaged in the work is Mr. Philo M. Trowbridge, of Woodbury, Ct., a member of the New Eng. Hist. Gen. Society.

GREAT EARTHQUAKE IN LISBON.

First Intelligence of that appalling Calamity received in New England.

BY AN EYE WITNESS.

BOSTON, DEC. 22d, 1755.—By Captain Joseph Hibbert of the brigantine Hannah, who left Cadiz the 11th of November, and arrived in Marblehead the 15th Instant, we have the following awful Account, namely: That on the first day of November he was on shore in the city of Cadiz, and as the clock was striking eleven in the forenoon, he felt a shock of an Earthquake, which lasted about three minutes; that, being sensible of what it was, he immediately retired to the Mould [Mole] which was about a quarter of a mile from the house where he was when the shock happened, where he met three other Masters of vessels belonging to New England, and consulting with each other, whether it was best to go off on board their vessels, or return into the City again, three of the said Masters resolved to go off; and, accordingly, stepped into one of their boats. After they had put off from the Mould, they saw a heavy Sea, about half a mile distance, coming towards the shore; that, with difficulty, they got on board the first vessel before the sea came; that it immediately put the shipping into great disorder, and did some considerable damage to them.—As soon as the Sea came into shoal water it broke in a heavy manner and very high, destroyed everything without the walls, carried before it a great length of the Town Walls, dismounted several Batteries, and ran over a gooddeal of the lower part of the city.—That all the carriages and passengers that were passing at that time to and fro on the Neck that joins the City to the Continent, and many hundreds, and some say thousands of people, were lost, and particularly four eminent Merchants in coaches were destroyed.—That in about a quarter of an hour after the first Sea came, there came a second as awful, and about the same space after came a third more awful, and beat on the shipping and shore in the same manner, and that prodigious damage is done to the buildings.—That they had received accounts from several places adjacent where they had suffered much damage: That a vessel from Bilboa bound to Cadiz, laden with iron, was off Lisbon at the time of the shock, and there was such a concussion as shook his iron very much in the hold: That they had not had any accounts from Lisbon when he came away, and that the people of Cadiz dreaded what accounts they might receive from the northern parts of the Country.—New York Mercury, 29 Dec. 1755.

Boston, Nov. 24th.—About half an hour past 4 o'clock last Tuesday morning, we were surprised with a most violent shock of an Earthquake that ever was felt in these parts of the world, since the arrival of the English.—Ibid. 1 Dec.

We have Advice from an Officer at Louisbourg, that on Friday the 26th of Sept. last died of a Fever, in the 18th year of his Age, Lieut. James Noble, eldest son of Col. Arthur Noble, and was on the Sunday following decently interr'd with the Honours of War. He was a promising, modest youth, and had gained great Esteem of his brother officers; and his death is much lamented.—News-Letter, 17 Oct. 1746.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A History of the Early Settlement of Newton, County of Middlesex, Massachusetts, from 1639 to 1800. With a Genealogical Register of its Inhabitants prior to 1800. By FRANCIS JACKSON, (of Boston,) a native of Newton. Boston: 1854. 12mo. pp. 555.

A single glance at this work is enough to satisfy any one that it is a choice one; a gem among Local Histories. Notwithstanding Mr. Jackson has given us 555 closely printed pages, he has given us no exuberance of language, but he has, in a plain, neat, and common-sense style, put his materials together in a workmanlike and business manner. The "Genealogical Register" of the Inhabitants of the Town is a very attractive part of the volume. It does not consist of mere columns of names and dates, but is relieved by incidents of much interest throughout.

Mr. Jackson is an old soldier in this field of literature. John Farmer, Esq. was mainly indebted to him for what he has published from the records in Boston. And Mr. Jackson has long been familiar with those records. There is in the volume a large folding map of "Newton in 1700," on which all the inhabitants are located, down to about 1800. A handsome lithographic portrait of Col. Joseph Ward accompanies the volume as a frontispiece.

We are sorry to learn that the edition of the History of Newton consists of but 500 copies! The inhabitants of the Town alone ought to take up that number at once. If we mistake not, the Author will, at no remote day, be called upon to republish his work.

A Genealogy of the Greenleaf Family. By JONATHAN GREENLEAF, of Brooklyn, N. Y. New York: 1854. Svo. pp. 116.

There are many, if we mistake not, to hail the appearance of this work with much pleasure and delight. The Author has been long known for his historical works, and hence there can be no want of confidence respecting the ability with which it is done.

The system or plan employed by the Author in drawing up his work is new, differing, in some respects, from all others we have met with. We are sorry for this, because it could have been much more conveniently done in another way, or certainly more convenient for all persons who consult the work; and it is fair to conclude that he did not have the Genealogical Register before him when he fixed upon his plan. Whoever will examine the Sumner Pedigree, in the last number of the Register, cannot fail, we think, to agree with us. In Mr. Greenleaf's plan, though the generations appear to succeed one another in regular order, there is nothing to show to what generation an individual or family belongs; and generally, all particulars respecting individuals are to be looked for at the end of the work in notes.

Notwithstanding we object to Mr. Greenleaf's plan, the work is an excellent and no doubt accurate addition to our genealogical histories, and we hope the Author will be encouraged soon to put forth a new edition, with such improvements as he may meet with.

History of Connecticut. By G. H. HOLLISTER, Esq.

The work of Mr. Hollister is not yet published. A few of the proof sheets have been sent us, and, from the importance of the undertaking, and that our readers may see something of the manner of the Author, the following extract is made. Judging from what we have seen of the work, Mr. Hollister will produce a very valuable history of Connecticut. He writes with great precision, and appears to aim at perfect accuracy; and although he has succeeded well in another field of literary labor, we predict for him a more permanent reputation in the present.

It will be gratifying to his co-laborers to learn, that the State of Connecticut has made a liberal appropriation to aid Mr. Hollister in his laborious undertaking to compose its history. The fact has come to our knowledge since the above paragraph was written. Connecticut, New York, and a few other States have done nobly in the line of publishing materials for their history, while many of the others have yet much to do.

"It was on Wednesday, the 24th of May, that the little army of seventy-seven Englishmen, sixty Mohegans and Connecticut River Indians, and about two hundred Narragansetts, began their march for the Pequot forts. They went that day about twenty miles, when they reached the eastern Nihantick, a country that bordered on the Pequot territory. Here was the seat of one of the Narragansett Sachems, and here he had a fort. But he refused to treat with the English, or let them enter his palisades to pass the night. Mason, having good cause to think from their behavior that these Indians were in league with the Pequots, set a strong guard about their fort, and would not allow one of them to escape from it during the night.* But the conduct of the Nihanticks was attributable to suspicion and fear, rather than to any alliance with the Pequots, as the event proved; for when they saw, the next morning, that the English were reinforced by a large party of Narragansetts, sent on by Miantonomoh, they took heart, and forming a circle declared that they, too, would fight the Pequots, and boasted with their usual bravado how many they would kill; so that when Mason resumed his march on Thursday, he had about five hundred Indian warriors in his train. The day was very sultry and oppressive, and some of the men fainted from heat, and the exhaustion that followed from a want of suitable provisions. After marching about twelve miles to a ford in the Pawcatuck river, the old fishing-ground of the Pequots, the army made a halt and rested awhile. * *

"After dining upon such coarse fare as was to be had, they marched about three miles to a field just planted with Indian corn. Here they made another halt and held a council, for it was thought that they drew near the enemy. The Indians now told them, for the first time, that the Pequots had two forts, and that they were 'almost' impregnable. Nothing daunted by this intelligence, the council resolved to attack both these fortresses at once. But on further inquiry, it appeared that the principal fort, where Sassacus resided, was too remote to be reached before midnight, so they were compelled to abandon this plan, and attack the smaller one at Mistick.

"The prediction of Uncas with regard to the Narragansetts was soon verified. Indeed, all the Indians, who had at first marched in the van, fell into the rear; and soon not a Narragansett was to be seen. Wequash, a petty chief who had revolted from Sassacus, was the guide upon whom Mason most relied, and he proved worthy of trust. They marched on in silence until about an hour after sunset, when they reached a small swamp between two hills. Here, supposing that they were near the fort, 'they pitched their little camp' between two high rocks, ever since known as 'Porter's Rocks.' It was a clear night, with a shining moon. Mason set his guards, and stationed his sentinels at a great distance from the camp, to prevent the possibility of a surprise. Then the tired soldiers, with no tents to shelter them from the dew, laid themselves down under the open sky and slept. 'The rocks were our pillows,' says the heroic leader of the expedition, 'yet rest was pleasant.' Mistick fort was farther off from the camp than they had been led to suppose. It was so near, however, that the sentries heard the enemy singing there till midnight, a wild strain of joy and exultation, they afterwards found it to have been, in commemoration of the supposed flight of Mason and his men—for they had watched their vessels a few days before when they sailed eastward, and rationally enough concluded that they dared not meet the dreaded Pequot in battle. This night of festivity was their last.

"About two hours before day, the men were roused up and commanded to make themselves ready for battle. The moon still shone full in their faces as they were summoned to prayer. They now set forward with alacrity. The fort proved to be about two miles off. A long way it seemed over the level though stony ground, and the officers began at last to fear that they had been led upon the wrong track, when they came at length to a second field of corn, newly planted, at the base of a high hill. Here they halted, and 'gave the word for some of the Indians to come up.' At first, not an Indian was to be seen; but finally Uncas and Wequash the guide showed themselves. 'Where is the fort?' demanded Mason. 'On the top of that hill,' was the answer. 'Where are the rest of the Indians?' asked the fearless soldier. The answer was what he probably anticipated: 'Behind, and very much afraid.' 'Tell them,' said Mason, 'not to fly, but to stand as far off as they please, and see whether Englishmen will fight.'

"There were two entrances to the fort—one on the northeastern side, the other on the west. It was decided that Mason should lead on and force open the former, while Underhill, who brought up the rear, was to pass around and go in at the western gate.

"Mason had approached within about a rod of the fort, when he heard a dog bark, and almost in a breath, this alarm was followed up by the voice of an Indian, crying, 'Owanux! Owanux!'—Englishmen, Englishmen! No time was to be lost. He called up his forces with all haste, and fired upon the enemy through the palisades. The Pequots, who had spent the night in singing and dancing, were now in a deep sleep. The entrance near which Mason stood, was blocked up with bushes about breast high. Over this frail obstruction he leaped, sword in hand, shouting to his men to follow him. But Seely, his lieutenant, found it more easy to remove the bushes than to force the men over them. When he had done so, he also entered, followed by sixteen soldiers. It had been determined to destroy the enemy with the sword, and thus save the corn and other valuables that were stored in the wigwams. With this view, the captain, seeing no Indians, entered one of these wigwams. Here he found many warriors, who crowded hard upon him, and beset him with great violence; but they were so amazed at the strange apparition that had so suddenly thrust itself upon them, that they could make but a feeble resistance. Mason was soon joined by William Hayden, who, as he entered the wigwam through the breach that had been made by his impetuous captain, stumbled against the dead body of a Pequot whom Mason had slain, and fell. Some of the Indians now fled from the wigwam; others, still stupefied with sleep, crept under mats and skins to hide themselves.

"The palisades embraced an area of about twenty acres—a space sufficient to afford room for a large Indian village. There were more than seventy houses in this space, with lanes or streets passing between them. Mason, still intent on destroying the Pequots, and at the same time saving their property, now left the wigwam, and passed down one of these streets, driving the crowd of Indians that thronged it before him from one end of it to the other. At the lower extremity of this lane stood a little company of Englishmen, who, having effected an entrance from the west, met the Indians as they fled from Mason, and killed about half a dozen of him. The captain now faced about, and went back the whole length of the lane, to the spot where he had entered the fort. He was exhausted and quite out of breath, and had become satisfied that this was not the way to exterminate the Indians, who now swarmed from the wigwams like bees from a hive. Two of his soldiers stood near him, close to the palisades, with their useless swords pointed to the ground. Their dejected faces told him that they felt as he did, that the task was a hopeless one. 'We shall never kill them in this way,' said the captain; and then added, with the same laconic brevity, 'We must burn them!' With these words the decree of the council of war to save the booty of the enemy was annulled; for, stepping into the wigwam where he had before forced an entrance, he snatched a fire-brand in his hand, and instantly returning, applied it to the light mats that formed the covering of their rude tenements. Almost in an instant, the little village was wrapped in flames, and the frightened Pequots fled in dismay from the roofs that had just before sheltered them. Such was their terror, that many of them took refuge from the English in the flames, and perished there. Some climbed the palisades, where they afforded but too fair a mark for the muskets of their enemies, who could see to take a dead aim in the light of the ghastly conflagration. Others fled from the beds of mat or skins, where they had sought a temporary concealment, and were arrested by the hand of death in the midst of their flight. Others still, warping up to the windward, whence the fire sped with such fatal velocity, fell flat upon the ground and plied their destroyers with arrows. But their hands were so palsied with fear, that the feathered messengers either flew wide of their aim or fell with spent force upon the ground. A few, of still stouter heart, rushed forth with the tomahawk, to engage the invaders of their homes in a hand-to-hand combat. But they were nearly all, to the number of about forty, cut in pieces by the sword. The vast volume of flame, the lurid light reflected on the dark background of the horizon, the crack of the muskets, the yell of the Indians who fought, and of those who sought vainly to fly, the wail of women and children as they writhed in the flames, and the exulting cries of the Narragansetts and Mohegans without the fort, formed a contrast awful and sublime with the quiet glories of the peaceful May morning, that was just then breaking over the woods and the ocean.

"Seventy wigwams were burned to ashes, and probably not less than five hundred men, women and children were destroyed. The property, too, shared the same fate. The long-cherished wampum-belt, with the beads of blue, purple, and white, the war-club, the eagle plume, the tufted scalps, trophies of many a victory—helped only to swell the blaze that consumed alike the young warrior and the superannuated counselor, the squaw, and the little child that hung helplessly to her bosom. Of all who were in the fort, only seven were taken captive, and about the same number escaped."

The Hundred Boston Orators, &c. By JAMES SPEAR LORING. Third Edition, with an improved Index of Names. Jewett & Co. Boston: 1854. 8vo. pp. 720.

It must be gratifying to the Author as well as to the Publishers, to be thus early called upon by the public for a new edition of the work under notice. It must also be gratifying to the friends of the Author to feel assured, as they must, that there is good taste enough in the community at large for the truly substantial reading, such as is contained in the volume before us.

Having said all we deemed necessary in a notice of a copy of a former edition of Mr. Loring's work, we need only refer to our previous volume, (for 1852, p. 299.) We should remark, however, that the title-page of this new edition does not convey any adequate idea of the additions and improvements in this edition; nor have we space to point them out, were it necessary.

FERNALD.—Dr. J. S. Fernald of Barrington, N. H., has for some years been collecting materials for a history of the family of the name, and desires information upon the subject.

THE EDITOR of the Register is desirous to publish a list of all the Subscribers to the work;—that is, all who have taken it from its commencement. He proposes to do it at the end of the tenth volume, should he complete that number of volumes. To carry out this plan, persons not receiving the work directly from the Publisher, are requested to forward their names to the Editor.

CRAVATH.—John Cravath and family resided in Boston about the middle of the last century. Can any one inform us with regard to his descendants? Samuel Cravath died in Boston in 1815. He did business at No. 122, Orange street.

ENQUIRIES.—Persons wishing to make enquiries through the Register, similar to the above, can in no case expect to be accommodated, unless such enquiry be accompanied by their names.

ADAMS.—Information is wanted concerning the Matthew Adams mentioned in Dr. Franklin's Autobiography. Was he brother to the eccentric Divine, Hugh Adams? Had he a sister Anne, married to William Play, 13 Feb. 1706? Was he of the Braintree Adams stock?

KINNECUM.—An elderly lady, who was born at Pownalborough (now Wiscasset) Me., once informed me that, when she was young, she was acquainted with persons, living at that place, by the name of Cunningham, whose name was pronounced Kinnecum by themselves and by all their neighbors. I have evidence also that it was formerly so pronounced in other places. Is it to be found in this form on any of our records?

ENGLISH COUNTY AND OTHER LOCAL HISTORIES.—At a recent meeting of the New Eng. Hist. Gen. Society, a Committee was appointed, consisting of NATHANIEL WHITING, WILLIAM G. BROOKS, and STEPHEN T. FARWELL, Esquires, to procure funds by subscription, to be used in England for the purchase of English County and other Local Histories. The great value of such a collection of works, for successfully carrying on investigations in which every native of New England is interested, nearly or remotely, has long been felt by scholars and students in New England history; there being no collection of the kind in the country, in any degree tolerably complete. That there should be such a collection in Boston will at once be conceded on all hands. And, that the business of making such a collection should be commenced at once, will likewise be conceded, as such works are every day becoming more and more scarce, and many of them from their great bulk, will not be reprinted for several ages, if at all. Therefore, the earnest coöperation of the Members of the Society is particularly solicited, and also that of others. The Committee appeal confidently to gentlemen not Members as well as Members of the Society, as the Library of the Society, in which it is proposed to deposite the collection, is accessible to all, for purposes of the nature of the objects of the Institution.

DONATIONS TO THE SOCIETY'S LIBRARY for the last Quarter, ending 30th June, 1854:—From W. H. Whitmore, J. S. Loring, J. W. Thornton, W. Whiting, F. M. Caulkins, N. Wyman, S. T. Clark, H. Wheatland, H. Clark, J. Pearson, A. B. Alcott, E. Wentworth, R. Adams, Sec. of State, O., Regents of the University of New York, Francis Jackson, Jonathan Greenleaf.

We cannot particularize donations in this Publication, but must not pass over several received recently, in justice to the liberality of the donors, and the importance of the works presented. Among them is Cortes's Voyage to New Spain, folio, 1550; printed at Augsburg, with Gothic type, in the German language. This was presented by Wm. H. Whitmore. Also, a copy in 4 vols. 4to, of the Documentary History of New York, and vol. 3d of Documents edited by Mr. Brodhead, and the State Library Catalogue, from the Regents of the University, through the kindness of Dr. O'Callaghan.

☞ There have been presented to the Library of the Society, the two volumes of "Records of Massachusetts," printed the last year, the gift of E. M. Wright, Esq.

These volumes, with a notice of them, have been placed in the hands of the Editor (17 June) too late for the said notice to be otherwise noticed in this number of the Register.

MEMOIR OF PETER CHARDON BROOKS.

CHAPTER I.

HISTORY and biography for the most part record the lives only of those who have attained military, political, or literary distinction; or who in any other career have passed through extraordinary vicissitudes of fortune. The unostentatious routine of private life, although in the aggregate more important to the welfare of the community, cannot, from its nature, figure in the public annals. It is true that historians have lately perceived how important a part of the history of a people consists of a comparative account of its industrial pursuits, condition, education, and manners at different periods. This idea suggested the most interesting chapter in Mr. Macaulay's brilliant work, and Lord Mahon has imitated the example in the last volume of his history. But such accounts relate to the aggregate of society, and do not carry with them a narrative of individual life and character.

But the names of men who distinguished themselves, while they lived, for the possession in an eminent degree of those qualities of character, which mainly contribute to the success of private life and to the stability of society,—of men who, without dazzling talents, have been exemplary in all the personal and social relations, and enjoyed the affection, respect, and confidence of those around them,—ought not to be allowed to perish. Their example is more valuable to the majority of readers, than that of illustrious heroes, statesmen, and writers. Few can draw rules for their own guidance from the pages of Plutarch, but all are benefited by the delineation of those traits of character, which find scope and exercise in the common walks of life.

Among the individuals of this class, few are better entitled to be held in respectful remembrance than the subject of the present memoir, which has been prepared at the request of the Publishing Committee of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register. It is the memoir of a life uneventful indeed, as far as stirring incident or startling adventure is concerned, but still distinguished by the most substantial qualities of character. The narrative, if we mistake not, will exhibit a long and virtuous career of private industry, pursued with moderation and crowned with success. It will be the record, though an unpretending one, of a singularly well-balanced mental and moral constitution,—proof against the temptations to which it was more particularly exposed, and strongly marked by those traits, which are of especial value in such a state of society as exists in this country.

Mr. Peter C. Brooks was born at North Yarmouth, in what was then the Province of Maine, on the 6th of January, 1767. He was the second son of the Rev. Edward Brooks of Medford, where the family was established soon after the settlement of Massachusetts Bay, and where a branch of it still remains.* The family homestead at Medford is still held under an original Indian deed.

Mr. Edward Brooks was a graduate of Harvard College of the year 1757, and for a few years after his graduation was the librarian of the college. On the 4th of July, 1764, he was settled in the ministry at North Yarmouth. In September of the same year he married Abigail Brown, daughter of the Rev. John Brown of Haverhill. Her mother was Joanna Cotton, a great-granddaughter of the celebrated John Cotton of the first church in Boston; from whom of course Mr. Peter C. Brooks was a descendant in the sixth generation.†

Among the classmates of Mr. Edward Brooks was Peter Chardon, the son of an eminent Boston merchant of that day, belonging to one of the French protestant families, which had taken refuge in this country, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. The family residence was in Bowdoin Square, on the spot where the Baptist church now stands, at the corner of what is still called Chardon street. A friendship of unusual intimacy was formed between Mr. Edward Brooks and his classmate Chardon, who died prematurely in the West Indies in October, 1766. The news of his death reached this country a few days before the birth of Mr. Edward Brooks's second son, who received the name of Peter Chardon in memory of the deceased.‡

* A full genealogy of the Brooks family, prepared by Mr. William Gray Brooks of Boston, a nephew of Mr. Peter C. Brooks, will probably appear in a future number of this Journal.

‡ In a number of the Massachusetts Gazette for January, 1767, may be found the following obituary notice, taken from the Gazette of Dominica, W. I.:—

“Charlotte town, October, 1766. Last night, about 11 o'clock, died here, Peter Chardon, Esq., barrister at law. It is hard to say whether a thorough knowledge of his profession, or the unblemished integrity and honor with which he acted, was the greatest. In him were joined the finished scholar and the complete gentleman, and he is not only universally lamented as such, but as a real loss to the colony.”—(MS of Mr. W. G. Brooks.)

Differences of opinion on religious subjects soon arose between Mr. Edward Brooks and a portion of his people. The latter adhered to the rigid Calvinism of the older school; Mr. Brooks inclined to a milder orthodoxy. After strenuous but ineffectual attempts to prevent a separation, Mr. Brooks, in March, 1769, was led by the advice of an ecclesiastical council to request a dismission. This was amicably arranged, and he returned to his native town, Medford, the same year,—the subject of the present memoir being at that time two years old.

It will appear from the foregoing dates that the childhood of Mr. Brooks was passed during the most critical period of our history. He was born in the year after the repeal of the stamp act, and in which the duties—not less objectionable—on glass, painters' colors, and tea were imposed. His family removed to the neighborhood of Boston, the year before the massacre of the 5th of March. At this time the feeling of the country, under the newly imposed taxes, was unconsciously maturing toward the revolution. The family residence at Medford is distant but a half mile from the village of West Cambridge, and the line of march of the British troops on the 19th of April, 1775. On that day Mr. Edward Brooks, though by profession a non-combatant, hastened to the scene of action. A contemporary, who was in the battle at Concord, ascribes to Mr. Edward Brooks the command of the party, by whom the convoy and its guard, on the way to join the main body of Lord Percy's reinforcement, were captured at West Cambridge on the morning of the 19th.* This is probably inaccurate, but it is certain that he took an active part in the business of the day. Lieutenant Gould, who commanded a company in the king's own regiment, and was made prisoner at Concord bridge, was committed to the custody of Mr. Brooks at Medford. His health being impaired, Mr. Brooks, in 1777, accepted the place of chaplain to the frigate Hancock, Captain Manly, and was on board at the time of the capture of the British frigate Fox. Captain Manly and his prize having appeared before Halifax were surprised by a greatly superior hostile force and carried into that port, where Mr. Brooks, in common with the rest of the Hancock's company, remained some time a prisoner. On his release he returned to Medford, where he died 6 May, 1781, aged 48,† leaving two sons and two daughters.

The state of the country at the close of the revolutionary war was one of extreme depression, and the family of Mr. Brooks was left at his decease in narrow circumstances. Neither of the sons enjoyed the advantage of a collegiate education. Mr. P. C. Brooks, for some time after his father's death, remained at home, occupied, as far as his years permitted, in the usual labors of a farm. He was then placed in apprenticeship in Boston, continuing, however, for some time, to live with the family at Medford. There were neither railroads nor omnibuses in those days, and the distance from town—seven miles—was to be walked both ways, daily, at all seasons of the year.

Nothing can be conceived less encouraging to a young man proposing to enter on a business life, than the condition of affairs at this time. The population of the United States was but little more than three millions; neither the manufactures of the north nor the staple products of the south had yet been called into existence; the Western country was terra incognita. The navigation and fisheries of the United States had been destroyed by the war. As we had no commercial convention with England, our ships,—which before the revolution enjoyed in her ports the character of native vessels,—were now regarded as foreign; while English vessels, for want of any general navigation law, entered our ports on the same terms as our own. This made it absolutely the interest of the American merchant to give the preference to foreign shipping. The country was inundated by imported goods, sold for the most part by foreign agents. Domestic fabrics, whenever attempted, were immediately crushed by this competition. For want of uniform national legislation, the rates of duties upon imported articles differed in different states, which in some instances avowedly endeavored, in this way, to undermine each other in reference to foreign trade. Not merely the United States, collectively, but the individual states, were loaded with debt; the last cow of the farmer was in some cases taken in Massachusetts to meet the demand of the tax-gatherer. To such a point of depression had the commerce of Boston sunk, that the principal men of business undertook, two or three years after the war, to raise a fund by subscription to build one or two small vessels.

This state of things held out but little encouragement for young men growing up into life, especially when to all other difficulties was added the entire want of capital. Such was the case with young Brooks on attaining his majority in 1789. His father, as we have seen, had died eight years before, leaving a widow, another son and two daughters, with nothing for their support but the produce of a small farm. It is scarcely necessary to say that such a patrimony could afford no surplus to assist the sons in commencing business. Such were the auspices under which Mr. Brooks entered life,—the most favorable, however, to the formation of those habits and the attainment of those traits of character most conducive to success.

CHAPTER II.

But although the state of things, as we have shown, was one of great depression, well calculated to discourage young men just entering life, a brighter day was nevertheless just about to dawn. The country, it is true, was perhaps never so distressed and embarrassed as in the interval between 1783 and 1789, and yet it stood, unconsciously at the time, at the entrance upon the high road to the most abounding prosperity. Mr. Brooks attained his majority the year the federal constitution went into operation. In dwelling upon the benefits which the new frame of government conferred upon the country, we are apt to confine our attention too much to great political results, and do not sufficiently reflect upon its influences on individual fortune. The Union being now drawn together by the bands of an efficient national legislation, a career was opened to industry and enterprise in every direction. The commerce of the country again started into being from the wreck of the revolution, and from the prostration not less disastrous which continued after the return of peace. Trade not only returned to the channels in which, to some extent, it had flowed before the war, but it began to extend itself to seas never before visited by American vessels. Not only were the ports of Western Europe resorted to, by a daily increasing number of American ships, but those of the Baltic and the Mediterranean were now for the first time visited by our countrymen. Not content with this our merchants turned their thoughts to China, to the Indian Archipelago, to the North Western Coast of our own Continent, and the islands of the Pacific, several of which were discovered by our navigators. The courage and self-reliance with which these enterprises were undertaken, almost surpass belief. Merchants of Boston and Salem, of moderate fortunes, engaged in branches of business, which it was thought in Europe could only be safely carried on by great chartered companies, under the protection of government monopolies. Vessels of two or three hundred tons burden were sent out to circumnavigate the globe, under young shipmasters who had never crossed the Atlantic. The writer of this memoir knows an instance which occurred at the beginning of this century,—and the individual concerned, a wealthy and respected banker of Boston, is still living among us,—in which a youth of nineteen commanded a ship on her voyage from Calcutta to Boston, with nothing in the shape of a chart on board, but the small map of the world in Guthrie's Geography.

Such was the state of things in 1789, when Mr. Brooks came of age. His quick discernment suggested to him, that in the rapid development of the navigation of the country then taking place, the business of marine insurance would as rapidly grow in importance. This business was not then as at present conducted by joint-stock companies, transacting their affairs by officers entrusted with that duty, and resting on the basis of a corporate fund. It was in this country as it had been from time immemorial in England,* an affair of individual adventure, in which in the then existing paucity of investments, private underwriters engaged as a favorite branch of business. Two or three private insurance offices had been opened in Boston. One of them was kept at the Bunch of Grapes tavern at the corner of State and Kilby streets, where the New England Bank now stands.† Encouraged by promises of support from judicious and influential friends, to whom he had already become known, Mr. Brooks determined to engage in business as an insurance broker, and readily embraced the opportunity of entering the office at the Bunch of Grapes as secretary. On the retirement of his principal (Capt. Hurd) a short time afterwards, he took the office into his own hands.

The reputation of the office did not fall off under his management. It continued to be the resort of some of the leading underwriters. His great punctuality and never-failing attendance at the office, and his exemplary personal habits,—already known to friends and acquaintance,—soon attracted wider notice. The business confided to him, it was quickly observed, was prepared with despatch, with accuracy, and with neatness, and even the remarkably clear and legible handwriting,—not elegant, but regular and plain as print,—gave satisfaction. As some of the heaviest underwriters resorted to his office, no delay occurred in filling up the most important policies. The contracts being made with men of integrity as well as ability, and accurately drafted, it was soon remarked that losses were promptly paid, without driving the assured to litigation. The risks to which our commerce was exposed in the struggles of the great European belligerents, while they increased the necessity of getting insurance, multiplied losses and raised premiums, proportionably augmented the gains of the office. Mr. Brooks almost immediately found himself in the receipt of a considerable and rapidly increasing income.

Although commencing business without capital, or any direct family influence which could advance his fortunes, Mr. Brooks no doubt owed something in early life to family associations, which ought not to be forgotten here. The name was well-known and highly respected in the vicinity of Boston, not merely * Anderson's History of Commerce (Vol. II, p. 270) gives a curious extract from the first law passed in England to regulate marine insurance. This law dates from the year 1601, and speaks of marine insurance as a usage that "hath been time out of mind among merchants." Anderson states that it existed as far back as the Emperor Claudius.

† In imitation, perhaps, of the example of Lloyd's Coffee House in London, which has connected its name with marine insurance in England to the present day.

on his father's account, but also through the late Governor Brooks, a remote relative, a neighbor at Medford, and through life a steady and attached friend. Few persons enjoyed at this time in Massachusetts a more enviable popularity than this sterling patriot. He took the field on the 19th of April, 1775, and remained in it to the close of the war. He commanded the regiment which first entered the enemy's lines at Saratoga. He possessed the personal friendship and confidence of Washington and his illustrious associates in arms. After the organization of the new government, he was appointed the first marshal of Massachusetts. To be of his name and kindred was a letter of recommendation for a young man just coming into life in this region. It may also be added, that habitual personal intercourse with a man of Governor Brooks's various experience of affairs and high practical intelligence, must have been of great value in every respect to his youthful relative.

Not less valuable must have been his connection with Judge Nathaniel Gorham of Charlestown, one of whose daughters he married in 1792, a circumstance which will justify us in dwelling for a moment upon this honored name. Judge Gorham was one of the most intelligent, respected, and influential citizens of Massachusetts. Few persons equalled him in foresight and breadth of conception. He was one of the most active projectors of Charlestown bridge,—the first work of that size in the United States, and deemed at the time one of great risk. He was one of the very first to catch a clear view of the importance of the Western Country. He saw it plainly when scarce any one else saw it. Before the formation of the federal constitution,—before the adjustment of the territorial disputes between many of the conterminous states,—before the extinguishment of the Indian title,—before the surrender of the western posts, Judge Gorham staked all he was worth and more, on a purchase, in connection with Oliver Phelps, of an immense tract of land on the Genesee river, now composing ten or twelve counties in the state of New York. The territory was under the jurisdiction of New York, but the property of the soil was in Massachusetts. Although the land was purchased for a few cents the acre, so little confidence was then felt in the stability and progress of the country, that Messrs. Gorham and Phelps could find scarce any one to purchase under them, and were obliged to abandon all but the small portion of land, which their limited private means enabled them to retain. Mr. Phelps, however, and the oldest son of Judge Gorham, emigrated to Canandaigua, and became the pioneers of settlement in Western New York.

Although obliged to retreat without material benefit from an enterprise which promised more than affluence, Judge Gorham's disappointment detracted nothing from his standing or usefulness. He was a member of the convention which framed the federal constitution; and when that body went into committee of the whole, Judge Gorham was daily called by General Washington to fill the chair, for the space of three months. Few persons in this part of this country were, of course, so intimately associated with the constitution; and this circumstance, no doubt, through the matrimonial connection alluded to, had its influence on the political opinions of Mr. Brooks. At no period of his life a partisan,—and in the beginning of his career standing wholly aloof from politics,—few men reflected more upon the principles of the new form of government, or more highly appreciated its value. He was a federalist of the school of Washington.

Although fond of books, and regretting the want of a literary education, Mr. Brooks, at this period of his life, had but little leisure to indulge his taste in reading. Never permitting his business to fall into arrears, he was often at his office till midnight; and what little time he could spare for books was employed in the perusal of writers on the law of insurance. One of his underwriters was accustomed to say to him, “that old pen, which you are wearing to a stub, is worth a fortune to you.”

It may be of some interest to those acquainted with the localities, and not out of place in a narrative of this kind, to state, that Mr. Brooks, on his marriage, lived in a small brick house, at the corner of Congress and Water street, the site of which is now occupied by the spacious granite building of Simmons & Co. A considerable part of Congress street, of Washington street, and even State street, was at that time occupied by private dwellings and boarding houses. Mr. Joseph Barrell’s beautiful gardens, extending from Summer street, ornamented with fountains and a fish pond, occupied the space which is now Franklin place. In the year 1793 a commencement was made in the erection of the buildings which now form the place;—the first block of brick buildings put up in Boston.* After living some years at the corner of Congress and Water streets, Mr. Brooks removed to the corner of Atkinson and Purchase streets, to a house still standing, but no longer occupied as a private residence. In 1834 he lived for a short time in the house at the corner of Pearl and High streets, and soon after purchased the house of Mr. Webster, at the corner of High street and Summer street, which he continued to occupy till his death. All these localities, with the exception of the last, have greatly changed their character within twenty years.

CHAPTER III.

As we have already observed, Mr. Brooks commenced business at a period of great and general depression, when the country was laboring especially under a want of capital. An event shortly afterwards occurred, which exercised a very important influence in this respect, without however disturbing the even tenor of his business pursuits. We allude to the establishment of the funding system.

At the first session of Congress under the new Constitution, a resolution passed the House of Representatives on the 21st Sept., 1789, "that the House consider an adequate provision for the support of public credit as a matter of high importance to the national honor and prosperity," and the Secretary of the Treasury was directed to prepare a plan for the purpose aforesaid, and to report the same to the House at its next session. In compliance with this resolution, an extremely able report was made by the Secretary (General Hamilton) on the 9th of January following, and the act establishing the funding system passed the two Houses, and was approved by President Washington, on the 4th of August, 1790. The political history of our country contains the record of no measure of internal administration more important. It was to this Report of General Hamilton and the system founded upon it, that Mr. Webster alluded when he said of Hamilton: "He smote the rock of the national resources, and abundant streams of revenue burst forth. He touched the dead corpse of the public credit and it sprang upon its feet."*

This great measure presented itself to the minds of reflecting men, both in a financial and political light. In the latter aspect it was identical with the momentous question of the new government; and if that could be made sure, nothing could be more certain than the solidity of the financial system projected by the genius of Hamilton. In like manner the success of the new plan of finance was all-important to the stability of the new government. The personal and political associations of Mr. Brooks, to which allusion has been made, predisposed him, both as a patriot and a man of business, to hopeful views of the success of the entire system.

The two great features of the funding system were a provision for the payment of interest, on certain conditions, upon a portion of the public debt of the United States, subscribed for that purpose; and the assumption by the United States of a portion of the war debt of the individual States. The effect of the two provisions was to give full value to a capital of above thirty-one millions of dollars, which was worse than unproductive, for it hung like a dead weight upon the credit of the country. Its average nominal value, at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, was about four shillings in the pound.

Reposing confidence in the principles on which the public credit was organized by Congress, according to the plans of General Hamilton, as well as on the prospects of the country, Mr. Brooks invested his own little accumulations, (he had been but a single year in business,) in the public funds, and also made use, to a small extent, of the credit of a wealthy friend, Mr. Samuel Brown, kindly offered him for that purpose. He was however, from disposition and principle, opposed to speculation; his means were limited; and his purchases were delayed till the certainty of the adoption of the funding system had brought the public securities nearly to their true value. The sum total of his gains from this source was accordingly too inconsiderable to be named.

Mr. Brooks was indebted, at no period of his life, to great speculative profits. His prosperity was the result of persevering attention to his regular business, and to the good judgment with which he availed himself of such subsidiary advantages as fairly came in his way, without risk and without resorting to borrowed money. Among these may be mentioned the practice, at that time very general, on the part of persons not engaged in trade, of sending what were called "adventures." This was done, by the aid of business friends, by all classes of the community;—by professional men, by females, and minors. Mr. Brooks's position in an insurance office kept him necessarily, at all times, well acquainted with the state and course of trade, and gave him great facilities for the transaction of business of this kind, which he pursued for several years, to the extent of his means, and with uniform success.

It may be proper to mention here, for the information of the youthful reader, that, from his first commencement in business, Mr. Brooks's accounts were kept with great exactness. To this habit he attached the highest importance. An acquaintance with the art of book-keeping was not so much a matter of course at that period, as at the present day. In the middle of the last century in this country, as at a somewhat earlier period in England, it was not the universal practice of merchants,—except those who were in very extensive business,—to have a regular set of books kept by a partner or clerk. The transactions of the day were entered in a waste, and once or twice a week, according to the extent of the business, a professed book-keeper,—well versed in what were considered the mysteries of his calling,—came and compiled the journal and ledger. It was only in the progress of time, and at a comparatively recent period, that it was deemed indispensable to have the books wholly kept within the establishment, and that the system of double entry was reduced substantially to its present form.* Mr. Brooks very early acquired a thorough knowledge of it, and kept all his books with his own hand to the close of his life. He often enforced upon young men just entering a business life the utmost importance of system and punctuality in this respect.

The first organization of political parties under the present Constitution took place at the period of which we are now speaking; and the funding system was one of the subjects on which they differed. The division was that of Federalists and Antifederalists, that is, supporters and opposers of the present Constitution. One of the objections taken by the latter to the new frame of government was, that it created a central power too strong for the rights of the States, and the funding system was supposed to tend in the same direction. Experience only could overthrow these errors, and show that the States had as great an interest as the general government in the preservation of the public credit. With the successful working of the new government, the name of Antifederalist as a party designation was exchanged for Republican. But the designation of Federalist did not for some time become unpopular. Mr. Jefferson, the great leader of the opposing party, as late as 1801, in his inaugural address as President of the United States, said, "we have called by different names brethren of the same principle. We are all republicans, we are all federalists."

Mr. Brooks, as we have already remarked, belonged to the federal party, though taking no active part in political controversy, and wholly destitute, at every period of his life, of political ambition. The party politics of the United States at that time unfortunately connected themselves in a great degree with the struggles of England and France. An enlightened nationality had hardly developed itself. Both belligerents violated our neutral rights, but the good faith with which England, under the provisions of the treaty of 1794, indemnified our merchants to the amount of many millions of dollars for property illegally captured, formed a strong contrast with the conduct of France, who positively refused payment for contemporaneous spoliations, much greater in amount, and equally unwarranted in character. We refer to those claims, which, by a kind of diplomatic juggle, were thrown upon our own government by the convention with France of 1800, and which, being thus transferred to the government of the United States for a most valuable consideration, remain, we are sorry to say, uncompensated to the present day; the only class of spoliations upon American commerce for which sooner or later

* The work of Booth, which contributed materially to this result, was published in England so lately as 1789. He had been a practical merchant both in London and New York. The former treatises had been drawn up by professed accountants.

some indemnification has not been made. Each house of Congress has at different times acknowledged the validity of the claims, and made moderate provision for their satisfaction. But it has in most cases happened that the bills of the Senate have been lost in the House of Representatives. On one occasion a bill which had passed both houses of Congress failed to receive the signature of the President.

It was natural, in the havoc of our neutral commerce, occasioned by the unlawful acts of the belligerents at the period alluded to, that business men intimately connected with the navigation of the country should have been inclined to take sides with England, who admitted, and to some extent repaired her wrong, rather than with France, who persisted in denying us justice. We speak exclusively of events prior to 1800.

But notwithstanding the belligerent depredations upon our growing commerce from the commencement of the wars of the French Revolution to the peace of Amiens,—which was precisely the period of Mr. Brooks's active business life,—it was a time of prosperity both for the country at large and for the town of Boston. The population of the town between 1765 and 1790 had increased only from 15,520 to 18,038. Between 1790 and 1800 it rose from the last named amount to 24,937. It is probable that the increase of commercial capital was in a still greater ratio. Few large fortunes were accumulated before the revolution, although the laws were more favorable than at the present time, to their being kept together. The chief foundations of the commercial wealth of the country were laid after the adoption of the Constitution.

We have already spoken of the rapid development of our Navigation after the close of the revolutionary war, and especially after the consolidation of the Union. Mr. Brooks's intimate connexion with this great interest will justify us in alluding for a moment to a few facts, which illustrate the progress of the country in that respect, and show how honorably Boston was associated with the new branches of Foreign Trade.

The first American vessel which was sent to Canton,—the Empress of China,—sailed from New York in 1784, and was owned principally in that city and Philadelphia. The conduct of the voyage was however entrusted to Major Samuel Shaw, himself a Bostonian, and the son of a respectable Boston merchant, who, after serving with great credit as an artillery officer during the whole revolutionary war, rendered no small service to the country by his agency in opening the China trade.*

* Major Shaw was the first American Consul to Canton. He was the uncle and early friend of the late lamented Robert G. Shaw of this city, who himself did so much to render the name of "Boston Merchant" a title of honor. See the highly interesting publication, "The Journals of Major Samuel Shaw, the first American Consul at Canton, with a life of the Author," by President Quincy.

The first American vessels that visited the Northwestern Coast of this Continent,—the Washington and the Columbia,—were owned and fitted out from Boston in 1787, the Washington under the command of Captain Gray. Among those who engaged in this enterprise were the well-remembered names of Joseph Barrell and Charles Bulfinch, the latter gentleman afterwards known as the architect of the Capitol of the United States. This was the commencement of a trade pursued for many years and with great success by the merchants of this city. Captain Gray, it is well known, discovered the entrance into the Columbia River, and, in a subsequent voyage, pointed it out to Vancouver. Such being the case, it was a somewhat amusing circumstance, in our controversy with England about Oregon, that the British claim rested, in part, on the pretension that Vancouver discovered the Columbia.

These first achievements of the commercial marine of the United States in the Pacific Ocean were followed by those of Captain Joseph Ingraham, Captain Josiah Roberts, and Captain James Magee, and other enterprising and intelligent New England shipmasters, to whose courage, energy, and nautical skill justice has not been done. They traversed unexplored tracts of the great ocean, they landed upon islands laid down on no charts, and traded with powerful and ferocious tribes on remote and inhospitable coasts, at the end of the world. It is to be regretted that we have not had in this city an institution like the Salem East India Museum, where their log-books and journals might be preserved. In private hands there is danger of their being lost, as some, it may be feared, have been already. It is probable that the only still existing record of voyages, which for length, skill in navigation, and addition to geographical science deserve a permanent place in the annals of discovery, is to be sought in the books of the Insurance Offices in State Street between 1789 and 1803.

DESCENDANTS OF GOV. BRADSTREET.

ARMS.*

A good memoir of Gov. Simon Bradstreet, "the venerable Mordecai of his country," having appeared in the Register,† it is needless to repeat the details of his life here. Mather informs us that his father,—who was "the son of a Suffolk gentleman of fine estate,"—was "a minister in Lincolnshire,‡ who was always a non-conformist at home, as well as when preacher at Middleburgh§ abroad." He was also "one of the first fellows of Immanuel College,|| under Dr. Chadderton, and one afterwards highly esteemed by Mr. Cotton and Dr. Preston." He died when his son Simon was "about fourteen years old,"¶ that is, about 1617.

The first wife of Gov. Bradstreet, who was the mother of all his children, was Anne,** daughter of Gov. Thomas Dudley. She is celebrated * These arms are impressed on the seal attached to Gov. Bradstreet's will, which is on file at the Suffolk Probate office in Boston. The crest is also found on a piece of embroidery preserved in the family. Burke, in his "Peerage and Baronetage," gives the following as the arms of Sir Simon Bradstreet, Bart., of Stracumnie, co. Kildare, Ireland:—Ar. a greyhound, pas. gu., on a chief, sa., three crescents or. Sir Simon Bradstreet, Bart., is descended from Simon Bradstreet, created a Baronet of Ireland, 14 July, 1759, whose ancestor, John Bradstreet, Esq., in the time of Cromwell obtained grants of land in Blancheville Park, co. Kilkenny, Ireland. Hutchinson (Hist. of Mass., I, 23) supposed the first Sir Simon Bradstreet to be a descendant of Gov. B. They were evidently of the same family.

† Vol. I, p. 75.

‡ It is generally supposed, and perhaps correctly, that he was minister at Horbling in this county, where, according to Mather, his son Simon (the governor) was born March 1603. One of the compilers of this article was at Horbling in 1850, and examined the ancient parish registers, but could not find the name of Bradstreet there. He was kindly assisted in his researches by Rev. Mr. Harris, Rector of the parish, who felt, he said, much interest in the investigation.

§ The celebrated Thomas Cartwright went to Middleburgh in 1571 as minister to the English merchants there, and continued with them about two years. Who his immediate successor was is unknown. ** A book found among her papers, after her death, furnishes the following facts in her history:—

"About 16 the Lord layd his hand sore vpon me & smote me wth y<sup>e</sup> small pox. When I was in my afflict<sup>n</sup> I besovght the Lord and confessed my pride and vanity, and he was entreated of me and again restored me. But I rendered not to him according to y<sup>e</sup> benefitt rec<sup>d</sup>. After a short time I changed my condition & was married and came into this countrey, where I fovnd a new world and new manners at which my heart rose. But after I was convinced it was y<sup>e</sup> way of God, I submitted to it & joined to y<sup>e</sup> ch<sup>h</sup> at Boston. After some time I fell into a lingering sicknes like a consvmpcion, together wth a lamenesse, w<sup>ch</sup> correction I saw that the Lord sent to humble and try me & doe me good: and it was not altogether ineffectuall."

as the earliest female poet in this country. A comparison of her productions "with those of Lady Julianna Berners, Elizabeth Melvill, the Countess of Pembroke, and her other predecessors or contemporaries, will convince the judicious critic that she was superior to any poet of her sex who wrote in the English language before the close of the seventeenth century."* The first edition of her poems was published at London, in 1650; probably through the instrumentality of her brother-in-law, Rev. John Woodbridge, who then resided in England. The second edition, which contains some new pieces, was published at Boston, in 1678, six years after her death. The oft quoted eulogy on the authoress, written by Rev. John Norton of Hingham,† appeared in the latter edition. In 1758 a third edition was printed.‡ Many of her descendants have been eminent in American literature.

Among those who have inherited her poetic genius, are Richard H. Dana and Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Simon Bradstreet Gown

A Bradstreet

Gov. Bradstreet had four sons and four daughters. Samuel<sup>2</sup> Bradstreet, the eldest child, was a physician. In Nov. 1657, he visited England, and was absent upwards of three years, during an eventful period in English history, returning 17 July, 1661. From 1663 to 1670, and perhaps before and after, he was a resident of Boston. In the latter year he represented the town of Andover in the General Court. He afterwards removed to the island of Jamaica, where he was living in 1675. He died before 1 June, 1683. The children of his first wife all died in infancy, except Mercy,<sup>3</sup> who m. Dr. James Oliver. By his second wife he had 3 children that survived him, viz., Anne,<sup>3</sup> John<sup>3</sup> and Simon.<sup>3</sup> His son John<sup>3</sup> Bradstreet probably settled in Jamaica, as John Higginson in a letter dated "Salem, 29 Aug., 1700," writes:—"Here is one John Bradstreet, son of Dr. Samuel Bradstreet, about 24 years old, who served his time with Moses Byfield and Mico, who has an estate in Jamaica, and is going this fall to settle there."¶

‡ Farmer's Register.

The descendants of Gov. Bradstreet, mentioned in the foregoing pages, are probably but a small portion of his posterity. The aim of the compilers has been to give as full details of the early generations as they could procure; and, having done this, to bring down to the present time as many and as widely divergent lines as possible. It is thought that most of the descendants of this family can, with a little research, connect themselves with some of these branches.*

diction. The man, his wife (who was with child) and six children were burnt in it. The Lord is to be served because of his judgments.

Much about the same Time there was a house burnt at (Pipatag?) and 6 persons were burnt in it. My Fathers house was burnt. The losse was at least 8. or 900£. The small pox was exceeding rife this summer and y<sup>e</sup> winter following at Boston, tho: it pleased god but few dyed of it, about 40.

1667

A man at Stratford cutt his wife's throat when she was asleep, and endeavoured the life upon a small child, but did not effect it. It was thought it was the violence of some temptation y<sup>t</sup> hurried him into such a monstrous wickednesse. He was hanged y<sup>e</sup> sessions following, and dyed stupidly and sottishly. Toward the end of February there was a mighty long train appeared in the S: West and was seen 4 or 5 nights, it appeared like the tail of a comet, but no starre was to bee seen, nor had it any, unless it were depressed under y<sup>e</sup> Horizon. This year there was a Synod called at Hartford to discusse some Points concerning Baptisme, and church discipline, but nothing was concluded, the congregationall party, wch was the greatest violently opposing the presbyterian. There was this year and diverse yeares foregoing, great contentions in diverse of y<sup>e</sup> churches concerning these things. This winter was exceeding mild about as English winters, little frost or snow in any parts of the Country.

1668

feb. A ship of 500 tuns and beter was bilged vpon the rocks vpon the west end of fishers Island. The men all left her, and about 12 of clock y<sup>e</sup> next Day shee was brought off by y<sup>e</sup> tide, and so went down y<sup>e</sup> sound, and runnd a shoar vpon y<sup>e</sup> east end of Long Island wr now she lyes, most of the goods wr saved, but y<sup>e</sup> ship will never be serviceable more.

In the beginning of this year Mr. Shepheard pastour of the church of Rowley aged about 27 yeares, dyed. He was a man of very good partes and of great hopes.

May. Mr. flint minister at Braintry died. He was ancient, but in a course of Nature might have lived longer.

July. Not long after these Mr. Mitchell dyed past of the church at Cambridge. He died of a feaver, about the 40th year of his Age. The principall cause of his death as some thought was some stoppage in his Pectorals. He was a man of eminent partes, great learning. His death was a very great losse to the Town, the Vniversity and indeed to the whole Country. The good Lord Sanctifye his hand and send forth other faithful Labourers into his Vineyard. Possibly the death of these pretious Servants of X<sup>t</sup> might bee the last thing signefyed by that Blaze or Beam appearing the last February, Anno, 1667.

July. 2. Mr Hill married Mrs Pickit the widow of Jno. Pickit of N. London, who dyed at Sea returning from Barbadoes. Sometime in this month 2 or 3 English and 4 or 5 Indians were killed wth Lightning at Block Island. In July, August and September, these western pts of the Country wr very sickly, though it pleased god not many dyed. The gen<sup>n</sup> distemper was a feaver and ague. Very sickly at Gilford, families leaving.

Octob. Mr Jno. Webbe, who sometime lived at Boston, was drownd catching a whale below the Castle. In coiling vp y<sup>e</sup> line vnadvisedly he did it about his middle thinking the whale to bee dead, but suddenly shee gave a Spring and drew him out of the boat, he being in y<sup>e</sup> midst of the line, but could not be recovered while he had any life.

Octob. 7. There was a woman putt to death for murdering her child, Dr Emery of (York?) and her brother wr condemned to sitt vpon the galloves by her with ropes about their necks, having been accessors to the Murder. This was in y<sup>e</sup> Massachusetts Colony, 1668. * * * * *

April 21. M<sup>rs</sup> Grace Bulkley y<sup>e</sup> widow of Mr Peter Bulkley sometime Pastour of y<sup>e</sup> chh of Concord, deceased. She was a woman of great piety and wisdome and dyed in a good old Age. Her sicknesse was long and very afflictive. She was sick 3 months before she dyed. She had not the vse of her vnderstanding but by fitts, the greatest pt of her sicknesse. April 25. 69. (being Sabbath day) she was interred, her soul 3 days before was entered vpon an everlasting Sabbath of rest. Blessed are y<sup>e</sup> dead who dye in y<sup>e</sup> Lord &c. Mr Richard Mather Teacher of the chh at Dorchester dyed. He was an ancient, grave learned and worthy minister of Xt. His Death was a great Losse to y<sup>e</sup> Country. There wr about this time great Contentions in the chh of Boston about Mr Davenpt. The dissenting party by the advice of a Councell Called to that End wr embodied into a chh wch caused also new Troubles. This year dyed Mr Reyner Minister at Dover, and Mr Eleazer Mather minister at Northampton. This winter in the Massach. was very hard in respect of mighty Snowes but with us there was very little. This year the Lord frowned much vpon the Country, by sicknesse in diverse places, espec<sup>l</sup> in this Colony of Connecticot. Divisions in severall chhs, Blastings of all sorts of grain. ### THE PRENTICE FAMILY.

BOLTON, July 24th, 1854.

To the Editor of the N. E. Hist. and Genealogical Register :

Dear Sir,—Recently looking over “The History and Genealogy of the Prentice, or Prentiss, Family in N. E.,” I noticed a statement—which follows—containing several errors, which, if you will allow me, I should like to correct in the next number of the “Register.”

“Wm. Henry Prentice, Engineer, son of Rev. Nat. & Mary, born Dunstable, Dec. 2, 1726 ; died in Littleton 1797. Married Sarah, daughter of Edward Edes, the baker, an Englishman, who settled in Boston, Mass. & died 1805, æt 80.”

Now, in the first place, the Sarah Edes whom W. H. Prentice married, so far from being “the daughter of Edward Edes, baker,” was his sister-in-law, and born more than 15 years before he saw the light. Before Edward, the baker, there were (in mature life) two other Edwards, father and son, the elder born in Charlestown in 1681, of John and Mary (Tufts) ; the other son, born in Boston in 1705. Both the above were shipjoiners, and at one time owned considerable estate in Fish, Southac, Centre, and other streets in Boston. Their shipyard (as you may see on a map of Boston, published in 1722) was contiguous to Gray’s wharf, of that day, and near Fort Hill. The elder of these Edwards, shipjoiners, married twice, his first wife’s name being Martha —, the second’s, Susanna Welch. The younger Edward was the eldest child of the first marriage, and, on reaching maturity, married (in 1728) Sarah Mills. A younger brother, Thomas, also a shipjoiner, and father of Edward, the baker, was the first child of the second marriage, and married (in 1738) Sarah Larrabee, daughter of Capt. John L., then in charge of Castle William, Boston harbor. Of the marriage of Edward Edes and Sarah Mills several children were born ; of whom the eldest, Sarah married, in 1753, Wm. H. Prentice ; and one of the younger ones, Elizabeth, married, in 1768, her half-cousin Edward, (the baker,) born in 1745, and son of Thomas. You thus perceive that Mrs. Wm. H. Prentice was the sister-in-law, and not the daughter of Edward Edes, the baker.

Moreover, he, the said Edward, was not by birth an Englishman. He was born in Boston, as was also his father, while his grandfather was born in Charlestown, and possibly, too, his great-grandfather. He was much short of 80 years of age when he quitted this mortal life, being only 57 at the time of his death, Sept. 8th, 1803. A brief notice of him may be found in a Sermon, preached at the dedication of the New North Church, in 1804, by Dr. John Eliot ; and also a Monody to his memory, written by Judge Story, published in a vol. of his poems, and in Boston Weekly Magazine.

Respectfully yours,

R. S. E.

A FAMILY RECORD OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN SPOFFORD, AND ELIZABETH, HIS WIFE, WHO CAME FROM ENGLAND TO AMERICA, AND SETTLED AT ROWLEY, IN 1638.

INTRODUCTION.

FROM recent examinations of some of the ancient Records of England, copies of which are extant in this country, it is highly probable that accounts might be found of different branches of the family in that country; and it is to be hoped that some of the descendants may yet find time, money, and inclination, to search the records of the different localities to which the following extracts appear to point, as having interesting connection with the family in times past.*

I had never found the name in any English work till my attention was called to several extracts and references, of the highest authority, by a young gentleman of the name and descent, of New York city, to whose researches the family is much indebted. Assisted by these references, I have had the pleasure of finding most of the works referred to, and some others of interest, in this respect, in the library of Harvard University, and at the antiquarian rooms in Boston.

The first mention we have found of the name is as the name of a place or domain, recorded in Domesday book, which is a record of all the lands of England, as they were parcelled out after the Conquest, by William, Duke of Normandy, in 1066. The entry in the index of the book, is as follows:

By which we understand that at the designated page will be found a record of the meadows, woods, and pastures, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, in a certain Wappentake (or hundred) now belonging to William, Earl Percy.

At the page referred to, we find four lines of ancient characters and abbreviated Latin, apparently a record of extensive domains, once owned by the family.†

* This hope has been gratified since its publication in pamphlet form in 1851. Letters from Markham Spofforth, Esq., of Westminster, England, have furnished an interesting genealogy of the family in England, for 200 years; a sketch of which will be given.

† A letter from Markham Spofforth, Esq., of Feb. 22, 1853. “I apprehend there would be little difficulty in tracing the pedigree of the line to the time when the family first left the place and gave up the property to the Percy’s.” Here was a market place in 1224. It was fortified as a castle in 1309. Henry de Percy, first Earl of Northumberland, was slain at Bramham Moor, near this place, in 1407. Another earl was slain and the estate laid waste, in 1462. It was “sorely defaced” in the civil wars of Henry VI and Edward IV, and again in the time of Charles I and Cromwell. It is now a ruin. The hall, which has been a most magnificent room, is 75 feet in length and 36 in breadth, and seems to have been built about the time of Edward III.—Hist. of York.

Mr. Spofforth’s letter states that the tradition in England is the same as here, that the name of the place is derived from spaw—a mineral spring or water—and ford—a passage over or through it, and that the name is of old Saxon origin, and derived from the locality. He says the name in England is now spelt and pronounced Spof-

The town of Spofforth, a place of three or four thousand inhabitants, still occupies this locality, as may be seen on the map of Yorkshire; and an extensive castle, one of the most ancient in England, whose ruins cover near an acre of ground, still bears the name of Spofford. The place is a Rectory, in ecclesiastical parlance, and ranks next above a vicarage, and below a deanery. It is now on the estate of Lord Egremont.

In 1265, mention is made of Nicholaus De Spauford, and in 1313, Roger Blase De Spauford obtains a pardon from Edward II, for his participation in the conspiracy of the Earls of Lancaster, Warwick and Arundel, to expel Gaviston, the King's proud and haughty favorite, which they effected by his death.

Thomas Spofford was made Abbot of St. Mary, June 8, 1405. Allen, in his history of Yorkshire, says: "The Abbot of St. Mary was little inferior to the Archbishop of the Province, being mitred, and having a seat in Parliament. In 1422 he was elected Bishop of Rochester, but being about the same time appointed by the Pope, Bishop of Hereford, he accepted the latter bishoprick, Nov. 17, 1422.

Brown Willis, in his history of Cathedrals, says:—Thomas Spofford was made Lord Bishop, as above, and adds: "While bishop he bestowed much in building his Episcopal palace, where are yet remaining the initial letters of his name, in the chapel windows. He resigned in 1448, and retired to his native county, York, where he was buried in St. Mary's. See Willis' Hist. Cathedrals, vol. ii, page 518. Also Beatson's Political Index, London, 1806, vol. i, page 194.

In Catewich church is this inscription: Orate pro Anima Domini Thome Spofford, Abatis Monasteri, Beate, Marie, Ebor. Pray for the soul of My Lord Thomas Spofford, Abbot of the beautiful Monastery of St. Mary of York.

John Spofford was many years Vicar of Silkiston. The Journal of the House of Lords for Dec. 24, 1642, after a preamble setting forth the bad characters and want of qualifications of many who had been promoted to ecclesiastical offices by the late king, then dethroned, proceeds as follows: It is this day ordered by the Lords and Commons, that John Spofford, clerk, shall be enabled to serve the church, and receive the profits of the Vicarage of Silkiston, aforesaid, in the West Riding of Yorkshire. And the Archbishop and the Arch Deacon are hereby prohibited to present or grant institution or induction to any other clerk for the Vicarage of Silkiston, till both Houses of Parliament shall take further order concerning the same.—Journal, vol. v. page 516, Harvard College Library.

Of the same person, Calamy says: "Mr. John Spawford or Spofford, was many years Vicar of the church, which, on account of its beautiful structure, was called the minster of the Moors. He was a pious man of competent abilities, very plain in his preaching, holy in his life, facetious in discourse, and a lover of all good men. He was ejected for non-conformity about 1663. After he was ejected, Mr. Robert Cotton, a worthy, pious gentleman of the parish, took him to his house, and kept him as long as he lived. He died in 1668, aged 80."—See Calamy Non-conformist Memorial, vol. ii, page 575.

forth. He also says, "I sent your Record to Mr. Burke, the celebrated Herald, who has given a notice of it in his third volume of the Visitation of England. The identity of John Spofford with our family, is fully recognized. Mr. Burke is Ulster King of Arms, and his recognition of the connection is sufficient to give it authenticity."

We have no means of proving beyond a doubt, our descent from these personages; but nothing is more probable than that the John who came over with a company of Dissenters, and settled at Rowley in 1638, was son to him of the same name and faith, who was made Vicar of Silkiston four years after. The names, Thomas and John, it seems were constantly in the family, on both sides of the water. If this conjecture is true, the son leaves England during the civil wars which preceded the dethronement of Charles I, and the father had better fortune under the Parliament and Cromwell, but was turned out of his living after the restoration under Charles II, when being near 75 years of age, he was too old to follow his son to America. The writer would be very much obliged to any one who will furnish a correct record of our descent from any person in England, whether it proves or disproves the correctness of these conjectures.

History informs us that Rev. Ezekiel Rogers, with about 20 families from Yorkshire, Eng., where he had been a laborious minister for 20 years, came over and settled down between Newbury and Ipswich, his grant extending from the seashore to Cochichawick, now Andover, (see Winthrop's Journal, vol. ii, page 17,) and afterwards enlarged in 1640, so as to include the "neck on the Merrimack," because that being then about 60 families, and having only what is now the towns of Rowley, Georgetown, and Boxford, they were "straightened for land," the General Court granted an addition of what is now the towns of Bradford and Groveland. We have no record of the names of this company, except what is collected from the records of division of land, births, deaths, marriages, and those who held offices among them. This is probably owing to the burning of Mr. Rogers' house, who could hardly have failed to record the names of the pioneers in this important enterprize. The name of John Spofford first appeared on the record of the first division of land as homestead lots in 1643. He had a house lot of one and a half acres, on Bradford street, so called, near the centre of what is still the town of Rowley. Lots were also assigned him in the fresh meadows, the salt meadows, the tillage lands, the Merrimack lands, and shares in the ox pasture, the cow pasture, and the calf pasture.

Whether married at the time of coming over, or to whom, except that his wife's name was Elizabeth, we do not know. The birth of a daughter, Elizabeth, is recorded Dec. 15, 1646. He lived in what is still Rowley, about 30 years, and in the spring of 1669 removed to the west part of the town, now and for a hundred years past well known as Spofford's Hill, and was, beyond all reasonable doubt, the first settler in Georgetown, and the progenitor of all of the name in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, and Canada.

The town of Rowley in 1668 laid out a farm, at the "Gravelle Plain, near the Bald Hills," then a wilderness, now the westerly part of Georgetown. This farm John Spofford took on a lease for twenty-one years, and removed here in the spring of 1669. This was a removal of four or five miles into an almost unbroken wilderness. Tradition says that the name of Bald Pate was given to what in the record of this farm is called the bald hills, on account of the trees having been cut down to clear the land for pasturage, a use to which much of it has been devoted to the present day; by this name being used in the lease, it is quite sure that it had been so cleared prior to the lease. The family had been living here twenty-three years, when Mr. Goodridge, his wife and two children were killed by the Indians, in Byfield, but three miles from them, and almost directly between them and their townsmen in Rowley. They had been here thirty-nine years when Haverhill was destroyed, and Rev. Mr. Rolfe, Capt. Wainwright, and forty others slain. How many anxious days and gloomy nights must they have passed during these times of Indian war; but we have no record or tradition that they ever left the place. The old hearth-stone was always warm, and three generations lived and died on the same spot, where a monument ought to be erected to the memory of these patriarchs. For the first five years he was to pay as rent 300 feet of white oak plank; and after that time ten pounds each year—one half of said rent in English corn at price current, or Indian corn if he pleases—the other half in “fat cattel or leane,” at price current. This lease was assigned over to his sons, John and Samuel, March 16th, 1676, and the rent reduced to eight pounds, and to be wholly remitted “duringe the time of the Indian wars,” and it was extended by agreement three score years from the date thereof. John, Jr. was twenty years old at the date of this lease, and he and his son John lived, raised families, and died on this farm before its expiration. Samuel, then twenty-four years old, survived the lease nearly seventy years.

Why he (John, senior) went on this farm upon a lease, when land was so plenty, and after having half a dozen lots assigned to him in the division, does not appear. Perhaps the “benefit of penning the cattel” was a valuable privilege. He might have been reduced in property by sickness or other ways, but his descendants at the expiration of the lease were owners of nearly one thousand acres adjoining, none of which, however, appear to be of the land originally assigned to the family.

At the expiration of this lease the farm reverted to the town, and the northerly part of it was soon after set off to the second parish, and was sold or leased for 999 years. The other part has been let on seven years’ leases, till 1851, during which year it was sold by the first parish, and purchased by Mr. Sewell Spofford.

The name appears to have varied much in its spelling, both in England and in America. The English authorities are copied as printed. In the body of the before-named lease, the name is twice written Spofforth—it is signed Spofford—the renewed lease in 1676, is signed John and Samuel Spofforth. On the gravestone of this same John in 1697, in the old ground at Bradford, it is spelled Spafford, and on the gravestone of Samuel, in the old ground at Georgetown, it is Spaffard.

The name on the old spot was usually spelt with an a, sixty or seventy years ago, and those who left there prior to the revolution have generally conformed to that orthography, but Spofford is now nearly uniform in Massachusetts, and this it appears conforms to the best authority in England. It will be my plan to spell every name and family as they spell it themselves—but in past generations the name of the same person is often spelt differently. The pronunciation in this region, the first location of the name in America, has always been nearly the same, the a, when used, having been sounded broad, like a in hall, ball, &c.

Some confusion will arise to those unacquainted with the localities, from the number of towns into which Rowley has been divided. That part of the town in which the family first settled, is Rowley still, but no one of the name has resided there, to our knowledge, since the first settler left there with his family in 1669. New Rowley, as it was called for many years, being the second parish in Rowley, now Georgetown, has been the prolific hive which, for one hundred and eighty years, has sent forth many sons and daughters to people distant towns and states.

Bradford was set off from Rowley in 1675, Boxford in 1685, Georgetown in 1838, and Groveland from Bradford in 1850. There were in Georgetown, in 1810, twelve families and twenty voters of the name, and there are about the same number of families there at present. There are also a few families in Boxford and Groveland, but much the largest number of the descendants are now scattered in distant towns and places.

Five generations, including the first couple, are now numbered with the dead. Mrs. Hale of Groveland, (No. 81,) and Mrs. Perley of Haverhill, (No. 84,) who lately deceased, were the last of that generation. The sixth generation is now fast leaving the stage. Few if any of them can be found under fifty years of age, and the families in distant places are many of them a generation in advance of us, probably from the circumstance that those who emigrated were generally the elder members of the family.

Most of the name have been farmers; many ingenious mechanics. We number 7 physicians, 3 clergymen, 2 lawyers, 3 booksellers, and several merchants and ship-owners. Many whose births are recorded of early generations do not appear again on any record, and may have died young, or have families in distant places. Though few have been high in office, yet a very large part have been respectable in life, many have been magistrates and legislators.

The record will be arranged in generations. Every person, when first mentioned at birth, will be numbered; that number will be placed against the name whenever it appears again as the head of a family. At the head of each generation will be placed the generation of both parents and children under that head.

In a few instances the same number will be used twice in a family, to avoid a derangement of all the succeeding numbers by the insertion of some newly discovered member.

Many omissions and some errors will be noticed. Ancient records and gravestones disagree in some cases—many letters of inquiry have remained unanswered—others have few names or dates. The writer has undertaken the task, because no one has done it before him, and because his memory extending back half a century, to many of the fourth generation, now all gone, he supposed he could arrange the marriages and family connections better than those of a later generation.

To the name and family descended from JOHN and ELIZABETH, this record is respectfully dedicated. May it excite the present and coming generations to emulate the virtues of their ancestors.*

(34) CAPT. ELIPHALET, and LUCY PEABODY† of Boxford, married 27

* To the record of her baptism is appended the following note. "This daughter of Capt. John Spofford was born at a plantation on Connecticut river, called No. 4, from whence her father had been captured by the Indians, and was now in captivity at Canada. Its mother had been in great danger at No. 4, and considered it a great relief to have escaped thither to her friends."—See Ch. Rec. of Georgetown.

† Lucy Peabody was dau. of Deacon Nathan Peabody of Boxford, who was son of John Peabody, who was the son of Francis Peabody of Topsfield, who was born at St. Alban's, Hertfordshire, Eng. in 1614, and married Mary Forster, dau. of Reginald Forster, of whom honorable mention is made by Scott, in "Marmion" and the "Lay of the Last Minstrel." The family came over in the ship Planter, in 1635. The father, John, settled in Duxbury. Francis was an original settler of Hampton, to which place he went with Mr. Batchelder, from Lynn, in 1638. He was in Topsfield in 1659, and was a large landholder in that town and in Boxford.

Her mother was Priscilla, dau. of the Rev. Joseph Capen, forty years minister of Topsfield. Mrs. Capen was Priscilla, dau. of Capt. John Appleton of Ipswich, whose wife Priscilla was dau. of Rev. Jesse Glover, some time minister of Sutton, in Surrey, Eng. He preached some time in London, but embarked with his family for America in 1638, with Stephen Day, a printing press, and three men servants who were bound

Dec. 1748 ; he bought the house of Capt. John Spafford, who removed to No. 4, in 1737, and had a large farm ; he was captain of militia, and marched to Boston on the alarm of Lexington. ## THE JOHNSON FAMILY.

[Communicated by PISHEY THOMPSON, Esq., of Boston in Lincolnshire, England.]

NOTE.—MR. THOMPSON, many years ago published an account of Boston, [Eng.] He is now about to publish its “History and Antiquities,” upon which he has bestowed a great amount of labor. In the course of his researches he discovered the materials from which the following Article has been prepared. In his letter accompanying it he says, “The Johnson family is scarcely enough connected with this Boston, to justify the appropriation of much space therein to details respecting it. I also forward you a copy of the authentic pedigree of the Johnson family, and also a copy of a very curious paper in the hand-writing of the father of Isaac, relative to his marriage, &c. The details of this paper may be depended upon as being correct, but the inferences are, probably, too severe.” Dated Boston, Lincolnshire, 2 June 1854.—EDITOR.

Extracts from a paper written by Abraham Johnson, “Gentleman and Esquire,” 1638, and identified as his writing by a relative. The paper in possession of W<sup>m</sup> Hopkinson, Esq., of Stamford, Lincolnshire.

The writer describes himself as ABRAHAM JOHNSON, Gentleman, now of Cambridge, and late of South Luffenham, in the county of Rutland, Esq. He desires searches to be made in the Herald’s office, &c., for the family arms which he is entitled to bear; and apologizes for his deficiency of knowledge in that respect, through “having been deprived of the memorials thereof as touching his bearings, by his MOTHER’S ancestors, by Strangers and Adversaries, and as for those by his FATHER’S ancestors, by his own Sons.”

The narrative recites that the writer’s father was Mr. ROBERT JOHNSON, Gentleman, and his mother Mrs. MARY JOHNSON, “a Gentlewoman too. His father’s education, titles, actions and good works” he sets forth, “not passing in silence his mother’s worth.” He himself had held the offices of High Sheriff and Justice of Peace.”

ABRAHAM JOHNSON was born at North Luffenham, in the county of Rutland, July 6, 1577, being the only child of the ROBERT and MARY JOHNSON abovementioned. His father’s father was MOORIS or MAURICE Johnson of Stamford, Gentleman. His father was Chaplain to Sir Nicholas Bacon, and afterwards Vicar of North Luffenham, where he resided in that capacity for nearly 50 years, never having any other church preferment. He was B. D., Prebendary of Windsor and Rochester, and Archdeacon of Leicester. “He gave 20 marks a year to the Preacher at Paul’s Cross, and is there always mentioned among the benefactors and maintainers of those preachers.” He founded also two Schools and two Hospitals of Christ in OAKHAM and UPPINGHAM, in the county of Rutland, with four hundred marks Hereditaments yearly for ever. He died in July, 1625.

ABRAHAM JOHNSON recites that his education was early cared for, and consisted of a thorough knowledge of the Latin, Greek and Hebrew languages, and also of the French, Spanish and Italian ones; and of Rhetoric, Logic, Arithmetic, Geometry and Natural Philosophy; and of Music, both vocal and instrumental. His writing seems to have been particularly cared for, having been taught by the best masters “which those times,” and he “thinks any times afforded, to write Secretary, Romain, Court or Chancery hand, Text hand, Bastard hand." He could write also, fairly, both Greek and Hebrew. All these things he had attained when he was 13 years of age.

He entered at Emanuel College, Cambridge, when he was little over 13, where he remained 4 years. He then entered as a student of the law at Lincoln's Inn, where he remained several years, when he was called to the bar. He never constantly followed the law as a profession, being more attached to "an academical life." He studied Divinity, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, "and new, hard, profitable INVENTIONS or ENGINES, both to contrive them, and cause them to be made." He purchased a house and farm at South Luffenham, about half a mile from his native town, in 1618, for which he paid about £1,000. He was appointed Sheriff of Rutlandshire, dwelling at North Luffenham, to be near his father. In the same year he waited on his Majesty, when in these parts, and had an offer of Knighthood made him, which he did not accept, but was afterwards placed in Commission of the Peace. From this position he afterwards retired, "and used his freedom for his own studies." After an absence of 21 years. he returned to Cambridge, "his honoured and dear mother;" he also occasionally resided in London.

With respect to the Arms he was entitled to bear, he says that he knows that he was descended from the Lacy's, Earls of Lincoln, WILLIAM LACY of Deeping St. James, in Lincolnshire, Gentleman, being his father's uncle, and always addressing him as nephew. He was also allied to the Smiths of Standground, near Peterborough. His father always called the representative of that family, (Robert Smith,) uncle and patron, having been appointed his guardian by his father, Maurice Johnson. His family was also connected or allied with the Bevills of Sawtry, in Huntingdonshire, and the Clarkes of Elmington, in Northamptonshire. His father had three wives; the first was Susanna Davers, whose brother, Jeremy Davers, was a fellow of Clare Hall, Cambridge. This first wife did not live more than a year with his father, and died without issue. The second wife was mother to the writer, and was Maria Hird, sister to Richard Hird, who was Steward to Sir Francis Walsingham, Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth. He knows that, by his mother, he is descended from or allied to the Byngs of Kent, and with the Gamages of London, and the Woodwards of Hoddesdon, of whom Sir John Woodward was called the Royal Merchant. ABRAHAM JOHNSON gives a long account of a quarrel between the different branches of his mother's family, during which the personal estate, "consisting of movables, books, writings and papers, coats, seal rings, jewels and medals," were abstracted by a dishonest executor.

ABRAHAM JOHNSON married 1st, Anna Meadows, dau. of Robert Meadows of Stamford. The Meadows were allied to or descended from the Wimbleby and Loveday families. This lady was the mother of ISAAC JOHNSON,* who emigrated to America; "he was, in courtesy, written Esquire, after he had married the Lady ARBELLA" (not Arâbella) "FINES, one of the sisters of the now Earl of Lincoln, who both went into New England to inhabit, and in a few months after their arrival, both died there, never leaving any issue." "That over high match," continues Abraham Johnson, "was not blessed by him, nor assented to, but forbidden by him, who foresaw and foretold the inconvenience which fell out accordingly, proving uncomfortable to themselves and injurious to him and his second now wife, and their six sons and a daughter; because his father" (Isaac's Grandfather) "being of some 82 years, and in infirmities, and not continuing so deeply wise as he had been in his former consistent age, and green old age; and always contrary to the principles he had given him (Abraham) in charge, that he would not marry above his own degree, w<sup>h</sup> he fortified with many reasons—was misled by meddling, tatling women with an opinion of raising his house, nobody knows how high. Whereas he (Abraham) had so convinced his said father, that he seemed satisfied, that there was an inherent greatness or nobleness of blood in the lady w<sup>h</sup> was not impartible or derivable to his son, or any child he might have by her. But eagerly pursuing till they had got a clandestine marriage, never daring to own or tell the father who married them; they had got the GRANDFATHER to state all his lands upon the said Isaac and his heirs, (except a quillet not worth taking up, which he had cast upon the right heir) with an utter prostration of him the father, that he did not 40 years before his death, estate any land upon him in fee simple or fee taile, no not so much as for his life, or for years. And if he did for years, he w<sup>d</sup> and did ask him to part with it again, w<sup>h</sup> he, in his obedience to him, did. And at his death (the grandfathers) they got him—using a lewd fellow that was his Clerk—(one Richard Butcher,) who being worthless, when he came to that service, yet without that wealth w<sup>h</sup> he got while he was in it, bought the Towne Clerkship of Stamford, from w<sup>h</sup> he was afterwards put, for his ill deserts; and who is an enemy to good ministers and religion and goodness—to make the said Isaac also his Executor, and not so much as any valuable legacy given to ABRAHAM JOHNSON the father. So the said son in his covetousness and ambition, unnaturally got from him and kept from him, his father's whole estate in lands, annuities, houses, cattle, corn, plate, &c., esteemed at some £20,000. And besides by this manner, the said grandchild carrying away all the Grandfather's books and papers, and coats and seal-rings, whereof he had been a great gatherer and hoarder. Living sometime at his manor of Clipsham in Rutlandshire, (worth about 500<sup>lbs</sup> p' year.) Sometimes at Boston, 30 miles off in Lincolnshire, sometime at Sempringham one of the Earl of Lincoln's houses. Sometime at Tuttershall, another of his houses, and sometimes at London, using strangers in his business, and making many strangers his * * * *, who scarcely knew any of his family but himself, and who scarcely any of his family knew but himself. The said Abraham Johnson is thus deprived of such knowledge of his pedigree, and of such marriages and other things as might better satisfy and instruct him, and enable him to direct the intended enquiry for the better. Whereas, now that very chief coat the Johnsons bear—viz. Argent, a Chevron Sable between three Lion heads coupé Gules, crowned Or between two ostrich feathers Argent, is taken from him and all his, and is either lost, or in some stranger hand they know not who nor where. The grandfather's picture was, and, he really thinks is still, left at Boston, in a strange Gentleman's house, that never knew Robert Johnson, nor had any cause to care for him. And diverse of his chief books and papers ISAAC took with him into New England, in which expedition he spent from £5,000 to £6,000. And was so sett upon it, that had he again come over, as he intended the spring after, he had sold every foot of land his grandfather left him; and whether any writing be there or no that conduceth to these things, he knows not. But chiefly by being deprived of these books and papers he is very deficient as above too plainly appears. But he verily thinks ISAAC had some good memorials of all these things, for his Grandfather was a great and painful putter down of any comment almost that concerned him, though some but of mean nature. Therefore it is not to be thought but that he had set down the marriages and alliances of former times. The rather seeing he was careful to obtain the exemplification or attestation of our before described bearing of the three Lions' heads &c.

"The mother of the said Isaac being taken from him ere she was 20 years old, who was so obedient to him, and loved him so well that in his conscience and full persuasion he believes had she lived, she wd either have dissuaded the Grandfather and the son of her own bowels from such unnaturelness against him his father, or else mourned for it. When he was some 27 or 28 years of age he married Elizabeth Chaderton the sole child and heir apparent of Laurence Chaderton Gent<sup>n</sup> and of Cicely his wife—He had by this second wife—Samuel, Ezekiel, Daniel, James, Nathaniel and Francis, and one daughter Elizabeth married to Henry Salmon a Gent<sup>n</sup> of Cheshire, a Scholar and Divine, and Vicar of Stand-ground near Peterbro'. Their eldest child was a daughter named Elizabeth.

CASE OF RICHARD CHASMORE.

[Communicated by HON. GEO. A. BRAYTON of Warwick, R. I., to illustrate the Article inserted in page 293 of the present volume.]

To our much Honoured Friends the Town of Warwick Peace and safety.

We thought it necessary to signify to you our Lo. friends that the marshal of the Massachusetts have apprehended Richard Chasmore brought him into the house of Rich Ray to carry him into the Bay.

We thought it our duty to send to the marshal to request him to show us his authority, but he refusing we sent and required him & the prisoner to us & and after some debate about it & and the right of his commission judged it contrarie to all reason that the prisoner should be so disorderly carried away, for these causes.

First He was bound to answer in this colony by the President.

2nd He is no subject to the Bay.

3 He had petitioned for a trial at our Gen Court.

4 The fact alleged against him is laid to be done within the bounds of our Charter.

5<sup>thly</sup> Without all peradventure he had no just authority to keep a prisoner in Providence.

Wherefore we remanded him to the constable of Providence who had in his hands a warrant from the Honourable President to apprehend him to be answerable to the Honourable Court of trials in our colonie.

Thus having already & shall again as need requireth returned a reasonable answer to what may be objected we rest,

In the name & by the appointment of the town of Providence,

Jon Sayles Town Clark.

RESEARCHES AMONG FUNERAL SERMONS, AND OTHER TRACTS, FOR THE RECOVERY OF BIOGRAPHICAL AND GENEALOGICAL MATERIALS.

CHECKLEY.—“A Discourse occasioned by the Death of the Reverend SAMUEL CHECKLEY, M. A., Late Colleague Pastor of the New South-Church of Christ in Boston : who departed this life on the First of December, 1769, in the 74th year of his age, and 51 of his ministry. Delivered in the Afternoon of the Lord's-Day after his Funeral. By Penuel Bowen, A. M. Surviving Pastor of said Church. Published by Desire of the Society. Boston : Printed by Edes & Gill, in Queen-street, 1770.” 8vo. pp. 42.

This Sermon is dedicated “To the Church and Congregation usually meeting in the House called the New-South, in Boston;” in which the Author says it “is against his own inclination and desire to publish his Sermon, but that he had complied with their desire, because their reasons for so doing were good, namely, to give some lasting token of their respect to the memory of their deceased pastor, and to have honor done his character; both which they were candid enough to think might be answered by this publication.”

At page 26, Mr. Bowen refers to other ministers lately deceased in Boston, whose “place has not been supplied again, as remarkable at present. In the space of a few months, three, the three eldest have deceased, and none has been introduced into their place !” To this is added in a foot note, “The Rev. Dr. Sewall and Mr. Foxcroft died in June last; and now Mr. Checkley.”—In another place he says, “Mr. Checkley was very happy in his family connections, and at first settling in life had a fair prospect of great domestic felicity; but soon was he made to experience the vanity of earthly comforts. His children, which were many and very promising, were almost all cut down in the flower and prime of life; some from settled stations which they filled very reputably. So that out of twelve, there is but one survives him,—Mr. William Checkley now of Providence. And the partner of his years (that excellent woman whom ye well knew) departed likewise before him; after long breaking, and languishing in circumstances very affecting.”—There has been published in the second volume of the Register some account of the Checkley family. A few additional facts will be found in the “Hist. and Antiquities of Boston,” p. 459, and elsewhere.

CLARKE.—“The future inheritance, of Promise.—A Discourse delivered at the Funeral of the Reverend MR. PETER CLARKE, late Pastor of the Second Church and Congregation in Danvers, June 16, 1768. By Thomas Barnard, A. M. Pastor of the First Church in Salem. Salem: 1768.” 8vo. pp. 23.

“He had a liberal education, and settled in the gospel ministry here, June 5th, A. D. 1717; so that you had the benefit of his labors for more than half a century; in all which time he failed of his public services but a few Lord's-Days, till within these few months.” His “family,” present at the funeral, is mentioned, but nothing of the personal history of Mr. Clarke or any of his connections, except, that “he was born, and his early years spent, at some distance from home, and such a length of time has passed since, that but few can recollect them."

FOXCROFT.—"A Discourse occasioned by the Death of the Reverend THOMAS FOXCROFT, M. A. Late colleague-Pastor of the First Church of Christ in Boston: who departed this Life on Lord's-Day Forenoon, June 18, 1769. In the 73d year of his Age. Delivered the Lord's-Day after his Decease. By Charles Chauncy, D. D. Surviving Pastor of said Church. Boston: Printed by Daniel Kneeland, at his Printing Office in Hanover street, for Thomas Leverett in Cornhill. 1769." 8vo. pp. 39, and Appendix 4.

"The manner of God's calling him out of the world was sudden and violent. He was so deeply struck, as, in a few minutes, to be deprived both of his reason and his senses; and, in this lethargic state, he continued about 28 hours, when he fell asleep in Jesus." Page 28. The Appendix to the Sermon is from the Mass. Gazette of June 22, 1769, from which the following facts are taken: "Mr. Foxcroft was struck on last Saturday morning. His disease was partly apoplectic and partly palsaic, which put an end to his life the following day, about eleven of the clock, in the 73 year of his age. He was born in Boston, but in early childhood became an inhabitant of Cambridge. M. A. at H. C. 1714, 1717. His Father, Francis Foxcroft, Esq. was a member of the Church of England, and intended Francis for an Episcopal Clergyman. He came to preach to the First Church in Boston in March, 1717, and Nov. 20th following was ordained their Minister in partnership with the Rev. Mr. Benjamin Wadsworth. Perhaps no Minister in Boston, upon his first settlement, was ever more universally admired. He has left behind a son and five daughters."

[The pedigree of Foxcroft is traced in England with well attested certainty. The family came originally from Foxcroft in Com. Pall. Lanc. But those in New England were immediately from Yorkshire; John Foxcroft, son of Richard, m. a Yorkshire lady, and went to reside in Halifax in that shire. His son Thomas m. Alice Briggs, and had a son James who m. Ann, da. and co-heir of — Woodland. By this marriage there were, inter alios, Thomas, 1575, and Daniel of Weetwood. This Daniel Foxcroft of Weetwood had, among other children, Samuel, who m. Mary Hirst, and Daniel who m. Abigail Birron. Daniel and Abigail had among others, Daniel, Mayor of Leeds, 1665, d. 1691. His wife was Martha, dau. of Francis Layton, Esq. of Rawden, who d. 1688. These were the parents of Francis Foxcroft, Esq. of Massachusetts, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Deputy Gov. Thomas Danforth.]

HANCOCK.—"The Servant's actual Readiness," &c.—In Two Discourses Preached at Lexington, Decemb. 17th, 1752. Being the Lord's-Day after the Funeral of their late venerable and aged Pastor, the Reverend Mr. John Hancock, who going to bed as well as usual the night after the 5th of Decemb. and awaking some time after Midnight with a great Pain in his Stomach, died in a few Minutes. In the 82d Year of his Age, and 54th of his Ministry. By Nathaniel Appleton, A. M. Pastor of the first Church in Cambridge. Published at the Request of the People of Lexington. Mark vii. 35—37. Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland, 1753." 8vo. pp. 39.

"In less than a fortnight before his Death, Mr. Hancock gave the solemn Charge at the Ordination of the Rev. Mr. Jacob Cushing at Waltham, Nov. 22, 1752." He left a wife, who "had two amiable and worthy sons in the Ministry, one in Braintree, the other settled a Colleague with his Father: both of them died some years before their Father.”—“Thomas Hancock, Esq. merchant in Boston, only surviving son.” The son who had been settled with his father was named Ebenezer, “who died of the Throat Distemper, Jan. 28, 1740, after he had been settled about six years.” Note, p. 36.

HULL, JOHN, ESQ.—“The high Esteem which God hath of the Death of the Saints. As it was delivered in a Sermon preached October 7, 1683. Occasioned by the Death of the Worshipful JOHN HULL, ESQ. Who deceased October 1, 1683. By Samuel Willard, Teacher to a Church in Boston. Numb. 23. 10. Boston, in New England Printed by Samuel Green for Samuel Sewall: 1683.” 4to. pp. 20.

In the above transcript of the title-page of Mr. Willard’s Sermon, the capitals and points are exactly copied. On the back of the same page of the copy now used, is this manuscript memorandum:—“1684. Lucy Bradstreet her Booke giuen by the Reuerend Mr. John Cotton, her dear kinsman.” In eighteen pages of this tract, occupied by the Sermon, there is not one word respecting the origin of Mr. Hull or his family connections. The other two pages are occupied with a Latin Eulogy by old Master Corlet, who died four years after Mr. Hull, at the age of 76, according to Dr. Allen. For important facts respecting Mr. Hull, see Hist. & Antiqs. of Boston, p. 329, and p. 449-53.

HUTCHINSON.—“The Character and Hope of the Righteous considered in a Sermon Preached the Lord’s-Day after the Funeral of Madam LYDIA HUTCHINSON, the virtuous consort of the HONORABLE EDWARD HUTCHINSON, Esq. who departed this Life, July 10, 1748, aged 61. By Samuel Checkley, A. M. Pastor of the second Church of Christ in Boston. Isaiah 3. 10.—Job 19. 25, 26, 27. Boston: N. E. Printed by J. Draper, for D. Henchman, in Cornhill. 1748.” 8vo. pp. 22.

This Sermon was dedicated to the husband of the deceased, Hon. Edward Hutchinson. Like the Sermon the Dedication contains nothing of family history. There is, in the History and Antiquities of Boston, p. 227, a full pedigree of the Hutchinson family; by which it will be seen that Madam Hutchinson was a daughter of Col. John Foster.

LYMAN.—“Christ living and the Saints,” &c.—“A Sermon Preached, on the Lord’s-Day, after the sorrowful Death of Caleb Lyman (of Boston) Esq., at Weston, where he died (after twelve weeks illness) Nov. 17, 1742, in the 65 year of his Age. He was born at Northampton, Sept. 17, 1678. By William Williams, A. M. Pastor of the Church of Christ in Weston. Phil. i. 21—1 Thess. iv. 14.—Boston, Printed by Rogers & Fowle for S. Eliot in Cornhill. 1743.” pp. 31.

Besides what is contained in this title, we glean from the other pages, that, “with respect to the death, which, by the all governing Providence, happened amongst us, the last week, the first that hath been at my house, and which I ought to take a special notice of, as of a worthy Acquaintance, and dear Christian Friend, whose death I heartily mourn.” That Mr. Lyman left a “dear Consort, bereaved of a kind, tender and most loving husband, of a sweet, pleasant and cheerful temper, and an amiable pattern of the virtues of the married state! His family have lost a good, pious, prudent and faithful head and guide." He "used the office of Deacon well, was a very ministerial man, had a competent estate, with which he was very liberal."

PHIPPS.—"A Funeral Sermon, occasioned by the Death of the Honorable SPENCER PHIPS, Esq., late Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England. Who departed this Life April 4, 1757. Æt. 73. Preached at the Public Lecture in Boston, Thursday, April 14. At the Desire of the Honorable Council; and in the Audience of the General Assembly. By Nathaniel Appleton, M. A. Pastor of the First Church in Cambridge. Boston: 1757." 8vo. pp. 43.

There are pages enough in this Tract both for a Sermon, and some account of the subject of it, but I am obliged to state that there is not half a page, exclusive of the Title, devoted to an account of the great man. The Author says, on page 38, "By the sovereign disposals of Divine Providence, he was born of parents in private life, was in his early days adopted, and taken into the family, and made the heir of his late Excellency, Sir William Phips, first Governor of this Province, under the present Charter, whereby he was favored with a liberal education." That he left a widow and children; but whether the latter were numerous is only to be inferred by the passage of the Sermon in which it is said "all the children and household."

SHORY.—"A Sermon, preached at Lynn, July 17th, occasioned by the Death of Mr. MILES SHORY and wife, who were instantly killed by lightning, July 10th, 1803. By Thomas Cushing Thacher, A. M. Minister of a Congregational Church in that place. Salem: 1803." 8vo. pp. 20.

There were 19 persons in the house in which Mr. and Mrs. Shory were killed. Mr. Shory resided in New Hampshire, his wife's maiden name was Breed. This much is gathered from the Sermon. But Mr. Lewis has given many other particulars, in his History of Lynn; which see, p. 228-9.

SKINNER, MRS. MARY.—"The Mourner admonished," &c. "A Discourse (the substance of which was) delivered at Westchester in Colchester, in Connecticut, Decem. 8, 1745. Being the Lord's-Day after the Funeral of Mrs. Mary Skinner, wife of the Reverend Mr. Thomas Skinner, who departed this Life, Nov. 29th, 1745. Ætat. 24. And now published at the desire and expense of a number of the Auditors and others. By Thomas Skinner, A. M. Pastor of the Second Church in Colchester. Job, xxiii. 14.—Sam. ii. 6.—Job, i. 21. Boston, Printed by Rogers & Fowle in Queen St. 1746." 8vo. pp. 42.

"The deceased was the offspring of pious parents, from whom she received a religious education." Page 30. To this passage is this note:—"Her parents were Mr. Samuel and Mrs. Sarah Newhall, late of Malden, deceased." In another note, "Her birth was on the first of April, 1721." That she lost "her Mother and Brother in one night."

The following items of local history may be of use hereafter. "Tis now between six and seven years that I have, in much affliction, under many fears, temptations and weaknesses, in my poor manner, been laboring among you, in the services of the Gospel Ministry; and in this time, (if I remember aright) there have been but seven or eight adult persons died; that belong to this parish: And three of them deceased this present year."

Note to this passage :—"Viz. Susannah Trowbridge, single woman, Mr. Benjamin Trowbridge, Mrs. Naomi Accly, wife of Mr. James Accly, Mrs. Rebekah Mitchel, wife of Mr. John Mitchel, Mrs. Mary Brown, wife of Mr. Samuel Brown, Mr. John Carrier, and Mrs. Mary Skinner.—Since my settlement with you, there have died two young women, viz. : Mrs. Mary and Rachel Jones, who usually congregated with us, who lived without the limits of this parish.—Infants that have died within the time, before mentioned, Bethiah Williams, Joseph and Benjamin Kneeland, Lucretia Kellog, and Patience Skinner.—Children : Three of Mr. Abel Willec's, Amasa Quitterfield, Benjamin Kneeland, Ezra Day, David Adams, James Mackall. In all, both children and infants, 13. Baptized in this time, 130, or more."

At the end of the Discourse, on a leaf not paged, are "The names of the persons at whose cost the preceding Sermon was made publick, viz., Deac. Geo. Sexton, Ebenezer Dibble, Daniel Chamberlain, John Rowley, Stephen Brainerd, John Lord, Isaac Crocker, James Crocker, Abel Willec, John Olmstead, Jr., Benj. Kneeland of Hebron, Benj. Skinner of Eastbury, Nathl. Foot, Jona. Gates, James Bates, Richd. Skinner, Wm. Williams, James Accly, Timothy Fuller, Eben<sup>r</sup> Kneeland, Hezek<sup>h</sup> Kneeland, Joseph Smith, Jeremiah Carrier."

The Author has extracted four verses from the Rev. John Adams's Poem on the death of Mrs. Turell, which besides being applicable in his case, are a good specimen of that early New England Poet :—

"To limits fixed, our destined course we bend,
And with resistless haste to death's pale empire tend.
From scene to scene our shifting moments go,
And then return the ground the dust we owe."

STODDARD.—"A strong rod broken and withered.—A Sermon preached at Northampton, on the Lord's-Day, June 26, 1748. On the Death of the Honorable John Stoddard, Esq., Often a member of his Majesty's Council, for many years Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Hampshire, Judge of the Probate of Wills, and Chief Colonel of the Regiment, &c. who died in Boston, June 19, 1748, in the 67th year of his Age. By Jonathan Edwards, A. M. Pastor of the Church in Northampton. Dan. iv. 35. Boston : Printed by Rogers & Fowle for J. Edwards in Cornhill. 1748." 8vo. pp. 29.

In his "Application" Mr. Edwards says, "He was eminently a 'strong Rod.' As to his natural abilities, strength of reason, greatness and clearness of discerning, and depth of penetration, he was one of the first rank : It may be doubted whether he has left a superior in these respects, in these parts of the world. He was a man of a truly great Genius, and his genius was peculiarly fitted for the understanding and managing of public affairs. He was probably one of the ablest politicians that ever New England bred." This is but a brief abstract of what is given of his character, which is very ably drawn. A genealogy of the Stoddard family has been published in a previous volume, and for the first time, Col. Stoddard's Journal of an Expedition to Canada.

WILLIAMS, Mr. Jonathan.—Prayer for help a seasonable duty upon the ceasing of Godly and Faithful men.—A Sermon occasioned by the Death of several worthy members of the First Church in Boston : Preached the Lord's Day following the Anniversary fast, being the sabbath after the funeral of Mr. Jonathan Williams, one of the Deacons of said Church :

who departed this life, March 27th, 1737. Ætat. 63. By Charles Chauncy, A. M. Isaiah, lvii. 1. Boston: Printed by T. Fleet, in the year 1737. 8vo. pp. 25.

This, though an able Discourse, is much in the track of too many others, in respect to any knowledge of the deceased contained in it. It has many brilliant passages, among which is the following:—"Great has been the ceasing of Godly and Faithful persons among us, both men and women, within these few years. The ancient strong pillars of this Church are mostly thrown down by death. The hoary heads of those members of venerable aged disciples, which were once as a crown of Glory to this assembly, are now laid in the dark and silent grave: and small is the remnant that is left; but here and there one to be seen in the place of worship." He then speaks of several who had lately died; "The first was taken out of the Seat of Deacons," and in a note adds, "Mr. Zachariah Thayer, who died Feb. 7, 1735-6, and Mr. Jonathan Jackson, who died May 4, 1736, and Mr. Nicholas Buttolph, who died January 28, 1736-7."

WILLIAMS.—"A Funeral Sermon on the Reverend Mr. NATHANIEL WILLIAMS, who deceased Tuesday, Jan. 10, 1737-8. Ætatis 63. Delivered at the South Church in Boston, on the Lord's Day After. By Thomas Prince, M. A. And one of the Pastors of the same Church. Eccl. xii. 7.—Psal. xxxi. 5. lxxiii. 24. Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland and T. Green, 1738." 8vo. pp. 30.

"Being born of pious parents (August 25, 1675. Note.) his father a Deacon of this Church, and mother a sister of the late Honorable Daniel Oliver, Esq. At fourteen years of age (July, 1689) he entered the School of the Prophets. He was ordained an Evangelist in the College Hall, for one of the West India Islands (1698); but the climate not agreeing with his constitution, he soon returned to this his native city." From being a private teacher, he went into the "Public and Free Grammar School of this great town, 1703); the principal school of the British Colonies, if not of all America. In this school he continued about thirty years. He also studied and practiced physic."

STAFFORD.—"Providence, October 10th, 1760. Died on Wednesday last, and this day was decently buried, Amos Stafford, of Warwick in the Colony of Rhode Island, aged 97 years. He always supported a fair character. He left a numerous offspring behind him; and a widow (his only wife) aged 92 years. They lived together in great union and tenderness 72 years, in a married state. Within the grounds of his homestead farm are yet to be seen the remains of the intrenchments and batteries, raised against the poor and harmless inhabitants of the Town of Warwick, by the furious zeal, and cruel madness of the ridiculous priests and bigots of the last century." Boston Evening Post, 13 Oct. 1760.

NOTE.—The writer of the above is probably wrong in attributing the erection of "the intrenchments and batteries" to the "ridiculous priests." It would have been correct, perhaps, if he had said they were the occasion of their being erected. See Hist. & Antiqs. of Boston, 274-6.

Can and will some of our Rhode Island friends give us a pedigree of AMOS STAFFORD?

"MR. EDWARD BANGS," "REBEKAH."

Came from Chichester, in England, A.D. 1623, in the "Anne," which landed at Plymouth the last of July. There he resided a few years, and was made a "freeman" in 1633. Soon after (in 1634) he settled at Eastham, on Cape Cod. He was at different times a Grand Jurymen, Overseer of the Guard against the Indians, &c. He superintended the building of a barge of 40 or 50 tons burthen, (according to tradition, the first vessel built at Plymouth,) was a Deputy to the Colony Court four or five years, and held many other public offices. Died at Eastham, A.D. 1678, aged 86.

concerns. For when we think of our Sovereign State, and its civil, military, religious, literary, social establishments, its halls of legislation, its courts of law, its "pride, pomp and circumstance" of revolutionary achievement—and then read the doings of its first bodies of managers—we are apt to be disgusted.

But it is apprehended, that this sensation, if it be not indeed banished from the mind, will be essentially moderated, by the consideration, that, in these earliest periods, the transactions were of necessity more of the nature of those of a commercial band of adventurers, than of a body of solemn legislators, acting for posterity and the public—a character which we have since ascribed to them. For they were never destitute of general laws, but subject to that system of them under which they had been brought up. This view will modify our feelings—and especially if we consider too that the title of Governor, with which so many have connected the idea of the greatest man they were accustomed to contemplate, attached itself in England, at the time of settling this country, as it now does in fact, to the chief who commands even a petty fort, presides over a hospital, regulates a public charity, or moderates a meeting of bank directors; and hence is by no means to be invested with all that imposing dignity with which the seniors of our community clothe the memory of the Governors, HANCOCK, BOWDOIN, ADAMS, SUMNER, or STRONG, or that of those who, in more recent years, have contributed their share to the glory of our Commonwealth.

The first volume is prefaced by a series of "Introductory Remarks," of essential importance not only for understanding the general principles according to which the work is conducted, but also the origin and history of the undertaking. Its proximate cause,* the earnest recommendation of the late Governor, His Excellency J. H. CLIFFORD, Esq., is in these "Remarks" respectfully noticed, and appropriate thanks are rendered to the Honorable E. M. WRIGHT, Esq., whose official appointment of the Editor is given in full; the justice of its representations being completely borne out by the execution of the laborious work itself. Deserved praise is also bestowed on the faithful copyist, DAVID PULSIFER, Esq.†

To these "Introductory Remarks" we can only refer, instead of transcribing them. They must be read in order to explain the whole subject; and it is impossible to read them without perceiving that obstacles have been happily removed, and a great facility afforded for the future consultation of the Records, as well as the preservation of them.

Their early appearance, after the determination to publish had been formed, is exhibited as due, in no inconsiderable degree, to the existence of a fair copy which had previously been made of the first volume through the patronage of the American Antiquarian Society, by whom the publi-

* The writer was not probably aware of the great and long exertions of Mr. Frothingham of Charlestown in the Legislature, and of Mr. Hillard of Boston in the Upper House of the same body, to bring about that which has at length been begun. But the "proximate cause" commenced long before the administration of Mr. Clifford,—it did not have its beginning even within the walls of the Capitol. Humble individuals, now overlooked by many newly arisen, had far more to do in setting this important work on foot than has been acknowledged.—EDITOR.

† To Mr. Pulsifer, far more than to any other person, belongs the credit of the accuracy of the printed Records. There is no man who has had employment in their production, who can pretend to so full and complete a knowledge of the chirography in which they are found. It is he who is to determine all doubtful cases, and to decide when others differ upon difficult points.—EDITOR.

cation of these invaluable materials for our history had been resolved on some time since. Yet the careful Editor, Dr. N. B. SHURTLEFF, "revised," most praiseworthily, "every word," comparing it sedulously and faithfully with the original manuscript, which is reproduced, as it were, in the typography, so far as practicable: it having been found necessary, for this purpose, to form new matrices.*

We cannot, however, willingly close this article without employing the occasion to make a few observations further. And we take a peculiar pleasure in noticing the growing interest shown in the early history of our country, and in special parts of it, as well as in the memorials of distinct families and individuals. This disposition has never indeed been entirely wanting among us; yet it has undoubtedly received a powerful impulse within the last sixty years. In 1792 was formed the Massachusetts Historical Society, the first, as is apprehended, of the kind in the country, but the parent of many more. It grew, mainly, out of the difficulties encountered by BELKNAP in his researches for materials to form the History of New Hampshire. Yet he had, most probably, imbibed the disposition to appreciate, collect and preserve historical documents from PRINCE; and he, possibly, from MATHER.† But who was more observant than the elder WINTHROP, to whose lamented death the second volume of the "Records" extends, and whose memorials are more deeply interesting? Yet BRADFORD and WINSLOW preceded him, as HUBBARD preceded MATHER; and GOOKIN in his day recorded as well as acted.

By the publication of documents left us by such men, with those of a more recent date, which have greatly multiplied, and are increasing still, adding to them treatises by no means wanting on religious, moral, political and scientific subjects, there is forming among us gradually a body of American literature that cannot but produce its distinctive effect upon American character.

The volumes we now notice stand as it were at the head or fountain. They show us the very cradle of our Republic. And it was a master-stroke of policy to remove the seat of Charter right and privilege to this side of the Atlantic, instead of its being, as in the Board of East Indian Government down to the present day, in England. It may indeed, in view of our Revolution and its consequences, be justly termed providential. It certainly explains much of that spirit of freedom, of which the traces are so perceptible. For it should be noticed, that, in the process of legislation, our ancestors appear evidently to have felt, at a very early period, the effect of distance from the Mother-country. They soon learned to think and speak with a freedom which would have been hazardous at home. Of this spirit they were often suspected and sometimes accused; yet, possibly, they were hardly sensible of it—arising, as it did, almost from the very atmosphere in which they breathed, so different from that in which they were born.

The remark is often made, that our knowledge of our origin is peculiar—other nations extending into an impenetrable antiquity, while our country was not settled only but even discovered in an age of civilization and knowledge—engaging the attention of nations far advanced in both. The remark should not be forgotten. And, what is, perhaps, of greater consequence, the portion of country we inhabit—our beloved and honored State—was settled at a period when legislation had greatly advanced; when bold and intelligent men had begun to investigate the very foundation of human law, and the processes of legislation, with a freedom of thought and feeling almost unknown to former ages, at least in the classes brought now on the stage of life—there having been a vast alteration in the social condition of men, when we compare the feudal ages with the times of JAMES I. and CHARLES his son.

* Our opinion upon this, and some other parts of the plan pursued, is reserved for a future occasion.—EDITOR.

† Dr. Increase Mather formed a similar Society in Boston, before the Revolution of 1689, but it was discontinued when the old Charter Government was broken up; probably owing to Dr. Mather's long absence from the country.—EDITOR.

A smile may be excited as we notice in the “Records” a few of their regulations. But we are to remember that the Government represented all the civil and judicial power for a time. The regulations are therefore minute, and the animadversions particular and special, extending to matters no longer subjected to legal restrictions. They involve, in fact, the manners and customs of the times.

So, too, it may be remarked concerning several things which modern intelligence, taste, and habit of feeling and acting would condemn as superstitious; and some that are, in our estimation at least, cruel—as in punishments extending to mutilation. Yet, nevertheless, there is so much to commend, so much even to venerate, such courage, fortitude, patience, mutual kindness—so much that savors of its religious origin, and breathes the spirit of the Scriptures, that no considerate descendant of theirs can contemplate it without emotion.

And how widely are their descendants diffused throughout our Union! How influential have been and are many of them, in various ways, on the world! The scornful question, “Who reads an American book?” is now, to say the least, seldom asked. What a field of reflection, then, opens upon us. Our institutions are recommended by the virtues and the happiness which they promote. And what, without influence derived from them, or in accordance with the principles on which they are founded, what would have been now the state and character of society in some of the recently formed governments of the West—in California, for instance?

In thoughts of this kind we might expatiate indefinitely—throwing the reins on the neck of our patriotism and filial piety—but our time and room will not permit.

The framing and enforcing of sumptuary laws form a subject of curious research. We trace it in the “Records,” and find a frequent recurrence of it. Yet it gives way to the influx of commerce and its concomitant, wealth. Few communities have persevered in the enforcement long. The love of distinction and ambition of display overcome the frugality of primitive manners; and it may be said with equal truth, perhaps, that, except an enlarged and truly Christian beneficence be exercised, the increase of wealth would render the primitive frugality a mean and degrading parsimony, were there to be no exhibition of prosperity in an amended exterior.

The truth is, our ancestors were strict puritans. They made conscience of things which, in our day, are viewed with indifference; and they were rigid in the government of themselves and families to a degree which, in the present generation, would be intolerable. How far, in departing from them, we have departed from duty and right, is a fair subject of inquiry. “Happy is he who condemneth not himself in that which he alloweth.”

We shall have opportunity, it is hoped, in noticing the subsequent volumes as they appear, to extract some observable passages, indicative of progress as well in feeling and practice, as in outward prosperity and influence.

LETTER FROM REV. ANDREW ELIOT TO DANIEL PARKER,

BOSTON, July 31, 1775.

MY DEAR SIR,—Your great attention to me and concern for my comfort deserve my sincere thanks. I received the two quarters of mutton, and have divided one between Dr. Rand and Mr. Welsh, who express their acknowledgment in the highest terms. Part of the other I shall send to make broth for the prisoners, who have really suffered for want of fresh meat. I shall this day make a quantity of broth for the sick around me, who are very numerous. You cannot conceive the relief you will give to a number of persons by this kind office. Perhaps your broth has been dispersed to 30 or 40 sick people. I thank you for the ability of helping them. I have invited a number of [friends to] partake of the rest. It is one of the greatest pleasures I have to communicate of any good thing which Providence sends me. Oh, how have we despised former mercies. God is severely teaching us our ingratitude. May we know the blessedness of those whom he chasteneth and teacheth out of his law. After all, the difficulty of food is the least concern I have, though I very seldom meet with anything fresh. But to live among scenes of blood and slaughter, and other trials which I do not care to mention, is hard; and yet, on the whole, I cannot say I am sorry I tarried. I hope God has made me in some measure useful in my labors, both in public and private. I visit the sick in all parts of the town—but, alas, I do but little in comparison with what I ought to do for so good a master. This is my greatest distress. The door is again opened for the departure of the inhabitants—multitudes will embrace the opportunity. The more go from us, the easier it will be for me to depart. In this view I rejoice to see my friends going from me; and yet, if God calls me to tarry, why should I repine? 'Tis because I have not that temper of mind I ought to have, that I cannot leave myself wholly to Providence and be perfectly easy in the situation in which God sees fit to place me. I have yet fixed no time for my departure; I find the very mention of it occasions uneasy sensations in the people, which give me pain. May God direct me. I just received a letter from my son at Fairfield, dated July 20, which informs me of the health and welfare of Mrs. Eliot and my children there. Blessed be God. You cannot conceive what a relief this affords me. Pray remember me to your dear consort [torn] ther and children, and all other of my friends and congregation who are [a word or more gone] My assembly is large, it hath decreased, it will soon be small. Oh, how happy should I be to see my own people collected together, and to preach once more to them. But the will of the Lórd be done. Pray let me have a remembrance with you, and believe me to be Your obliged and affectionate friend

And humble servant,

ANDREW ELIOT.

I do not mention Deacon Sharp, because I purpose to write to him.

Aug. 2. Mr. Welsh was as communicative of his mutton and broth as I was. In short, you cannot conceive how much good you have done. Mr. Austin tells me he verily believes it saved the lives of a number of people. I eat very little of it myself, and yet never had so much pleasure in any provision in my life. If I could only get a little at times, I would engage not to taste it myself, and to give it only to the sick. Provision for myself is my least concern. The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want.

If you could send me a line by this transport, commit it to the care of Mr. Knox, who will convey it safe to me.

DOWNES, Com. John, at his residence in Mount Vernon St., Charlestown, 11 Aug., ae. 69 yrs. 7 mo.

The last rites and ceremonials over the remains of this distinguished naval officer, took place on Monday, the 14th, and the display on the occasion was very imposing. A large procession took the body from the Charlestown Navy Yard shortly after 10 o'clock, and proceeded to Trinity Church in this city, arriving at 11½ o'clock.

The coffin of the deceased was richly ornamented, and upon it were laid the naval coat, cap and sword last worn by the lamented Commodore.

The services in the church consisted of the beautifully solemn rites of the Episcopal Church, which were performed by the Right Rev. Bishop Eastburn and assistants.

The body was taken to Mount Auburn for interment, the funeral train leaving the church about a quarter before 1 o'clock.

The Secretary of the Navy has directed, as a mark of respect to the memory of Commodore John Downes, "a distinguished officer of the United States Navy," the flags of the navy yards, stations, and vessels of the United States Navy, to be hoisted at half-mast, and thirteen minute guns fired at noon, on the day after the receipt of this order. Mr. Lossing saw him in 1848, to whom he recounted the scene of the 19th of April, 1775. A good deal has been said and written of Jonathan Harrington, and the reader must refer to the uncommonly graphic work of Mr. Lossing, where he will find a portrait of the man of other days, and a fac simile of his Autograph at the age of 90 yrs.

The silver he wore in his head to the day of his death. He has two sisters and a brother still living in Andover, whose united ages make 243 years. One of these sisters, now the oldest inhabitant of the town, three-quarters of a century ago, fried doughnuts to supply the knapsack of her youthful and patriotic brother, at his departure for the war of Independence. She was married to Dr. Southey in 1839, about a year and a half after the death of his first wife, Edith Fricker, to whom he was united on the day he left England for a six months' sojourn at Lisbon. The Rev. C. C. Southey, Vicar of Ardleigh, in his "Life and Letters" of his father, says: "When the day was fixed for the travellers (Southey and Hill) to depart, my father fixed that also for his wedding-day; and on the 14th of November, 1795, was united at Radcliff Church, Bristol, to Edith Fricker. It came in this way,—Mr. Wilson had extensive contracts for supplying the army with pork and beef, in the war of 1812. He was then familiarly known as Uncle Sam Wilson. His brand upon his barrels was of course U. S. The transition from United States to Uncle Sam was so easy, that it was at once made, and the name of the packer of the U. ## MAVERICKE AND BRADSTREET.—NOTES OMITTED.

Page 316.—It is possible that Rev. Simon Bradstreet, of New London, had but four children. The first child, Simon, is called on the records of the First Church, Boston, the son of Simon; but this may have been a mistake for Samuel. Samuel resided at Boston, in 1669, and had a son Simon born that year. We think it quite likely that there is an error also in the date (1670) of the birth of Anne, dau. of Samuel; though it is plainly recorded, as we have given it, on the Boston Records.

Page 325.—Descendants of Gov. Bradstreet.—A continuation of this article will be given in January. It will contain information received too late for insertion in this number.

Page 334.—Samuel Mavericke, Esq., the King's Commissioner,—as we are informed by Josselyn, who was his guest in 1638,—was a son of Rev. John Maverick, of Dorchester, who died in 1636, two years before Josselyn's visit. (See Chron. Obs. in Josselyn's Voyages, p. 252.) Hutchinson, after stating that the commissioner had lived in the Colony from the beginning," adds that he "was always opposed to the authority." (Hist. of Mass. Vol. I, p. 250.) This statement is confirmed by abundant evidence. His eldest son was named Nathaniel. Samuel Mavericke, another son, m. Rebecca, dau. of Rev. John Wheelwright, in 1660, (and had Mary b. 2 Oct. 1661, and Hannah, b. 25 Oct. 1663.) and died at Boston, 10 March 1663-4. In 1672 his widow, Rebecca, married William Bradbury. The two Samuel Mavericks have often been "strangely confounded." (See Savage's Winthrop, Vol. I, p. 32, new edit. note; and Editor's note to 3rd edit. of Hutchinson's Massachusetts, p. 26.)

editor's note to 3rd edit. of Hutchinson's Massachusetts, p. 26.)

THE EDITOR of the Register takes this opportunity to return his thanks to the Hon. E. W. LEAVENWORTH, Secretary of State of the State of New York, for the elegant quarto set of the Documentary History of that State, for his private library; and for his high appreciation of the work in which the Editor has for many years been engaged.
